Watching the clock... Linda Ho, Kelly Holt, and Mitchell Thomas pay close attention as the seconds slowly tick by, preparing to leave their class. This year, students have many activities to look forward to outside of school, so waiting for the bell to ring might be an endless wait. There are a variety of extracirricular activities after classes.

Endless are the days of Alameda High's student body. New students have an unlimited amount of classes to take and every year more electives are added on. Returning students concentrate on making more memories to last them through the year. It's in high school where most people discover their dreams and aspirations. School social life is when a strange face becomes a familiar one and where new friends are made. Many great achievements have been reached this year. Students searching for truth and knowledge find that four years just isn't long enough to find all the answers. The Hornet pride drives every student to do their best and show off their school spirit. There are some experiences that can only come from high school- the first ten page report assignment, first prom dress and tuxedo, first time driving around the blocks to find parking, etc... the list can go on and on ... endlessly! 1993-1994 brought to all more memories, dreams, old and new faces, and an unforgetable year. Students gained more knowledge with a drive to learn more from the awaiting experiences that next year will bring. The list is endless for what Alameda High School can give a fellow Hornet!

By: Linda Chin

Unity, spirit, laughter, and class competition are always in every assembly at Alameda High. The assemblies are even bettter when shared with friends. Assemblies range from a cultural to a spirit purpose. No matter what, Hornets endlessly enjoy the chance to have shorter periods and time to sit back, get spririted, and relearn what Hornet pride is all about.

Endless Friendships ... Cindy Loui, David Hoang, Danilo DelaCruz, Kim Lam, and Joanne Szeto share a lunch time together to eat and talk about what's going on in their day. Lunch time is a time where good friends can bond , and where acquaintances can get to know each other better. Plus, lunch is a time to relax from the strain of classes.

Whoever said that all work and no play makes a person dull hasn't met the Alameda High's Women Varsity Volleyball team. These girls know how to combine hard work, sportsmanship, and team cooperation into one energetic, lively game. Playing their best and ready to help another team mate is what Hornets are all about - looking out for others with an endless effort.

ENDLESS MEMORIES

A timid new student enters the main hall doors for the first time, not realizing that his life is about to change dramatically. He'll soon find out just how short five minutes can be. How can a student possibly rush between two building, go to his locker, stop at the bathroom and share all the latest gossip with his best friend in such a short time? Veterans to all of this are returning to a familiar routine. A million things are about to change right before their eyes.

Of all the things that happen in a year some just stay with you for a lifetime. You never forget the joy of your first formal dance or the tears of seeing your best friend graduate.

Through the years you return to the memories that you keep in a box locked in your heart and remember the happiest years of your life.

We want the camera on us! Junior Jenny Wilson, and seniors Sabrina Leslie, Emily Litvack, and Connie Flores pose for the camera in their 5th period T.V. Media class. T.V. Media is more of a behind the scenes look at video so they take every chance they get to be in front of the camera.

Friends till the end. Freshmen Sarah Burke and sophomore Paul Blasidale take a moment to display their endless friendship. Making friends and making memories go hand in hand at Alameda High School. They both know that being involved in school activies is the best way to enjoy high school.

Will somebody wake me when this is over? Jessica Faria relaxes her eyes during a college talk in the library pit. U.C. Berkley was one of the many schools to come and inform students about what their campus has to offer. Many students, like Jessica, take advantage of this opportunity to learn more about schools from around the nation.

AROUND CAMPUS

A.H.S. was faced with a year of endless challenges, new beginnings, changes, experiences and pressures, but once again Alameda High School has shown it's calm, cool and collective attitude. Hornets never fail to stick together when the going gets tough. All around campus this year students showed their laid-back individual styles!

With classes to go to, deadlines to meet and decisions to be made, this student body succeeded once again!

Alameda High Is...

"a place where you find who you are and who your true friends are."

- Marcie Tamura, Junior-

"a place where everybody and anybody fits in "

-Belinda Foster, Junior -

"is cool most of the time. Hopefully it will be better next year."

-Jimmy Esparza, Sophomore-

Standing in the hall...Nassim Sarrafzadeh, Alissa Dubois and Andrea Wilcock are happy that it's finally Friday!

Perfectly balanced, in front of the old building Everett Louis shows off his poise and talent.

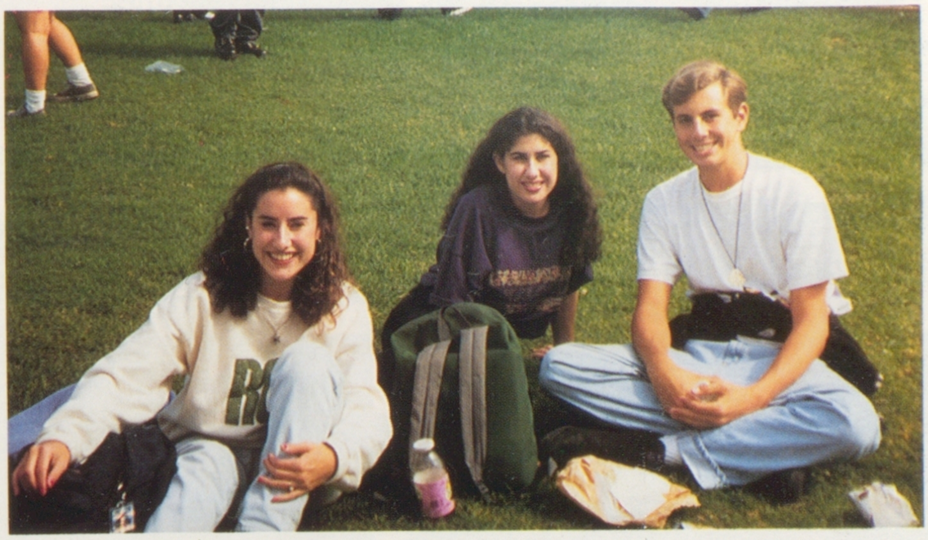
"Alright!" Sabrina Leslie and Traci Woodburn congratulate each after a hard day's work. They finally get an idea for a great layout for the 1994 yearbook.

On the way to fifth period after lunch Elizabeth Rogers, Andrea Theime and Bernadette Brown. Lunchtime never seems to be long enough to eat an entire lunch.

Lunching on the green, at the circle are Seniors Dara and Nikki Kaplan with Junior, Jamie Olson. The circle is a popular spot for lunch.



Pucker up Baby! Zach Ward and Tom Bennett are trying to get their way out of answering a question. Senioritis??? Definitely!

SPOOKY ENDLESS NIGHTMARES

Friday Oct. 29, 1993 marked the first annual Haunted House at Alameda High School in the school's cafeteria. It was sponsored by A.H.S's D.E.C.A., H.E.R.O., and Peer Counseling, and Encinal High School's D.E.C.A., R.O.T.C. and H.E.R.O.

A special time was set aside for the little kiddies on Saturday, the 30th at noon. The Haunted House became more gory and scary for adults at night. Kids were also trick-or-treating on Park Street. In the Haunted House, there was an operation table, where one of of the students was being disected. Also, there was a man-eating restaurant. The main course was a live human head. YUMMY! When one walked past the graveyard, watch out! Evil hands pulled in some lucky customers. The Haunted House was a huge success, especially with the eight haunted house scenes.

By: Ronald Ip, Homera Amiri, Crystal Martinez

> "It took a lot of time and people to make the Haunted House happen. And after all the hard work, it was definitely worth it." By: Elizabeth Baca

It's Wolfman Jones cutting of someone's leg in the restaurant scene! Let's get bloody here now! Be careful, you might be the next victim. Happy Halloween!!!

Junior Darlene Steveson from E.H.S. really digs Halloween. She must have fun disecting human bodies. All the guts she gets from the dead goes to the restaurant.

Mao Wang sneaks up on the Heineken Family. Poor kids, this is only the begining. There is more coming up. Zombies will jump out from the grave!

Encinal people ham it up for this picture before eating brains in a can. Where do they get these guts? Are they going bake it or stir fry? Enjoy the meal.

Encinal's Grand Jury awaits to deliver "Hell". Sure, everyone will have a fair trial. The red devil is waiting for one. See you again soon.

Hungry anyone? Today's haunted house special is a screaming Encinal student's head being served as a delicacy on a silver platter at the restaurant. Bon appetite toute monde.

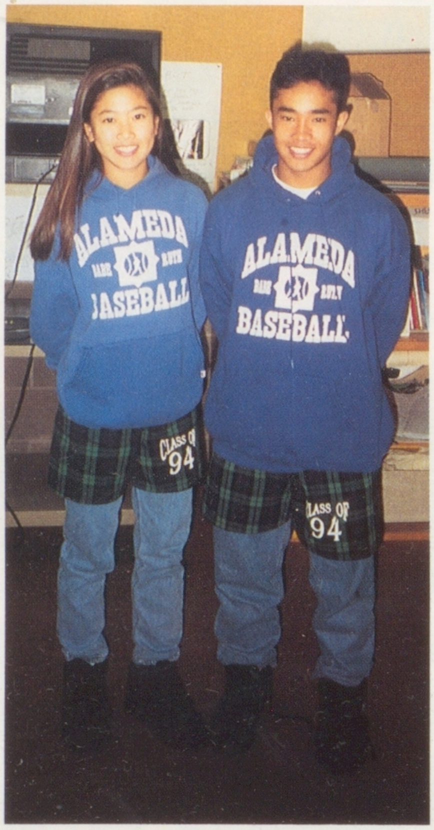
SPIRIT WEEK

" It's probably the best week of the school year because new friends are made and new talents are exhibited."- Ms. Mann, Spirit Cooridinator.

Spirit week at Alameda High School is a very exciting week for students who want to get involved with their class and compete for spirit points. Some of the spirit day themes were Nerd Day, Pajama Day, Clash Day, Class Color Day, and Twin Day.

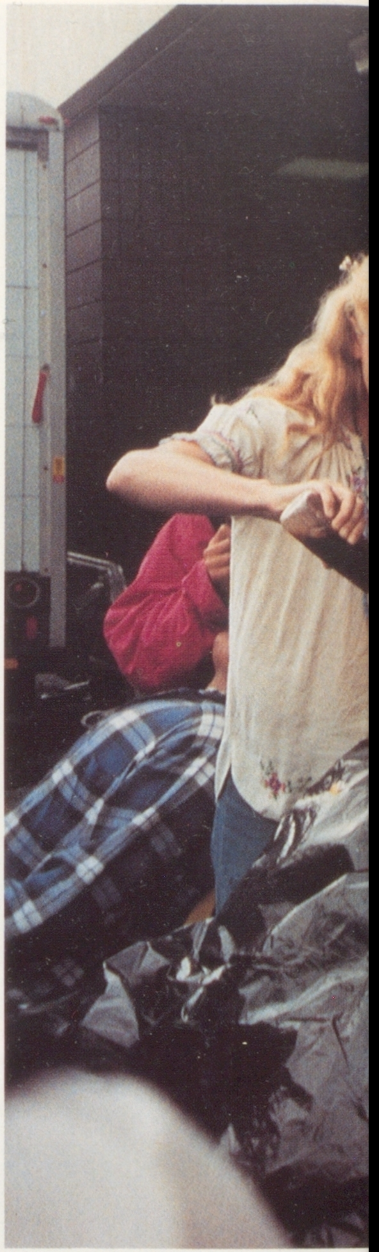
Through hard work and dedication the Senior class came in first place for Homecoming Spirit Week, Juniors and Sophomores tied for second place, and Freshman came in third place.

Fraternal or Identical ? Susan Lai and Joachim Luis dress as twins on Twin Day. The two of them actually could pass for twins. Ya' think?

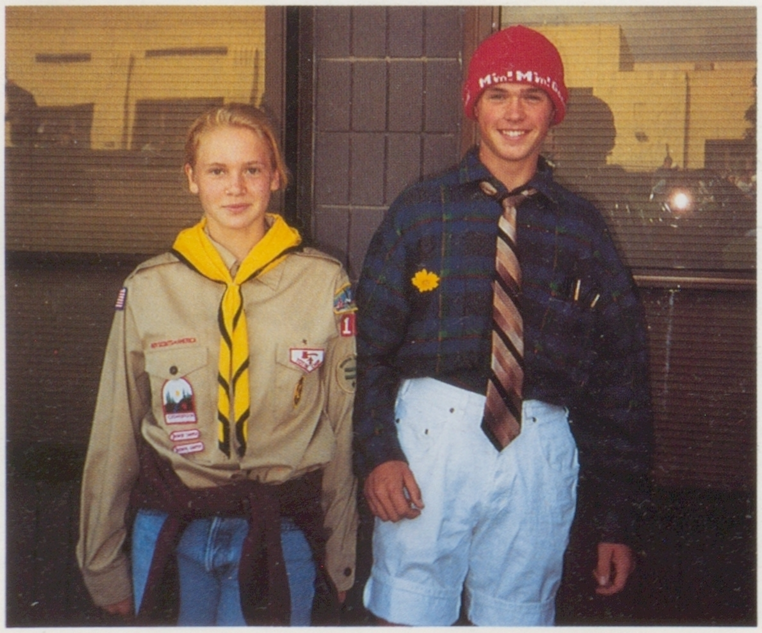


When we asked the President of Alameda High, Brian Wong who was also a member of the Senior Court what he thought of the Senior victory, he answered, " Homecoming Spirit Week was really fun for the Homecoming Court to dress up and show off their school spirit. Seniors definitely dressed up the best and Seniors rule."
Freshman, Teddy Lawton, comments on Brian Wong's statement, "Freshman are cool, but I can't say they rule!"

By: Kandace Blumberg
and Traci Woodburn



Huh, Huh, Huh! Jenny Shargel and Jeff Dierking portray nerds very well. The Sophomore class was very spirited during Homecoming spirit week and hopefully the Sophomore class will continue to be as spirited through their remaining years in high school.



Showing off their pajamas, Scott Hipol and Joy Sherratt are walking towards their classes in the old building. Joy and Scott look pretty comfortable in their pajamas. In the background, Nikki Kaplan is praying that she'll get to class in time.

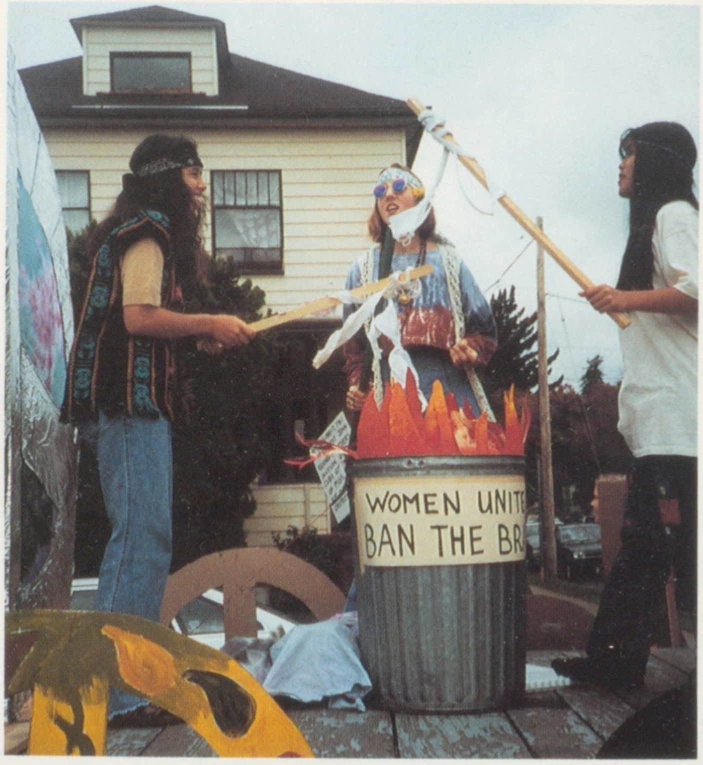
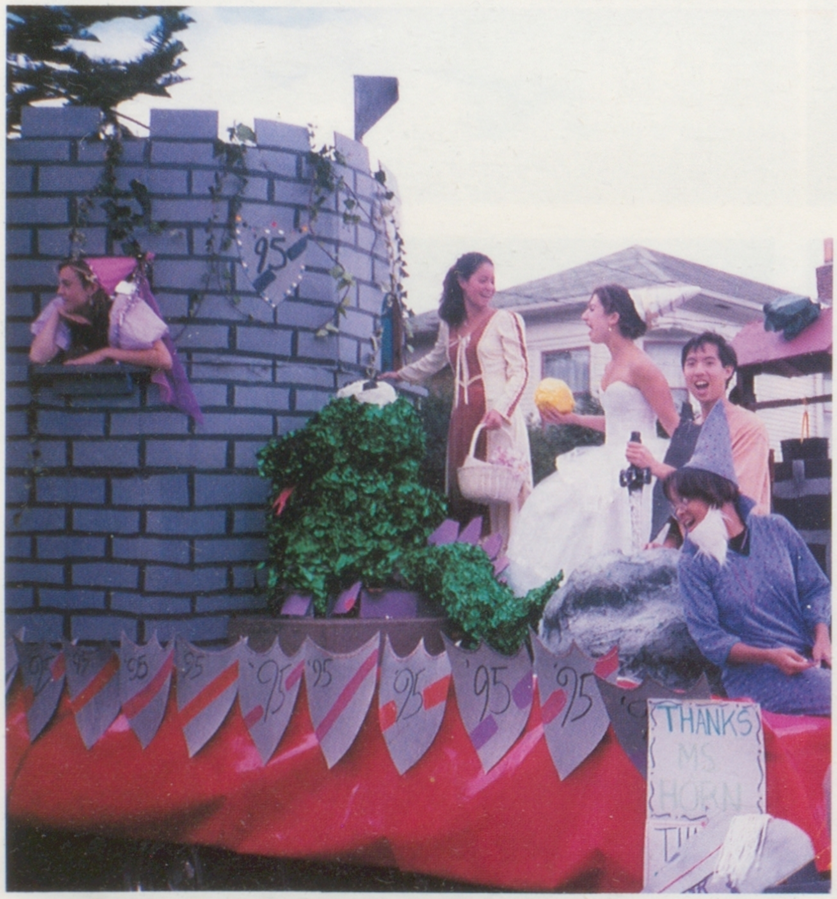
HOMECOMING PARADE

Here comes the Hornets Buzzing Through Time. On October 16, 1993, the students of AHS celebrated Homecoming. It was an exciting event and had lots of spirit. Ms. Mann quoted "This year float building reverted to the "Old Way" which seperated sites because the Marines site was under inspection the week of float building. Everyone pulled out the stops and the situation turned out okay because John Berry (the owners of Jerry's Automotive), Erin Thomson, and Matt Wyman (Christina Wyman's father) came through." The spirited Homecoming parade started at 10 o' clock in the morning on Encinal Ave., where they were seen by the judges. The parade was lead by the marching band, followed by a trail of cars carrying the Homecoming Court and school administrators. The parade circled around Park Street, Lincoln, and Walnut to show off the floats that each class worked so hard on.

Many people came to view. They all gathered onto Park Street to watch the parade. It was a very exhilarating event that everyone enjoyed.

Peace my sisters... Sophomores Lianne Scott, Christina Wyman, and Anna Sadie burns their bras to contribute to the Women's Movement, for their Homecoming theme, the Sixties.





A castle, a well, and a princess in distress...screaming Juniors Linda Monroe, Akala Peoples, Nassim Sarrafzadeh, Keith Chin and Andrea Wilcox are riding on the class of '95 Medieval float.

Grin and Dinosaur it... Seniors Kandi Blumberg, Traci Woodburn, Stephanie Toste, and Dara Kaplan, get ready to walk down the streets and support their number one class!

Playing a few bars... the AHS marching band leads the parade through the streets of Alameda.

Working hard! Freshmen Cindy Chen and Kelley Skinner try to make their float the best. Not bad for first timers.

SENiORS C/O 1994

Victory is ours! Seniors Carrie Marill, Dianna Moran, Natalie King, and Jessica Faria lead the Senior float to first place.

PEACE NOW
MAKE LOVE NOT WAR

Top Ten Things To Do At Float Building

1. Have your friend lie down on the ground and outline their bodies with paint.
2. Play with the power tools.
3. Paper mache your friend.
4. Paper mache anything in sight.
5. Send a spy over to the other building spots to see what your competition is up to.
6. Eat.
7. Chase people with wet paint brushes.
8. Watch the video that the class spy took on the competition.
9. Teach your friends about the history of chicken wire braiding.
10. Help build your float.

HOMECOMING GAME!

On Saturday, October 16, 1993, the Alameda Hornet JV and Varsity football teams played at Burrell Field, against Kennedy High.

People who turned out for the JV game were very spirited for their fellow Hornets. Even though the JV team lost, they played a very tough game. Paulo Luis ran about 98 yards for a touch down and ran back a kickoff for a touchdown. Others, who played well were Alan Levi and Abdullah Dadgar. Unfortunately, Kennedy won with a score of 20 - 14.

The Varsity game made up for the JV loss, by winning 48 - 6. Despite the light rain, Domingo Reynolds, Dan Nguyen, and Jeremy Castro played well. Dan Nguyen scored the most touch downs during the game.

It was a cold and rainy day, and the halftime show entertained the crowd filling up the stands. The cheerleaders were just as spirited as always, rooting away for the Hornets.

The court crowning was a thrill for all. Elegantly dressed, the female nominees received flowers for being nominated, and were escorted onto the stage by the U. S. Marines color guard. The male nominees were escorted by the Alameda High School cheerleaders. What a game, it will be remembered for years to come.

By: Homera Amiri

Watch out! Paulo Luis tries to score for his team as he tries to avoid being tackeled as the crowd cheers him on.

Go Hornets! The cheerleaders root for their fellow Hornets. Cheerleaders were always a big insperation to the players and the crowd.

Stuck in the middle, the Hornets push to keep Kennedy off our goal.

Working real hard for his team! Danny Trinh sure is on top of things.

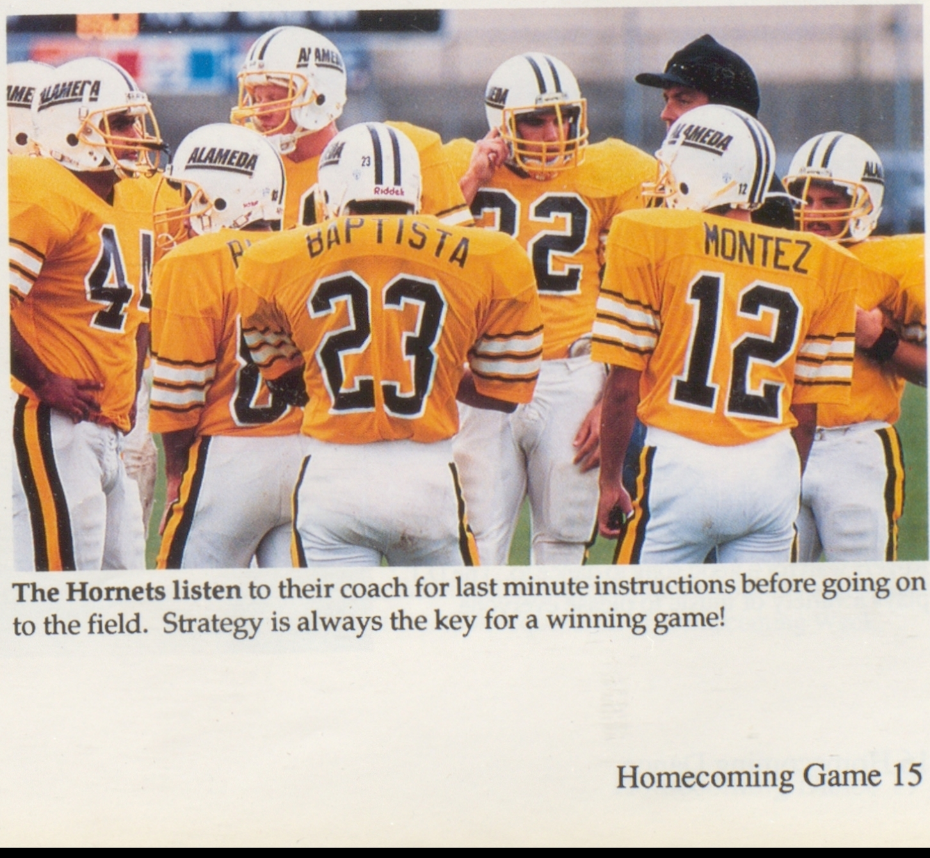
The Hornets tackle Kennedy. They're working very hard. As Dan Nguyen tries to work his way through the crowd.

Again -the Hornets try to keep Kennedy away from the Hornet's goal. The Hornet's defense was very successful. Go Hornets!!



The Hornets listen to their coach for last minute instructions before going on to the field. Strategy is always the key for a winning game!

Hornets Stung With Homecoming Fever

After our varsity win over Kennedy High, students gathered at the Alameda High gym to celebrate the victory from 8-11p.m.

Leadership members and other students set up the gym for soon-to-arrive students. Dee-jay Powerhouse Productions played a variety of tunes that students requested to keep them grooving. There was Super Nintendo's Street Fighter on an oversized screen for those who needed a break from the fast-paced action on the dance floor. Photos were taken by Prestige Portraits to capture those special moments. Refershments were served by members of the leadership class and the court was recognized in the Homecoming Walk.

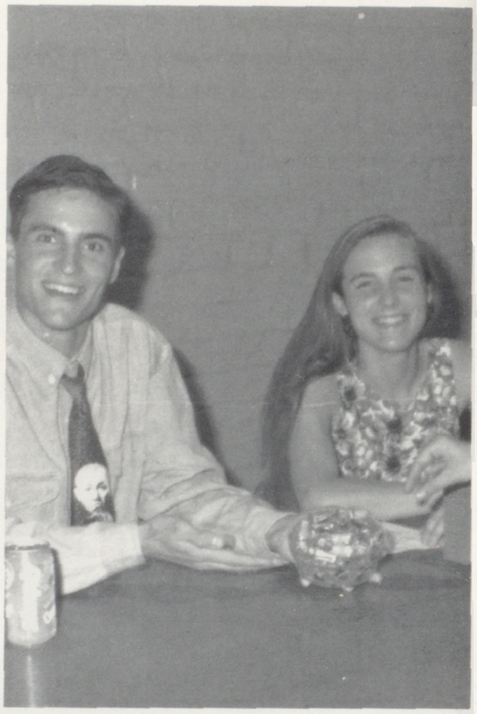
Junior Lisa Hansen found the dance just as enjoyable, "It was a really neat dance because it was different than ones I'd ever been to because there was such a wide variety of music and so many new faces."

Everyone looks forward to next years Homecoming, which will hopefully be as successful as this years. It was agreat ending to a very exciting and victorious day.

By: Monika Moore and Tiffany Beeler

"It was a nice atmosphere and I enjoyed the head-thumping, disco-fever music. This eased the tension bulit up in me due to the stressful situations I am faced with at Alameda High," said enthusatic sophomore Mike Desai.

Thisty anyone? Senior Matt Shargel and Junior Andrea Wilcock sell drinks for Leadership. Buying drinks is a good way to take a break and relax before the next dance.



All dressed up and ready to go... Everyone enters through the doors, expecting to have a great time at the Homecoming Dance. Leadership volunteers help collect tickets and money for admissions.

Resting on the bleachers...Matthew Ybarra, Danny Kellenberger, Kelan O'Neil, and Ryan Rogers wait for a good song to dance to. The D.J. plays a variety of music to please everyone.

Having fun yet? Karen Rivas, Angelique Parras, Lindsay Rafela, and Zerlina Leon enjoy their first Homecoming dance, while socializing with each other.

Raise your hands if you're sure! Everyone is having a good time, slow dancing to another memorable song played by Powerhouse Productions! Powerhouse Productions took requests all of Homecoming Week.

HARVEST FAIRE

November 5, 1993 was a perfect, sunny day for the Peer Counseling class to host Alameda High's annual Harvest Faire. That day's lunch was extended to about two hours, so that everyone would be able to have a great time, eat all the food they wanted and not have to worry about getting to class after only an hour. All the clubs participated in this event by making a kind of food that they thought would represent what their club was about. There was a wide variety of food from all over the world. One example of the food that was made were a Mexican dish including a taco, rice, and beans. Clubs who didn't make a main dish provided drinks, candy, face painting and desserts. "The circle" was filled with people waiting in lines to have a chance to eat their favorite kinds of food(s) and even to try something new that they have never eaten before. At the end of the lunchtime all the clubs started selling their food for a lower price. People are definitely looking forward to the next one.

In the middle of all the festivities, Principal Betty Ruark and President Brian Wong presented the student body with the National Blue Ribbon Award and Flag that was awarded to Alameda High in Washington D.C.

"The Circle" gets incredibly crowded during the annual and exciting Harvest Faire.

The cheerleaders are one of the many groups that sold food on the day of Harvest Faire. China Crawford and Elisa Gomez happily sell cookies, brownies, and rice crispy treats. China and Elisa show off their glowing smiles and school spirit just like they do at games.

Art and English teacher, Ms. McAllister and one of the Alameda's counselors, Ms. Sherratt chat one on one while they munch on their special Harvest Faire lunches. Not only do the sudents at A.H.S enjoy Harvest Faire, but so do the teachers and other staff.

THE ENDLESS BATTLE

On October 29, 1993, the thirty-eigth annual Island Bowl was held at Willie Stargell field. It was a very clear afternoon as the Alameda fans basked in the sunlight. They watched their team take the lead in the first half. The excitement continued through the fourth quarter until the lead was stolen away from the Hornets.

In the last four minutes of the game, Encinal rallied with a two touchdown come back. As the mid-afternoon sun began to set in the sky, The Hornets walked off the field just short of a big game win.

"We all played with our hearts, it was a very good fight."

-Teddy Lawton-

"I really thought we'd win......even in the last few minutes-I think the "cool guys" over confidence helped them win this game. That's okay.... Basketball season starts in two weeks!!! See ya'all at the big game! Go Hornets!!!

-Nassim Sarrafzadeh-

"It was exciting when we were winning in the first half. Everyone was very energetic."

-Sabrina Leslie-

By: Tiffany Beeler

Showing Hornet pride. Jenny Olson, Jenny Shargel, Kim Eliason, Andrea Wilcock and Chrissy Guttleben look very enthusiastic as they show their spirit at the bit game. Going to games is only one of many ways that students show their spirit.

Great hit! Danny Trinh makes a spectacular tackle as Joachim Luis hopes to get there on time to get in on the hit. Joachim can only watch Danny as he takes the Jet to the ground in the big game.

BUTTERFINGERS! Clumsy Encinal Jets miss tackle Senior running back Dan Nguyen as he heads off to the end zone and a touch down.

Let's go team! The Alameda Hornet cheerleaders help hype up the Killer Hornets to smash the Jets in the big game.

Off to play. The stingin' Hornets rush to kill the "vicious" Encinal Jets during the Island Bowl.

Top 10 Things To Do At A Football Game

1. Socialize
2. Cheer (Go Hornets!)
3. Watch the Game
4. Get a tan andwindburn
5. Drink the "wisely chosen" Safeway Select your rival school insisted on selling at triple the actual cost.
6. Watch the great halftime show.
7. Chill -while living up to Alameda's cool image.
8. Try and get into the game without paying.
9. Scam for potential dates.
10. Take pictures.

ENDLESS UNITY

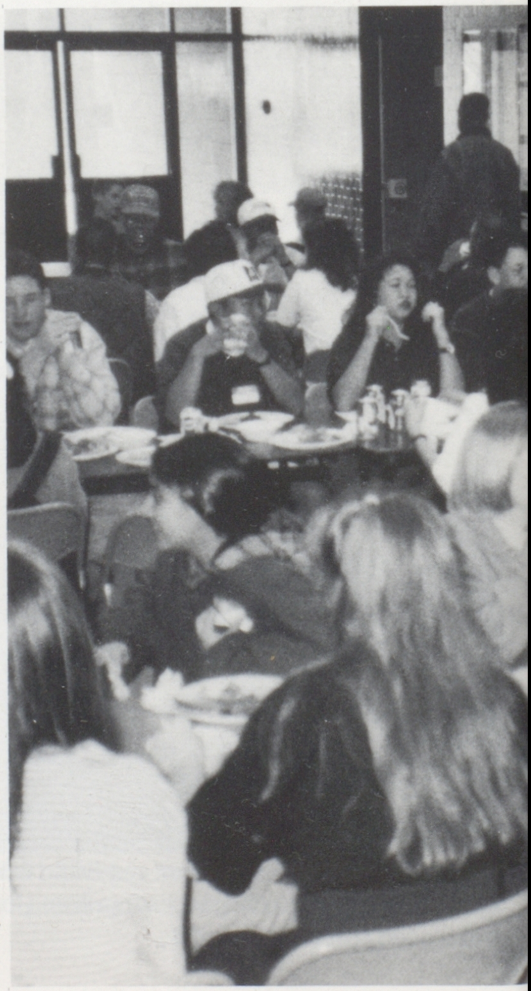
"Can't we all just get along?" Are the famous words of Rodney King alive at Alameda High? At AHS there is a diffrent way of bonding together. January 22,1994 was the annual Unity Day. The event was held in Alameda High's media center and went from 9am to 3pm. Unity Day was planned by students of Alameda High with the help of Mrs. Guthery and Mrs. Sherratt."We had a wonderful guest speaker who talked about his own troubles in life and how he pulled his life together. Everyone enjoyed Unity Day and everyone participated in all the activities." says Mrs. Sherratt,the head counselor and participant in this successful day.

Unity Day had a lot of different, fun events for the kids and there was plenty of help from teachers and parents. Parents helped with the bagel and cream-cheeses breakfasts and the lasagna and salad lunches. Real relaxing massages were taught by Mr. Riccardi and Mr. Fairfield."The teacher participation was great. They showed the kids how to have fun. The students got to meet all kinds of new people." says Antonio Proctor.

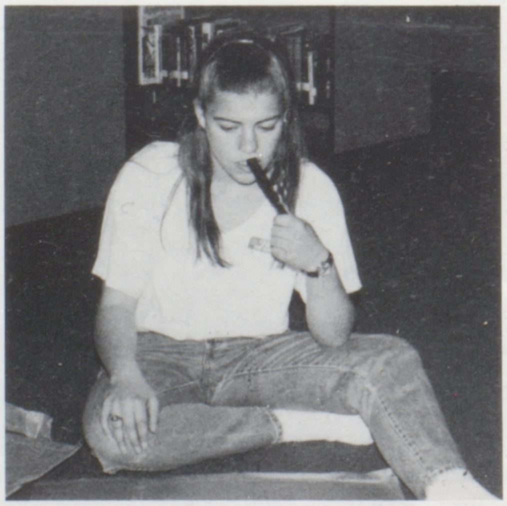
By: Jessica Page

"What can drugs do?" Misha Nayfield and Brad McIntrye give an example on the effects of drugs and how it's better to stay away from them.

All stretched out and twisted up with spirit is the only way to describe Dianna Moran on this successful Unity Day.

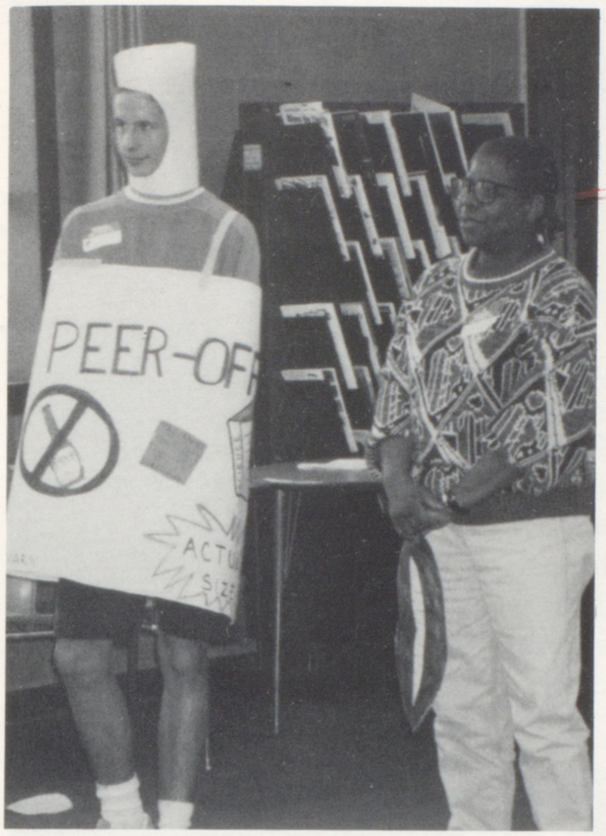


What an inspiration! The speaker for this year's Unity Day is Daniel Augustus.

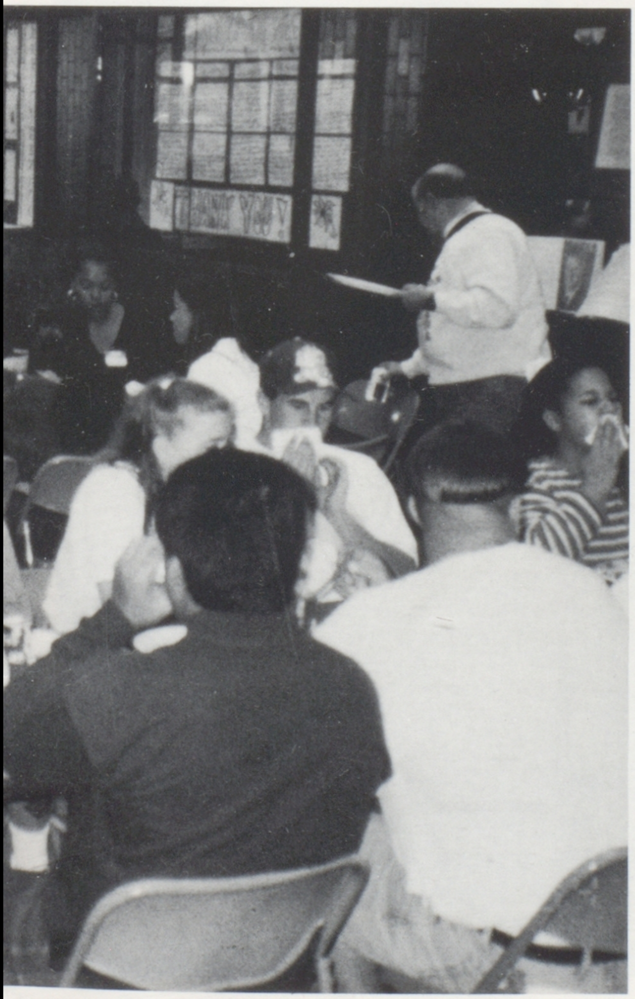


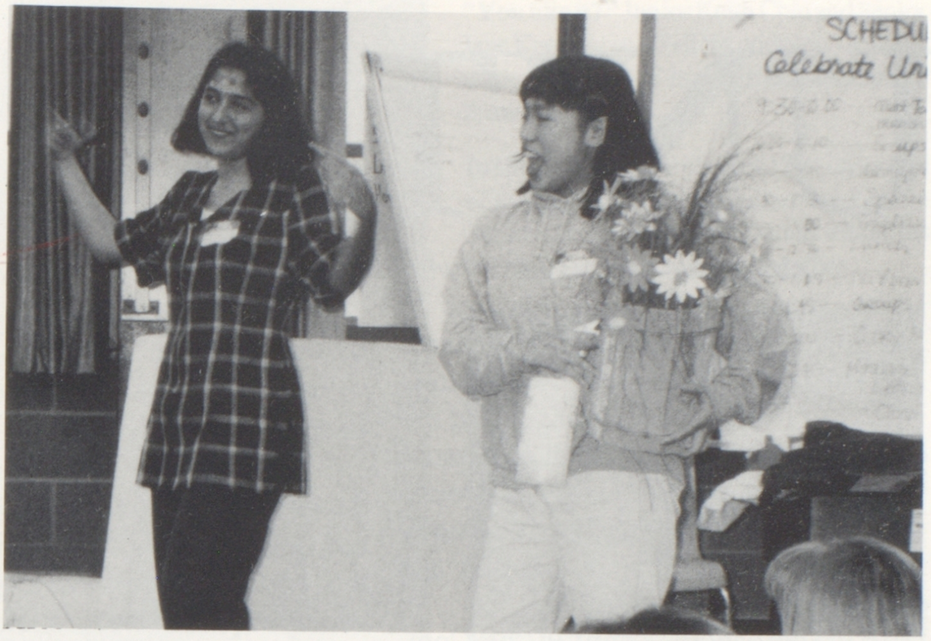
Hard at work preparing the materials that will used on theUnity Day skits is Alissa Dubois.

"What is that?" It's not just an average beer bottle. Students learn how to say 'no' to pressure on alcohol.



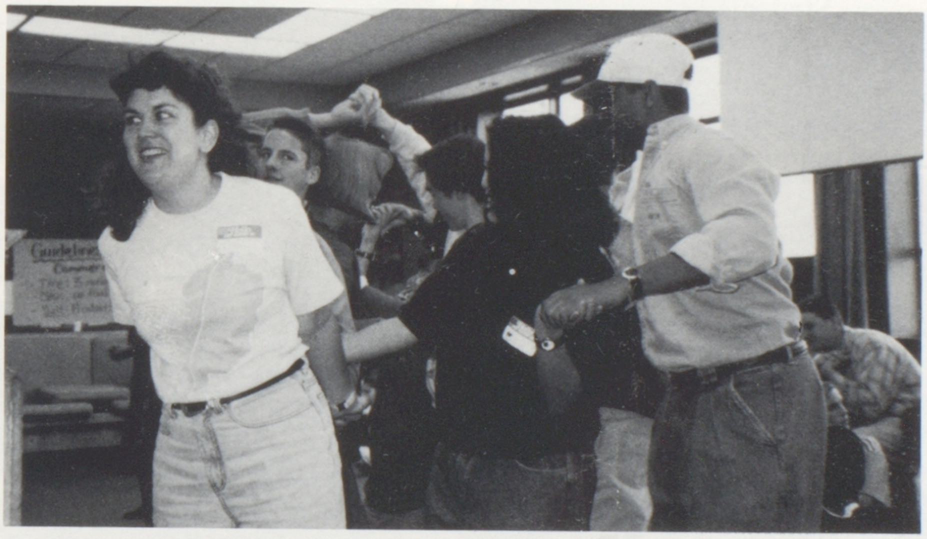
"Lunchtime!" Everyone takes a break from the exciting activities and enjoy some lasagna and salad in the Main Hall. Students need food for thought too!

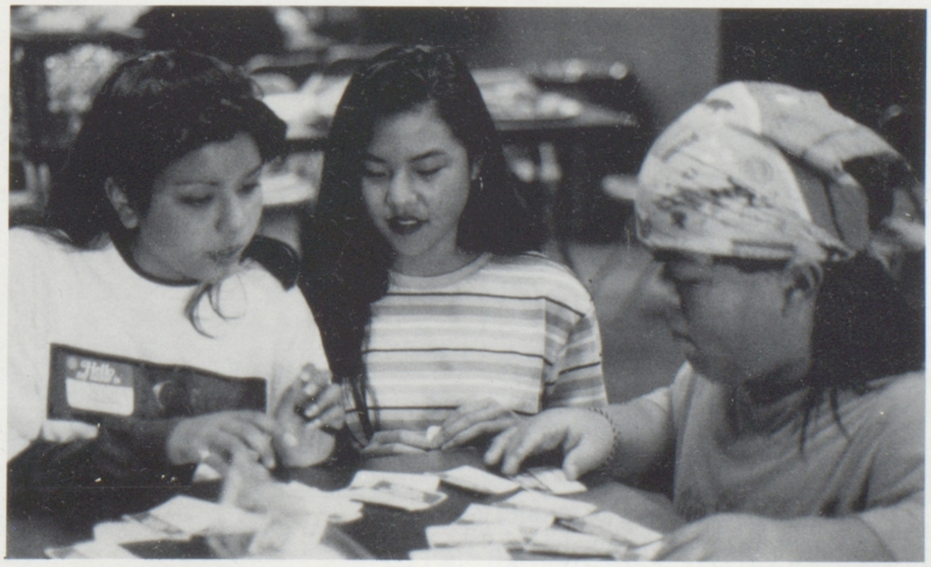




"Save the Earth" Sonny Aurang and Suzie Gee are giving an excellent demonstration on saving the precious Earth by caring for the plants and environment.

All tied up with Unity Day are Janet Mann, Chris Saali, Jason Kinchelow, and Bella Lui in a silly group activity that requires cooperation and team work.





"What is your name?" Jackie Fernandes, Lynn Chiu and Jon Ibarra are responsible for the name tags which allow people to get to know one another better.

UNITY WEEK

Celebrating Us! That is what Unity Week is all about this year at Alameda High. This one week of March 28 to April 1 is dedicated to educating students of various backgrounds and traditions, and giving every student a chance to express their individuality. Through this sharing of different identities, unity within Alameda High is honored and celebrated.

The dance, "Unity in the Community" on Friday, March 25 introduces the week ahead. The theme of the dance is 70's and prizes are rewarded to students who dressed up to the theme. All proceeds are given to charity.

Students are given the opportunity to create their own personal quilt squares which are later sewn together by the leadership class. The complete and united quilt is displayed at the assembly kicking off the "Celebrating Us" Unity Week. The inspirational speaker, John Alston also gives a motivational presentation at the assembly.

During the week, various activities are held at lunch, such as spirit competitions, fun games, dance lessons, and cooking classes.

On the last day of Unity Week, the annual food faire takes place. Clubs and organizations that participate in this extended lunch event, provide a variety of different and delicious foods. As entertainment, students give performances displaying many cultures.

Unity Week of 1994 is a time during the school year when Celebrating Us is endless.

> "I learn a lot about other people's culture, not just my own. The week is a very fulfilling experience."
> - Christina Jung-

Are you using that marker? Senior Joachim Luis takes time out to make his personal unity square while helping to putting the quilt together.

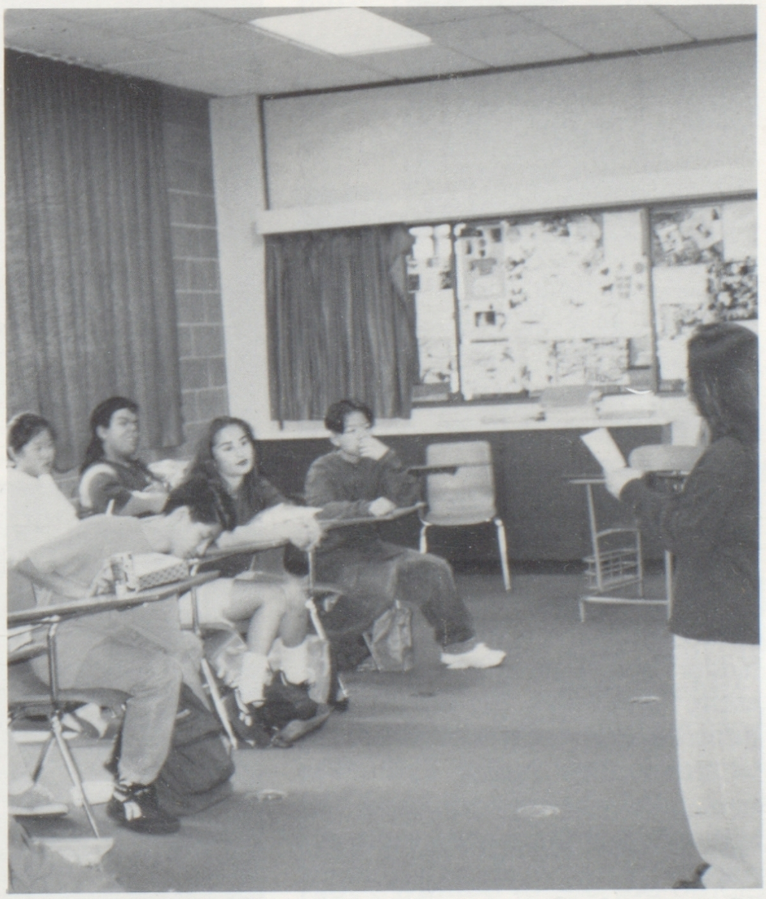
In the making. The class of 1994 lay out all of their expressive quilt squares before the Senior class officiers spend countless hours trying to sewing them all together.

All together now! Many Club and Organization reps attend the first Food Faire meeting to discuss the many plans they have in mind and to organize the Unity Week Food Faire.



Listen up people! Freshman Cam Tran conducts the class meeting concerning the Food Faire for Unity Week. They are planing to sell delicious root bear floats!

OUR TOWN AND PICNIC

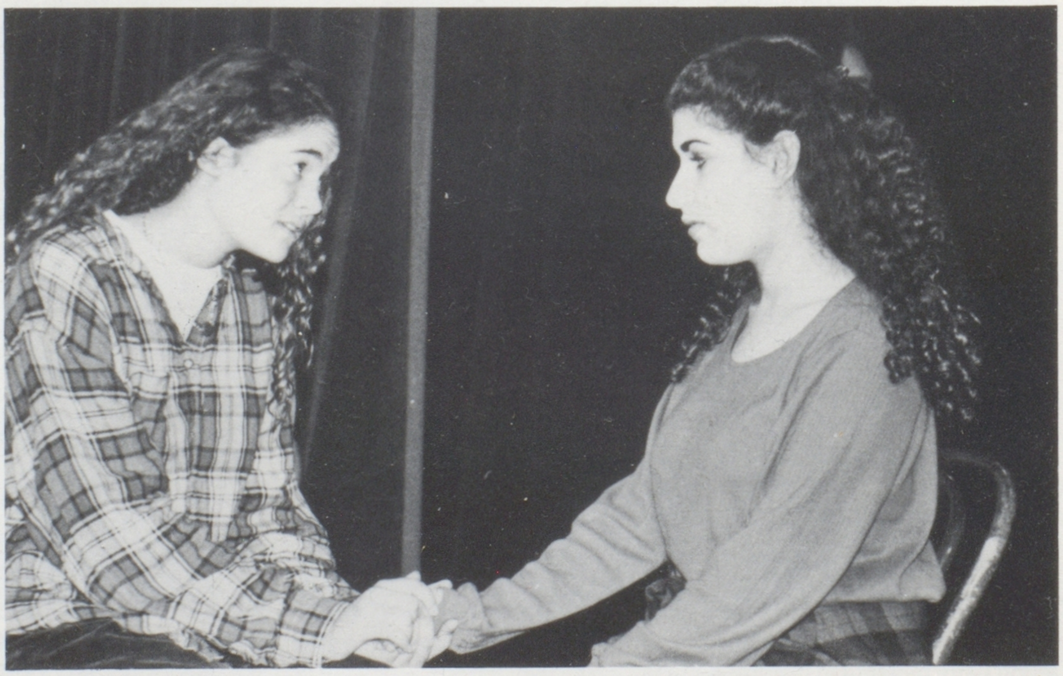
Giving an emotional performances in Our Town is Joy Sheratt. Jon Harmon and Joy moved everyone who saw their tale of falling in love too young.

Don't give me that. James Comport and Jack Mc Cormack are both familiar faces to the AHS stage. Performing in every production since" Mid- Summer Night's Dream" last year,the audience truly enjoys watching them on stage.

As opening night draws near,the tension increaseswith actors having last minute costume fittings and ladders on the stage being used to hang lights which create obstacles for the actors.

Alameda High School is famous for their fall plays. and this year the drama class chose to produce the condensed versions of "Our Town" and "Picnic", with simple sets, two ladders and some imagination. The entire show was performed with limited scenery. The actors were left to strech their acting abilites to convince themselves and the audience that there were walls and doors when there was truly nothing. The school was moved my the powerful performances and eagerly awaits the next drama production.

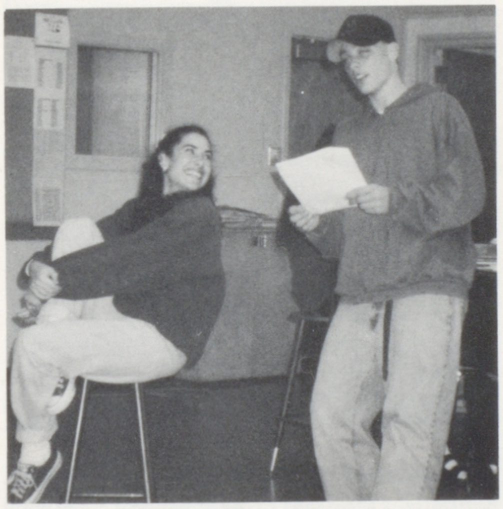
By Kimberley Joy Miner



Now dear calm down... Erica Centurion comforts fellow actress Nikki Kaplan during a scene in "Picnic." While both have been in drama since their Freshmen years, Erica is starting to get more exposure on stage.

THE SOUND OF MUSIC

Taking a break from their hard work and practice, Martin Lajoie and Meghann Brock sit and seriously discuss the play.



"I am 17 going on 18": Nathan Frye sings to co-star Dara Kaplan.

Alameda High's Drama Department is alive with "The Sound of Music". The play not only included musical regulars, but talented newcomers making their debut.

"I'm excited about the show because everybody's so equally talented and I'm glad I'm able to do this part, since it's my last year at Alameda High." -Joy Sherratt- (Maria)

"This is my first year in a musical and it's great! I like being around my fellow actors, we all have a bond." -Nathan Frye- (Rolfe)

"This is the most glorious musical we've ever done!" -Fred Chacon-

This year's musical was a smashing success. All musical veterans will be long remembered and A.H.S will look forward to seeing the newcomers next year.

By: Kandi Blumberg, Traci Woodburn, and Antonio Proctor

Some of the cast members take time out for a giggle after a silly mistake.

> "Every year I have been in the plays and this year I wanted to experience something new.I decided to ask if I could be assistant director. I really would like to make performing my career so, I wanted to see the other side of making plays."
> -Stephanie Toste- (Assistant Director)

ASSEMBLIES

The chatter of the students fills the auditorium as they eagerly await the assembly to begin. This year's assemblies focused more on uniting the classes together and promoting school spirit with more class competions and ice breaking activities.

The good thing about assemblies is that the schedule is changed to accomindate both groups of students to watch the assembies. Third period is extended while half of the school goes first, and the other half goes second.

During most assemblies, both the J.V. and Varsity Cheerleaders perform. "I like to perform, but I feel that studentsdon't like to watch our performances. That takes the fun out of performing." said Junior Elizabeth Baca.

Assemblies such as Spirit Week, and rallies before big games enable students to come together to share a unique moment. Each assembly is special to everyone it their own way!

It's the Jamaican bobsled team! Together Juniors Lyra Trevino and Everett Louis scoot around in their authentic rasta-man bobsled, after they beat the Encinal Bobbit team.

Follow the leader with the biggest butt! Here are Seniors Traci Woodburn, Dara Kaplan, Jane Kang, and Elaine Chin.

"This year we tried to make assemblies more student oriented. We try to get more students to participate in assemblies,because that's what assemblies are all about."

- Susan Lai, A.S.B. Vice President-

ENDLESS PLANNING

It was late, it was raining"once more team"said the influental Ms.Andrews,in the middle of another long and tiring dress rehearsal for the second annual Prom Faire.After countless hours of practice and endless hours of perparation, the Prom Faire was truly a success. Everything one would need to get ready for a prom was represented: tuxedo rentals, florists, limousine services, formal wear and restaurant referrals. This year Ms. Andrew's R.O.P and D.E.C.A. classes took class time to contact the organizations who were chosen to be represented in the prom faire this year.After all was said and done, it proved to be a very memorable evening for all the students who were involved.

You are cordially invited to the second annual Prom Faire!

Cooperation and friendship is necessary to put on a good Prom Faire as Ryan Meyer, Quyen Nguyen and Joan DelRsario demonstrate in this photo. Everyone in the class became good friends this year.

Preparations run wild a week from Prom Faire as Tyrell Patrick is fitted for his tuxedo and shoes.

Guiding her students in the Prom Faire event, Ms. Andrews is giddy.

"Prom Faire was an exciting event that benefits all district students"

-Ms.Andrews-

[director of the event]

"Prom Faire was a good work experience because students got to work with other students and business' as well."

-Dianna Moran-

"As a student in Deca class Prom Faire was one of the most complicated assignments I worked on all year.

-Tannie Fung-

"Prom Faire was a really cool thing to have my freshman year.It gave me ideas about stuff for prom in two years.

-Jose Cerda-Zein-

FADS AND FASHIONS

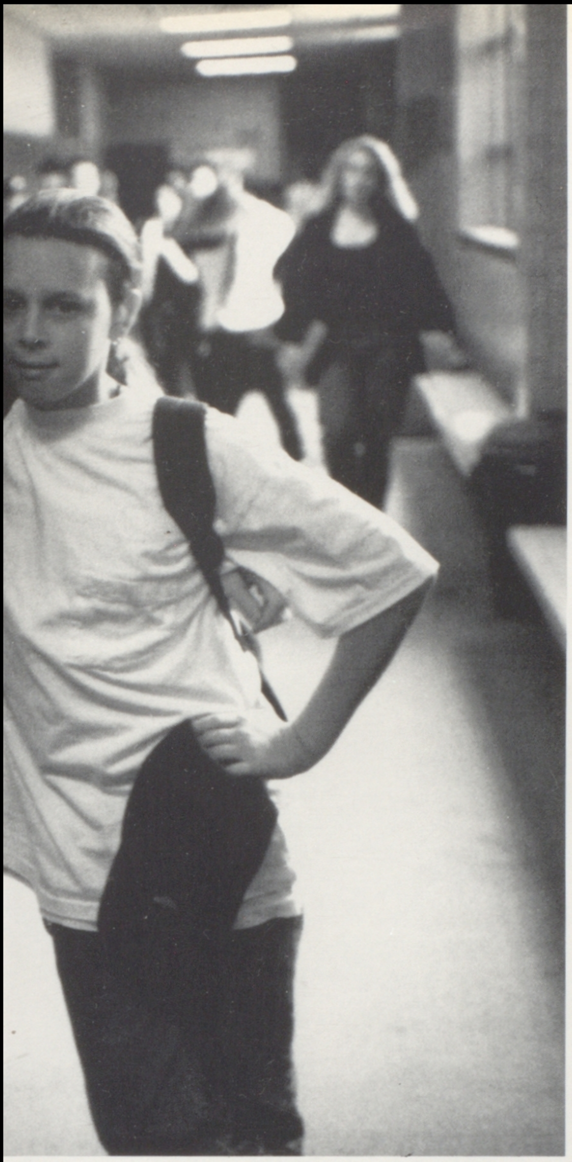
Every day students walk down the hall at Alameda High School their minds are boggled by the latest in fashions and trends. From over-sized, mixed matched plaids, to that girl who sits in front in history with blue hair, students are continualy faced with fashion frIendly classmates.

A trend that has made its way through the main hall doors is one that will probably stay for a long time. That trend is dressing comfortably. "Being yourself is being comfortable with who you are and that's why people are more themselves with their own comfortable styles." said Sunnie Azadimani. The "Grunge" look made its mark this year and put a question on everybody's mind. "Grunge to me is just to put an odd twist to your outfit." said Sabrina Leslie. Some girls have been seen in the AHS halls wearing nice dresses and combat boots.Though this isn't a new style, it is becoming more popular and people are expanding on it, using their own personality and taste.

A blast from the past has found its way to our classroom. Platform shoes and bell-bottoms look like they are here to stay. Bell-bottoms ranging from jeans to free flowing pantsuits create a comfortable, but not neccessarily affordable, look. Baggy pants have also become a classic look. More commonly seen on boys, girls rapidly caught on to this by adding a body suit and/or over sized body suit. The students of AHS are always making a statment with their clothes, but more importantly they are comfortable being themselves and hanging out with their friends.

By Kimberley Joy Miner

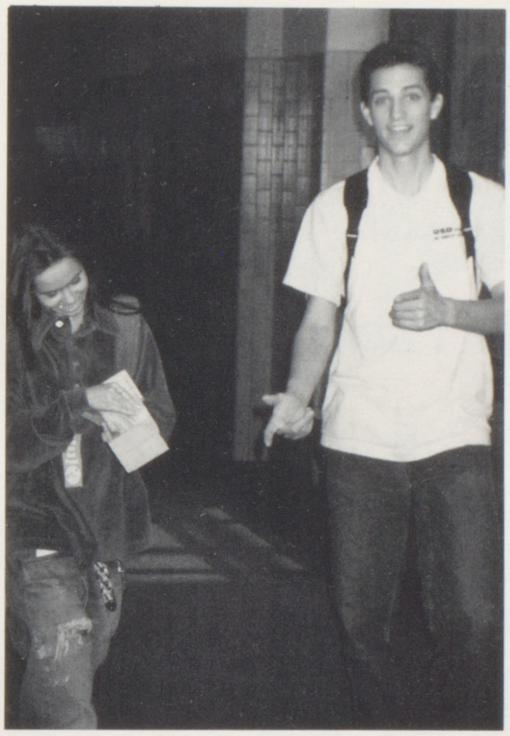
Nordstrom? Macys? The Salvation Army!?!?Many people find many inexpensive ways to express them selves. A simple trip to the thrift store can give you access to fashionble clothes that won't eat away at your wallet.



MOM DONT PANIC...IT WILL WASH OUT IN TWO TO THREE WEEKS. Jenny Wilson, Bonnie Joy, and Josh Brown show their true colors through their hair style. Jenny chose a dark red ,Bonnie shocked the school with a bright blue,and Josh choose a passionate purple.

My Levis 501s Soniga Hagen and Zach Ward strool down the hall in their comfy jeans. Five sizes too big or a perfect fit jeans are seen in every shape and form in the AHS halls.

Always looking their best are, freshman Ethiopia Bekele and Samrawit Mosazgi These best friends are never seen with out smiles or each other.



Best Friends.... Jane Kang, Stephanie Tostie, Josh Tabasaura, and Silivia Ahn. Another popular thing was to have a smile on your face and to be with your friends.

Hats, Hats everywhere. Baseball hats are still a fad and probably always will be. Forward, backwards, sideways, insideout, hats are here to stay.

ENDLESS DREAMS

The Seniors of 1994, a class that will never be forgotten. The Senior year is something very special. It is a year filled with feelings of excitement and anticipation, with special friends and lasting memories. Most importantly, it is a year full of questions: Will SAT scores be high, what jobs will be available after school, and what exactly does the future hold? But as the seniors venture out into the real world for the first time, they will always remember the one thing they have learned during their years at Alameda High - that although High School has ended, one thing that is endless are their dreams.

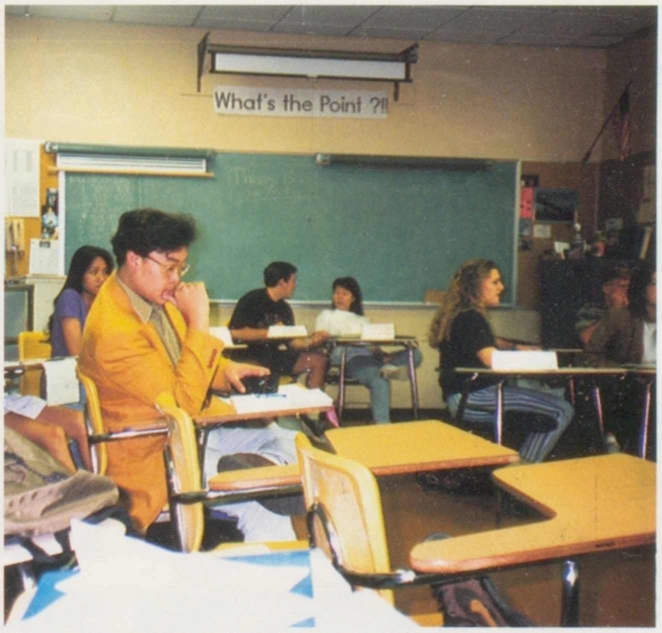
Meeting adjourned! Being a class officer shows spirit along with great leadership skills!. But you don't have to be just an officer, attending class meetings show spirit too! Here Seniors Jason Chin, Matthew Shargel, and Lindsey Litchfield lounge with some pizza at La Val's where they held one of many Senior class meetings. They have learned to work together as a class in planning special activities. I hope they got enough pizza, you can't work on an empty stomach!



What's the Point ?!!

Every girl's crazy 'bout a sharp dressed man! Senior Ronald Ip dresses up nicely as he works hard during Mr. Manno's reinactment of the Constitutional Convention. These special activities help students learn and understand the lesson better. I'm sure all of his fellow students, along with Mr. Manno, are impressed.

These guys are "A" Students! Zach Ward and Tom Bennett compliment the awesome work that Bron Taj and Nick Brunetti are doing on Ms. Kameny's graphic assignment. They epitomize what superlative skill and cooperation that the Senior class has. These skills are important to them if they are to succeed in the real world.

SENIOR MEMORIES

High school happens once in a lifetime. For the class of '94, the past four years have been memorable and exciting. The blue lockers and the crowded hallways have become familiar sights. The class of '94 has always been on the cutting edge. Whether it has been homecoming floats, class competitions, or just plain spirit, the class of 1994 has shared a united identity. Through the laughter, tears, and friendship, these four years became a stepping stone for seniors to grow, while preparing them to break through into new challenges.

The class of 1994 has had many lasting impressions to remember. The long road to graduation never ends; it just divides. Before the class of 1994 says its goodbyes, they grab a handful of memories. Each memory is a souvenir.

Each one-- Endless...

ENDLESS ADVENTURES

As the busy school year rolled on, many seniors found themselves needing a break from their stressful student lives. This was necessary especially after three years at Alameda High School. They searched for places away from textbooks,homework, and stress.

Any type of vacation,or break from reality, was welcomed by the seniors, whether it lasted three months or two days. Seniors spent their time lounging, and taking it all in. Vacation gave seniors freedom.

Some soared off into strange andfaraway lands where not a word of English was spoken; others began their search for excitement in the local backroads. Seniors spend their time exploring a world full of endless adventures waiting to be discovered!

TOP 10 REASONS FOR SENIORITIS

1. Your bed is more comfortable.
2. After 4 years, everyone needs a break.
3. Because we are SENIORS.
4. Same old lectures.
5. You hate the orange walls.
6. Taco Bell is better.
7. Teachers with coffee breath.
8. You become addicted to soap operas.
9. Too busy hanging out at Lyon's 24/7.
10. You need to get a tan.

Class of 1994

Like dreams held by survivors of the past, we hold visions for tomorrow. Visions of unity. But segregation stands to our challenge. We strive for the day when our separate colors: black, white, red, yellow , brown - will come togethe on the canvas of hope and mix to make: One shade of beautiful, one shade o love, one shade of equality. Like the colors of a quilt united and mixed - integrated and equal. And those who gave a part of themselves for the quilt are the makers of tomorrow's dreams. This is unity.

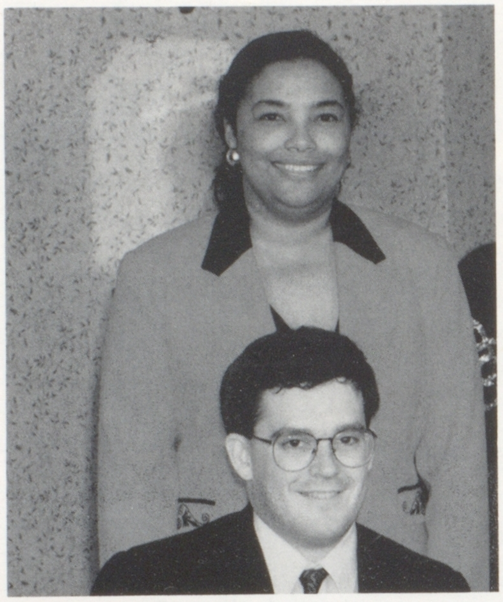
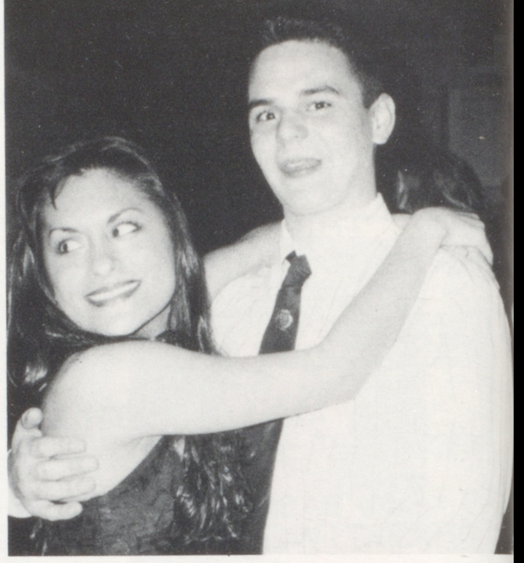
SENIOR BANQUET

Dedication, hard work, and patience is what the Class of '94 wants to thank Ms. Bramlette and Mr. Mc Cracken for. During the past three years, Ms. Bramlette supervised in the class activities, organizing the Leadership class and balancing the production of the Yearbooks. No matter how busy she was, she still had time to attend class fundraisers and activities. Mr. Mc Cracken' s room may be a mess after a class meeting and he may have gotten a headache from all the screaming and debating about activities and prom colors, but it was all worth it, when he announced the Senior class Bests and Most Likely To's at the Senior Banquet!

By: Linda Chin



Thank you, Ms. Bramlette and Mr. McCracken for always being there and helping!



Over there! Where? Andrea Heinly and Pau Katich dance and see who their friends are with A guys' night out: all dressed up and ready tc receive their awards in a cool, confident way.

Making a fashion statement and always speaking their minds are Elen Clark, Kelly Holt, Roxann Lo, Melanie Standwood, Juliana Katch, Athena Ruggiero, and Kristen Smith.

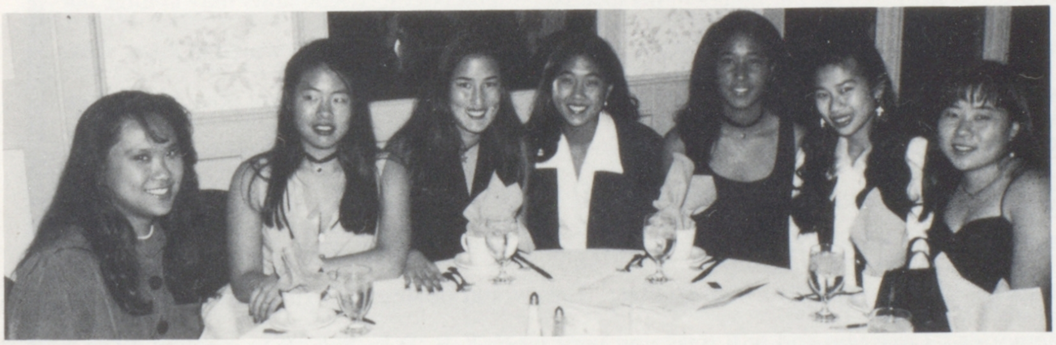
Black is always right for such a special event along with friendly smiles and good time friends.

Can they get any closer? Anna Haberstroh, April Woodward, Jessica Faria, Domingo Reynol Nicole Mutch, Angela Pesta, Debra Gilbert, Antonio Proctor, and Traci Lim are all together.

The Senior Banquet is sadly the last chance for the Class of '94 to sit together and enjoy the opportunity to reminisce about old memories and past experiences with friends. The banquet was held at His Lordships, in the Berkeley Marina, on January 27, 1994. The night started with a half hour of socializing, an hour of eating and table conversation, and the award ceremony for the Senior Bests and Most Likely To's by Mr. Mc Cracken and Mr. Kaplan. Then it was wrapped up with a slide presentation of class memories. After that, tables were pushed aside and a dance floor emerged. The class all came together on the song "YMCA" and the night was unforgettable. The next time they shall all be together like this, is at the Senior Ball and Graduation on June 17, 1994!

Eight beautiful girls are definitely enough for any occassion; Diana Moran, Melanie Gomez, Jackie Fernandes, Jessica Faria, Debra Gilbert, Courtney Bellinger, Carrie Marill, and Joy Sherratt.

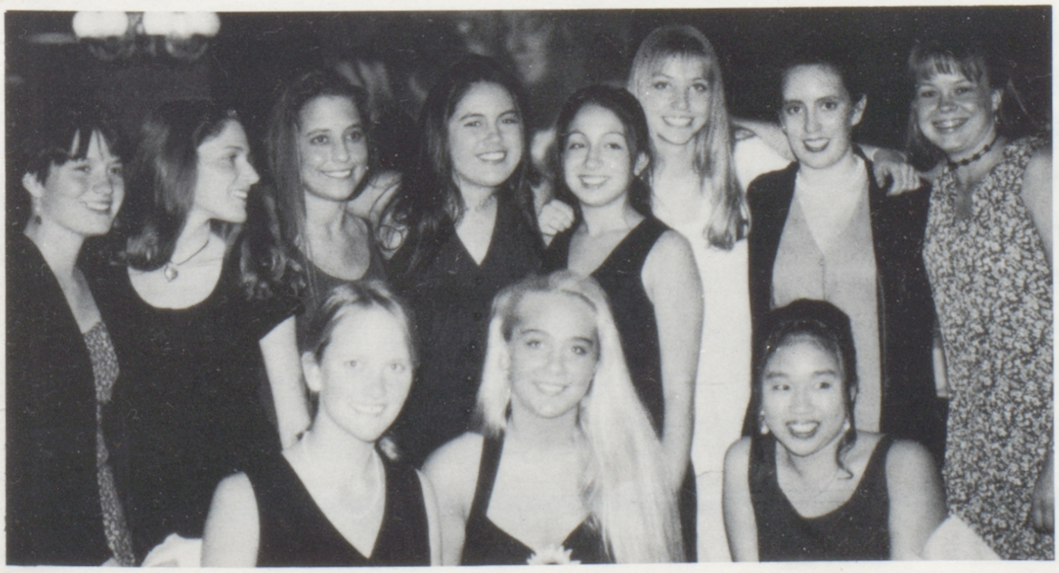
'They're men in ties! Brad Thomson,Eddie Gallagher, Natalie King, Ryan Leong, Stacey Peverell, Derek Hill, and Ryan Hamlyn can be a little zany, no matter what they are wearing.



Long dark hair is not the only thing Ruthie Pontemayor, Rayni Ong, Michelle Leckler, Chan-Min Kim, Mari Chinn, Nhung Tran, and Suyon Yi have in common. They all have perky personalities!

Leave them alone! Hard working Matt Shargel, Doug Aoyoma, and Brian Wong finally get the chance to sit down and enjoy the night.

Friends till the end of time are Michelle Cookson, Kelli Sousa, Nathalie Overfield, Sarah Marshall, Melanie Gomez, Shannon Connolly, Marlena Palacio, Trina McKenna, Shana Tippett, Heather Wong, and Heather Watson.



"Say 90 more days until graduation!' The Senior Banquet is the half way mark until these Seniors can walk on stage and receive their diplomas.

ENDLESS FACES

At Alameda High School, there are over 1,000 different faces and many different races. For every face, there are over thirty languages spoken in the homes of A.H.S. students and everyone has their own unique qualities. However, when the students come to school and attend class together, everyone uses their ability to communicate and speak the same language. This is the language of peace, respect, and understanding. The students make the school what it is: A productive environment, where everyone has the right to learn and make friends. With endless colors, the people at this school create a rainbow of diversity that continues to grow.

Hornet Pride! Juniors Andrea Wilcox , and Beth Eihl and sophomores Jenny Olson and Jennifer Shargel paint their faces gold and white to show their A.H.S. spirit at the big game for Alameda . Fellow Hornets are always there to cheer each other on whenever there is a sporting event.. Students pride themselves on encouragement and unity.

House Of Style- Students at Alameda High have a style and originality all their own. Whether it's being comfortable or just to make a statement, the freedom of being able to express oneself is very important. to each person.

Many people, many faces- Each face is differernt but that's what makes every student unique. Assemblies are one of the many ways that students can learn about their fellow students and their cultures. Here some students get ready for an assembly that's about to begin.

For the past three years, Math teacher Craig Friedman has been the Junior Class Sponsor. This year, replacing the empty position, Math teacher Ilana Horn is his co-sponsor. Every Tuesday Juniors plan a class meeting which is held in either Mr. Friedman or Mrs. Horn's classroom. They oversee the meetings and give advice when the class isn't sure what to do. Mr. Friedman explained tha the's not there"to be a teacher but an advisor" to the students when theyr'e making decisions about class activities. During October, The Junior class took part in the Homecoming Parade as Medieval Times for the theme "Hornets Buzz Through Time." Mr. Friedman and Mrs. Horn watched over the float building project. We all appreciate the fact that they devote their lunch to the Junior class meetings once a week and spend time outside of school to help the Juniors out. The class of 95 would like to give a great big THANKS to both of these teachers!!

Hello? Junior D.J. Cooper and counslor Margie Sherratt work together in the couseling office. Students and faculty at A. H. S. are always helping each other. Not only do the students learn from the teacher, but the teachers learn from the students as well. As time goes on through the year, the classmates and their teachers may develop a special kind of relationship that will last a life time. "It's really great when you get to know your teachers because it makes school a lot easier and fun!" said junior Tillie Lucas.

Vroom, vroom! Lee Uribe looks cool and relaxed in his Honda Civic. Juniors are now arriving to school in their own cars. Whet her they worked all summer or borrowed some money from mom and dad, they all face the same dilema. Finding a parking space! It's not only Juniors who drive to school and there are limited streets.

ENDLESS WINTERS

Many A.H.S. students were worried about the rain predicted for December 10th 1993. "It just can't rain tonight!" was a statement heard throughout the halls of the school. Students were worried about their velvet dresses and suede shoes getting wet. And of course, the hours spent in the bathroom perfecting their hair would be wasted if the skies opened up.But lucky for them, the rain that fell was so light that it went unnoticed by the couples inside the school gym." It was kind of romantic," said Junior Karen Wilson. "The thought of rain made us rebel and we had a pinic on the grass."

The Winter Ball is a semi-formal dance and it is the first big project that the Sophomore class undertakes. While some people jumped at the opportunity to buy a new prom dress or rent a tux, the majority of the prom-goers went in nice pants, a tie and simple casual dresses. The school gym was transformed into a winter wonderland with the Sophomores choice of blue, silver and white snowflakes and snowmen carrying out the theme.

Because last year's dance had such a long line for pictures, many said, "I'm never going again." But like Doug Aoyama, almost every one changed their minds. "Initially, I was skeptical about going, but once I got there I realized it was really well put together and I had a great time." Doug's opinion was mirrored by all. This night will be etched in students' mind for years to come.

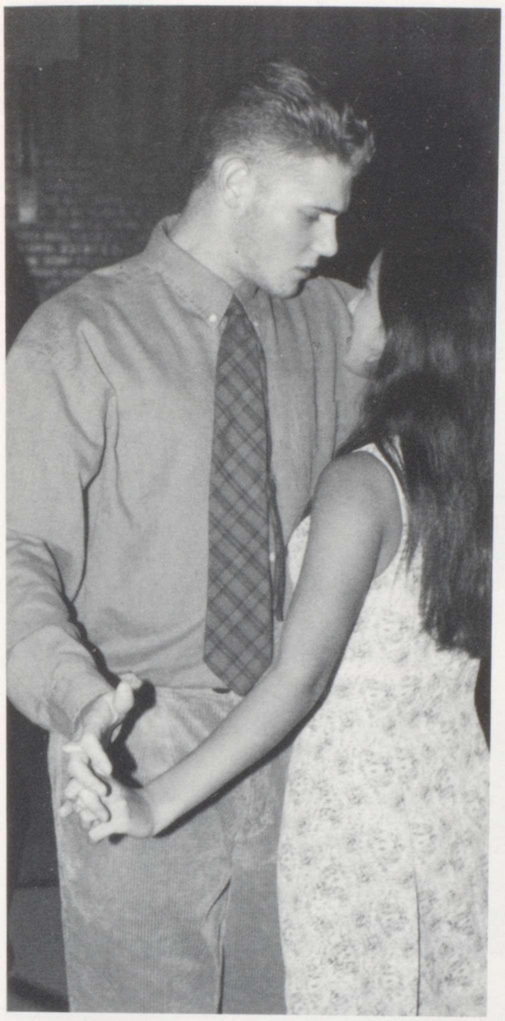
By Kimberley Joy Miner

That dress- I love it! I think I saw it at Macy's! Everyone discusses the different dresses and styles found at the Winter Ball. At the Winter Ball, people showed off the variety of styles that exist at Alameda High.

Will you please just dance one time? Jenny Wilson tries to persuade Pat Prager to step on the dance floor just once. If people weren't dancing, they had a good time talking to their friends.

Satin and Lace everywhere... Jessica Clark hugs her friend as she takes a break from dancing. Whether or not people go with a date or in a group, everyone has fun!

"Look into my eyes and say that without laughing." DJ Cooper and Tina Oakes dance the night away and seem unaware of the music around them.



SMILE! Heather Wong and Marlena Palacio take time out and hug during the a night that they will always remember. Spending time with friends makes the night even more special.

A hat can go with any outfit at any time. James Esparza put a touch of class to his outfit by adding a hat to it, while his dancing partner, Natisa Rosco, seems to be enjoying herself.

I said, "Do you want apple cider or cookies?" Unfortunately,Cindy Chen and friend has to yell to be heard by a hungry dancer who's interested in the food availible that night. The Sophomores provide food and drinks, while other members of Student Government help serve them.

Wave your hands in the air and wave 'em like you just don't care! Shomar Escamillo and Ryan Leong let it all hang out!

Hats off to Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Harriman for being great class sponsors! With their help, this year's sophomore class has been more spirited than ever, and it shows because this year's homecoming was a huge success. " This year's homecoming was fun! We had lots of help this year with float building. The sponsors are very supportive and encouraging." said sophomore Amanda Jones. As for the Winterball, it also proved to be another success. "There were a lot of people that showed up. The decorations were really nice and they played really good music, and to top it all off our class raised a lot of money." said sophomore Julia Stevens."

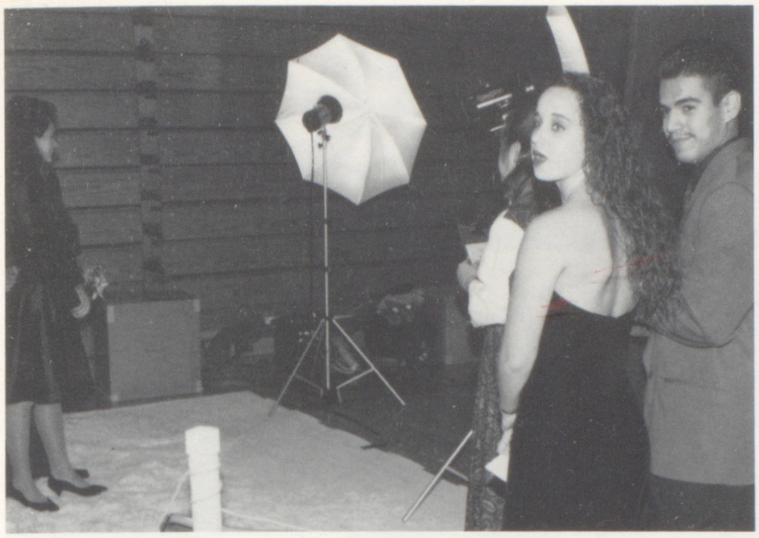
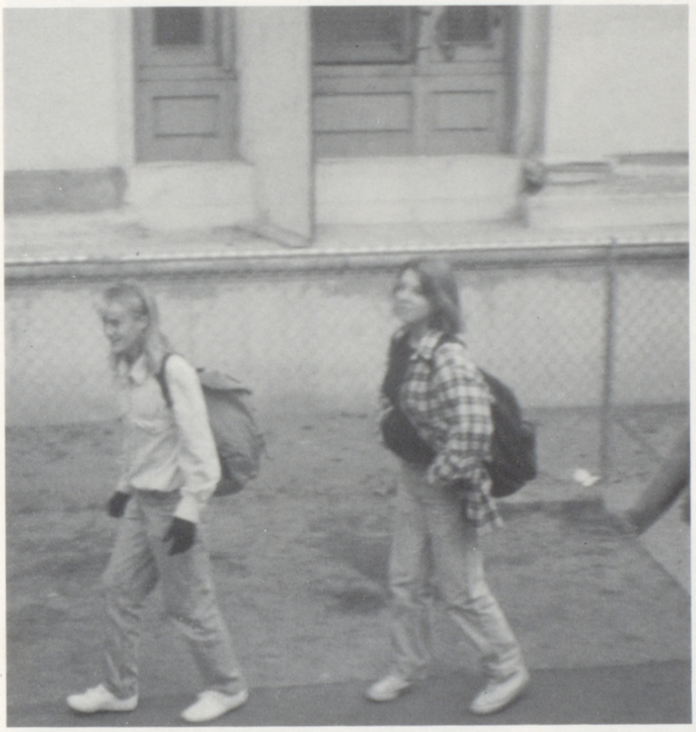
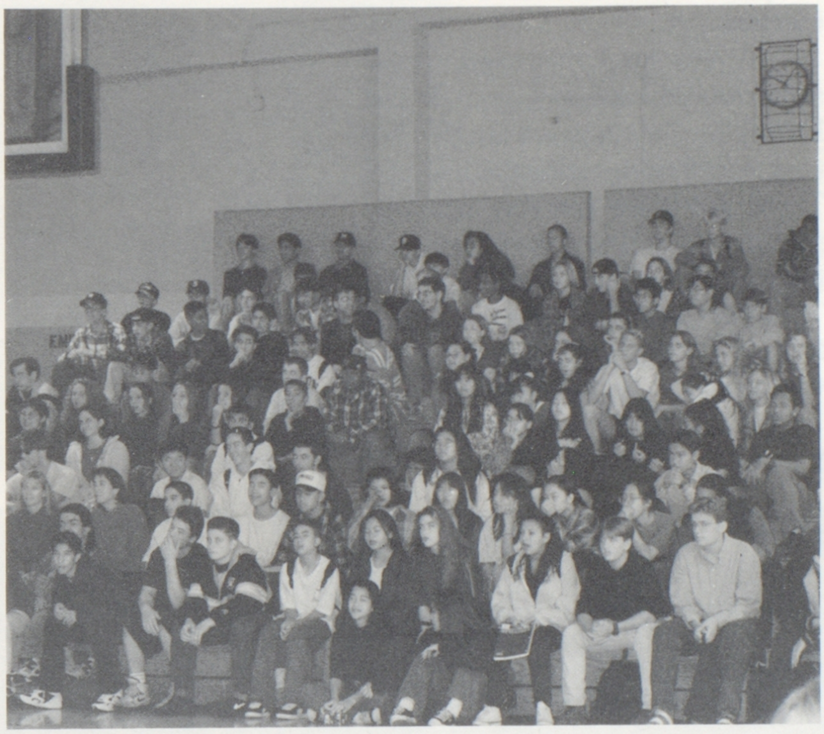
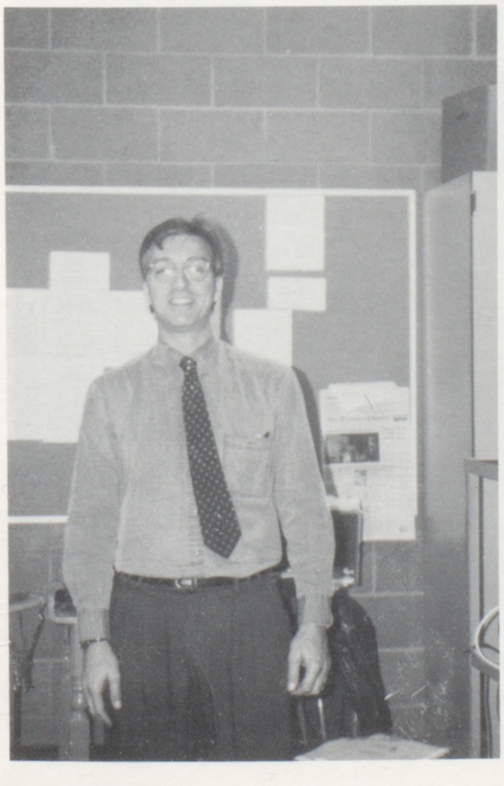
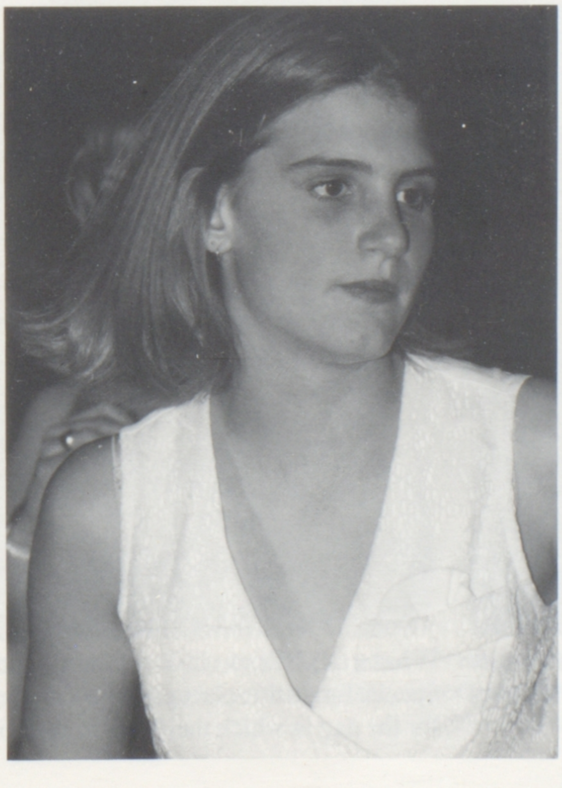
ENDLESS POSSIBILITIES











REACHING FOR THE STARS

The Alameda High Special Education class is one of the most active groups on the school campus. Being a community based program, these students actively work in their area. Such places are Penny's, Beauty College, and convalescent homes. They even have their own catering business.

At school, they work on the same time schedule as everyone else. During the day they are taught how to live an independent lifestyle. There are three teachers and one parent who watches over them and takes them to lunch once a week. This class has also taught students how to earn and spend money, as well as how to get along with others.

By: Antonio Proctor, Davin Skonberg, and William Lundquist

Learning the basics... Jason Silva works here to prepare a meal. Cooking is one of only a few skills taught in class.

Hard at work. Renee Bugbee takes a break from her difficult task to rest for a moment. She and her fellow students perform many difficult tasks for class.

One, two, three... Mrs. Barnes dances to the music with Chris Unruh. The students and their teachers are all very close to one another.

What a trip! Ericka La Russa and Lauren Dare spend an enjoyable day on the lake. The Special Education class participates in many out of school activities to help prepare them for the day in which they'll be on their own.

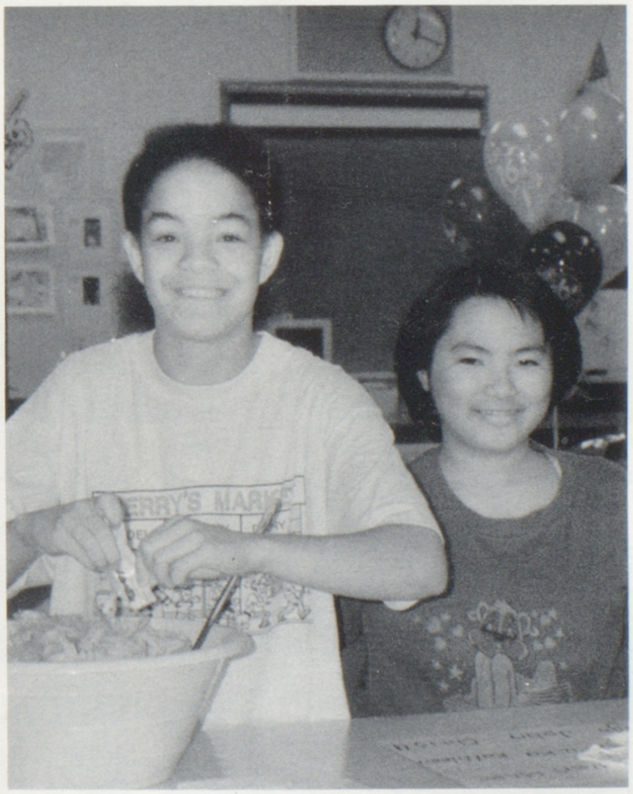
"I love working with my wonderful students!"
-Kathryn Davy-
teacher

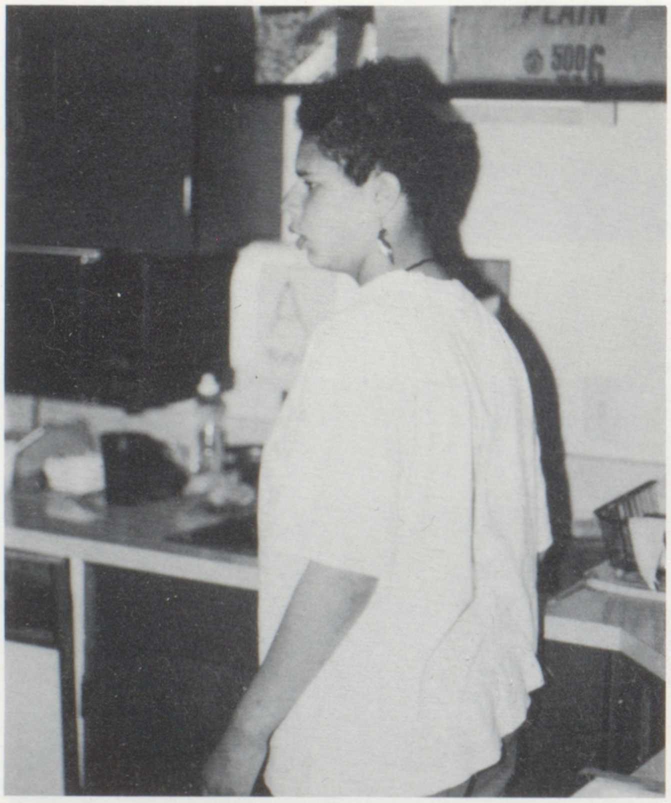
Everybody fall in! Here some of the students and teachers of the department get together for a group photo. Relationships are formed among people in this class that will last a lifetime.



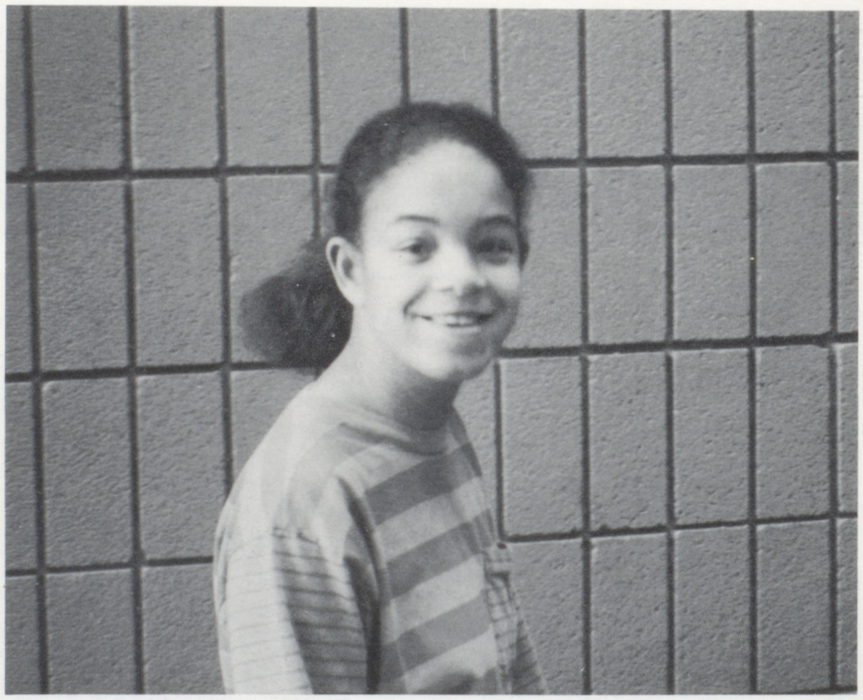
Great teamwork! Ericka La Russa and Rosemarie Kith work together to put the final touches on a salad. Team work is important in helping the students to learn.

Get together. Friends Eric Harvey, Jill Fry, Michelle Unruh, Maria James, and aide Nhung Tran gather around.

Giving a helping hand, student aide Stephanie Mendoza assists Mark Tucker. Aides also participate in learning experiences with other students.



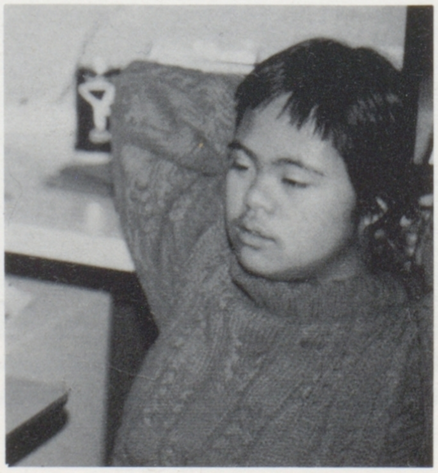
Getting prepared, Jacklyn Sagurit sets up the kitchen to make food for fundraising activities.



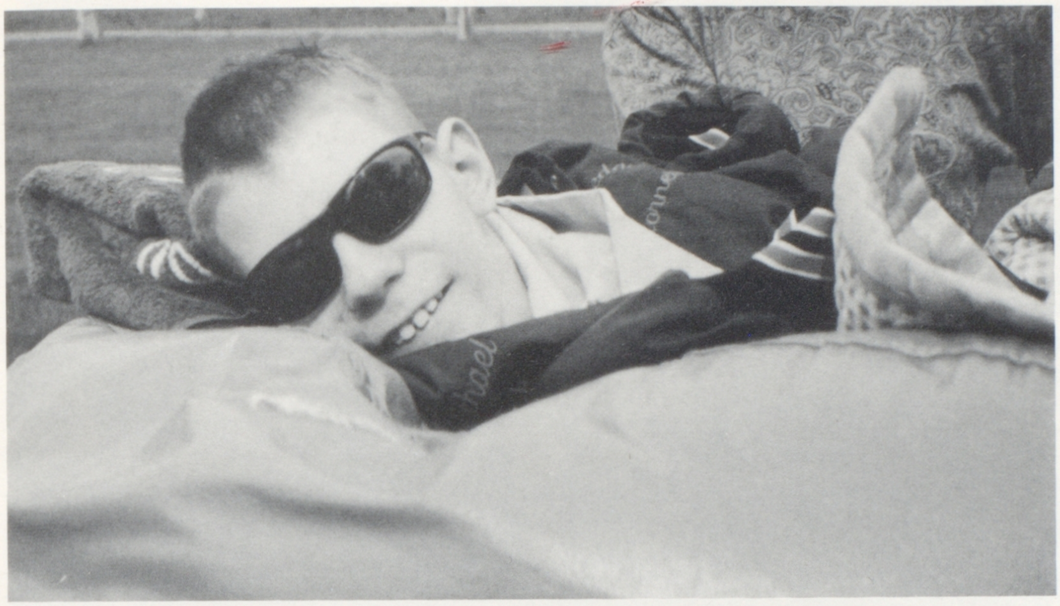
Say "Cheese"! Ericka Larussa takes some time out of her busy schedule for a photo shoot. Students are always learning something new.

"We are a community based program where students learn functional independent living skills in the community."

-Susan Barnes-



YOU'RE SO VERY SPECIAL.



After being at Alameda High for four years, Special Ed student Michael Haw gradutes. Through the years "Michael has become the center of attention," says Special Ed teacher Mrs. Barnes, "and he taught his class a lot about focusing on ability rather than disability." This itself is an unforgettable and important lesson for not only Special Ed. students, but for the entire student body. Everyone wishes Michael all the best and he will be missed very much.
Michael will be remembered as the class room D. J. and girls are very fond of him.

ENDLESS HOURS

Alameda High School, is very fortunate to have an exceptional faculty to guide students through their four years of high school. They bring to the classrooms a variety of experiences, interests and lifestyles, making the learning experiences all the more enriching. They are interested in the students' points of views and are there to help them express their views. They encourage everyones strengths, and individuality. As adults, students will each look back at their high school years and remember that one special teacher who recognized something in them that made a difference in how they all perceive themselves and what every Hornet would become. The students are very thankful for the staff development days that they have. Not only do friends get to hang out and get closer, but the teachers have a chance to share teaching victories, and through that, Alameda High School has a more unified teaching and administrative staff.

Welcome to Report Card Night. Refreshments are to the left. Ms. Ruark, Ms. Porter, Ms. Sherratt, and Mr. Maiers are happy to welcome all parents to Report Card Day. Parents are able to talk to the four of them about upcoming events, amd are able to talk to teachers about grades their children earn. " Report Card Night was a success " Ms. Sherratt

UH, I delivered my mom's sister's cousin's grandmother's daughter's baby at my house. This is one of the many far out excuses Ms. Saali deals with every day.

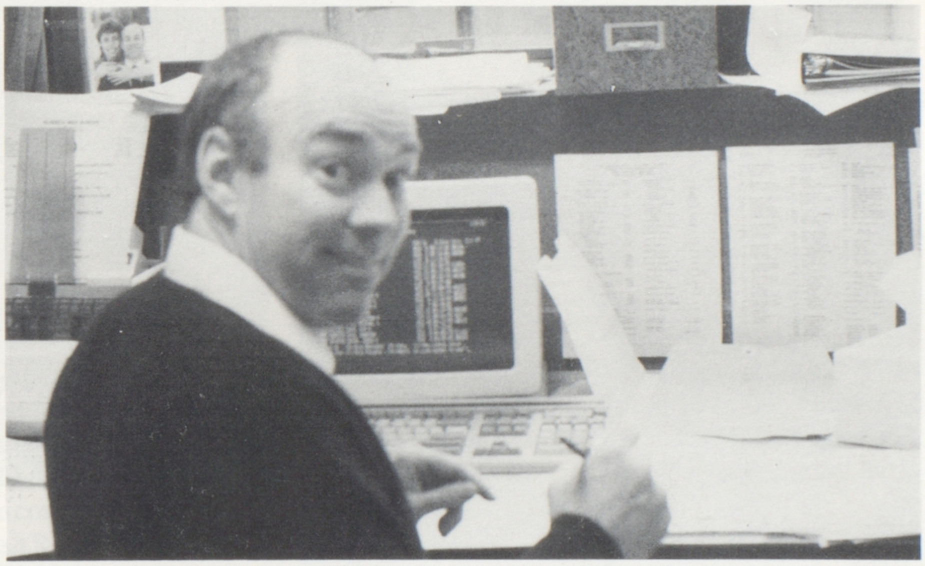
Can I help you? Ms. Green is working diligently as Ms. Ruark's secretary. If anyone walks into the main office, they will always see her working. Does the work ever stop?

I can guarantee you will graduate, but Harvard...? Ms. Porter is always busy helping students with their schedule. If anyone wants to talk to her, they need to make an appointment.

So, you wanted to see me? How can I help you? After a day of dealing with students and faculty, Mr. Kentris turns into a slobbering crazy man!

You don't have to say it, I already know what you are thinking. Ms. Roberds has an uncanny ability to know what everyone is thinking even before they do.

Ms. Ruark is enjoying her second year as head honcho. Ms. Ruark works hard at being a good principal, and through her hard work and dedication, she has earned respect from colleagues, and students.



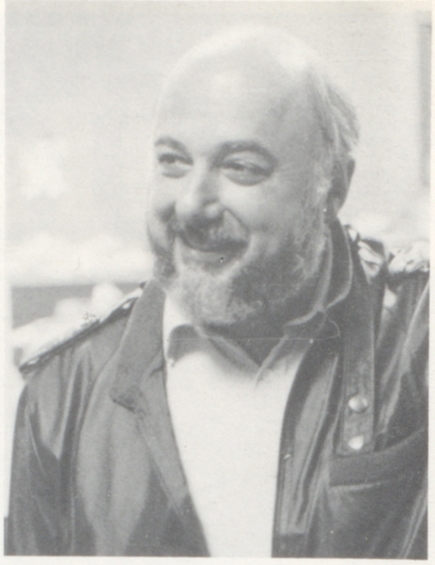
Come on in! What would you like to know? This is Mr. Maiers usual greeting to students who come in to see him. He is not only a counselor, but is the advisor for the C.S.F. club.

Why are you taking my picture? Head Counselor, Ms. Sherratt, is always available to listen, or to offer a word of advise. She once attended Alamdeda High. How does it feel to be on the other side of the desk?

O.K. One last time. Put your name on the sign up sheet, and your counselor will call you down later. Ms. Walters friendly face widely known by the students at Alameda High School, as the counseling offices secretay, and Jack of all Trades.

Ms. Greany laughswhile trying to conjure up the next evil thing she will do to a fellow colleague. This is her second year teaching eager Sophomores about safe sex, drugs and rock and roll, oh woops, life.

Hello, my name is Ms. Curry, how may I help you? Ms. Curry is eager for second semester to begin when she gets to coach the womens swim team.



Strike a pose! A poised and confident Mr Riccardi relaxes for a few moments after a busy day of listening to his band and choir classes.

My buddy and me! Mr. Richards and his partner Sylvia Ahn hang out for a while after a busy hour of learning all about the wonders of biology.

Did you hear what I heard? Mr Gross and Ms. Hand spend all the free time they can telling jokes during the long report card day. Mr Gross is a new teacher this year, coming from Lincoln Middle School.

I'll trade you my apple for those pictures. Ms. Mann and coach Lodge discuss the successful cross country season, while taking a break from Report Card Day. Ms. Mann teaches psychology, a new class at Alameda High School.

BOO! Scared you didn't I? Ms. Zimmerman is shocked by the photographer as she enters her grades into her grade book. Report Card time is a very stressful time for teachers.

By George. Welcome to biology 101. Mr. Fredgren takes time out of teaching his "little rascals", to pose for this picture.

Lights...Camera...Action! Ms. Soria patiently gets her students ready for their production. The class now has their own T.V. channel.

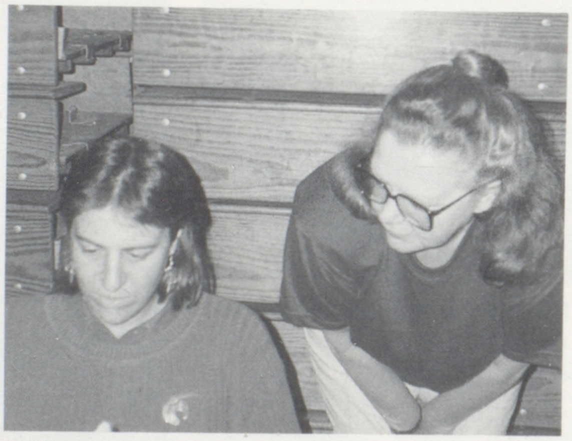
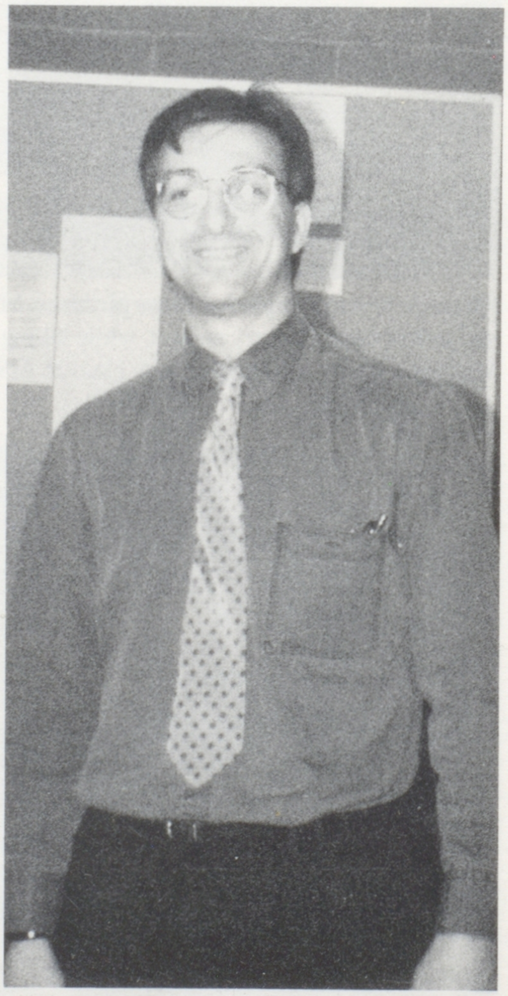
Shadow puppets in math class? The floating hand of Ms. Quan and other math teachers can often be found in any math room.



I think you need to carry the 6, and bring down the 5. Ms. Kyle explains to Ms. Kameny, the complicated mathematics to calculate grades.

Smile darn it smile! Mr. Manno is smiling after he cracks yet another of his amazing jokes. Mr. Manno is known for his sense of humor.



My name is Mr. Bentz--Mr. Bentz-- Mr. Bentz always keeps students interested in science and is loved by all his students.

Is that what we are doing here...KICKIN IT. Mr. Kaplan checks with a student for the right word to use to describe sitting down and doing nothing.

I want no cheating. Mr Cooper keeps a close eye on his future mathemeticians.

ENDLESS KNOWLEDGE

A math test on Tuesday, an English and a history presentation on Thursday, a term paper and a notebook check due on Friday. Does that sound familiar to anyone? Work seems to pile up as each day passes by. This is enough to give the students headaches that will last them forever!

Many of the students have to work during their weekends to do projects or reports, while many others just wait until the last day and stay up to an endless night to produce a "masterpiece" or spend hours catching up on those six chapters of reading that they forget to read last week.

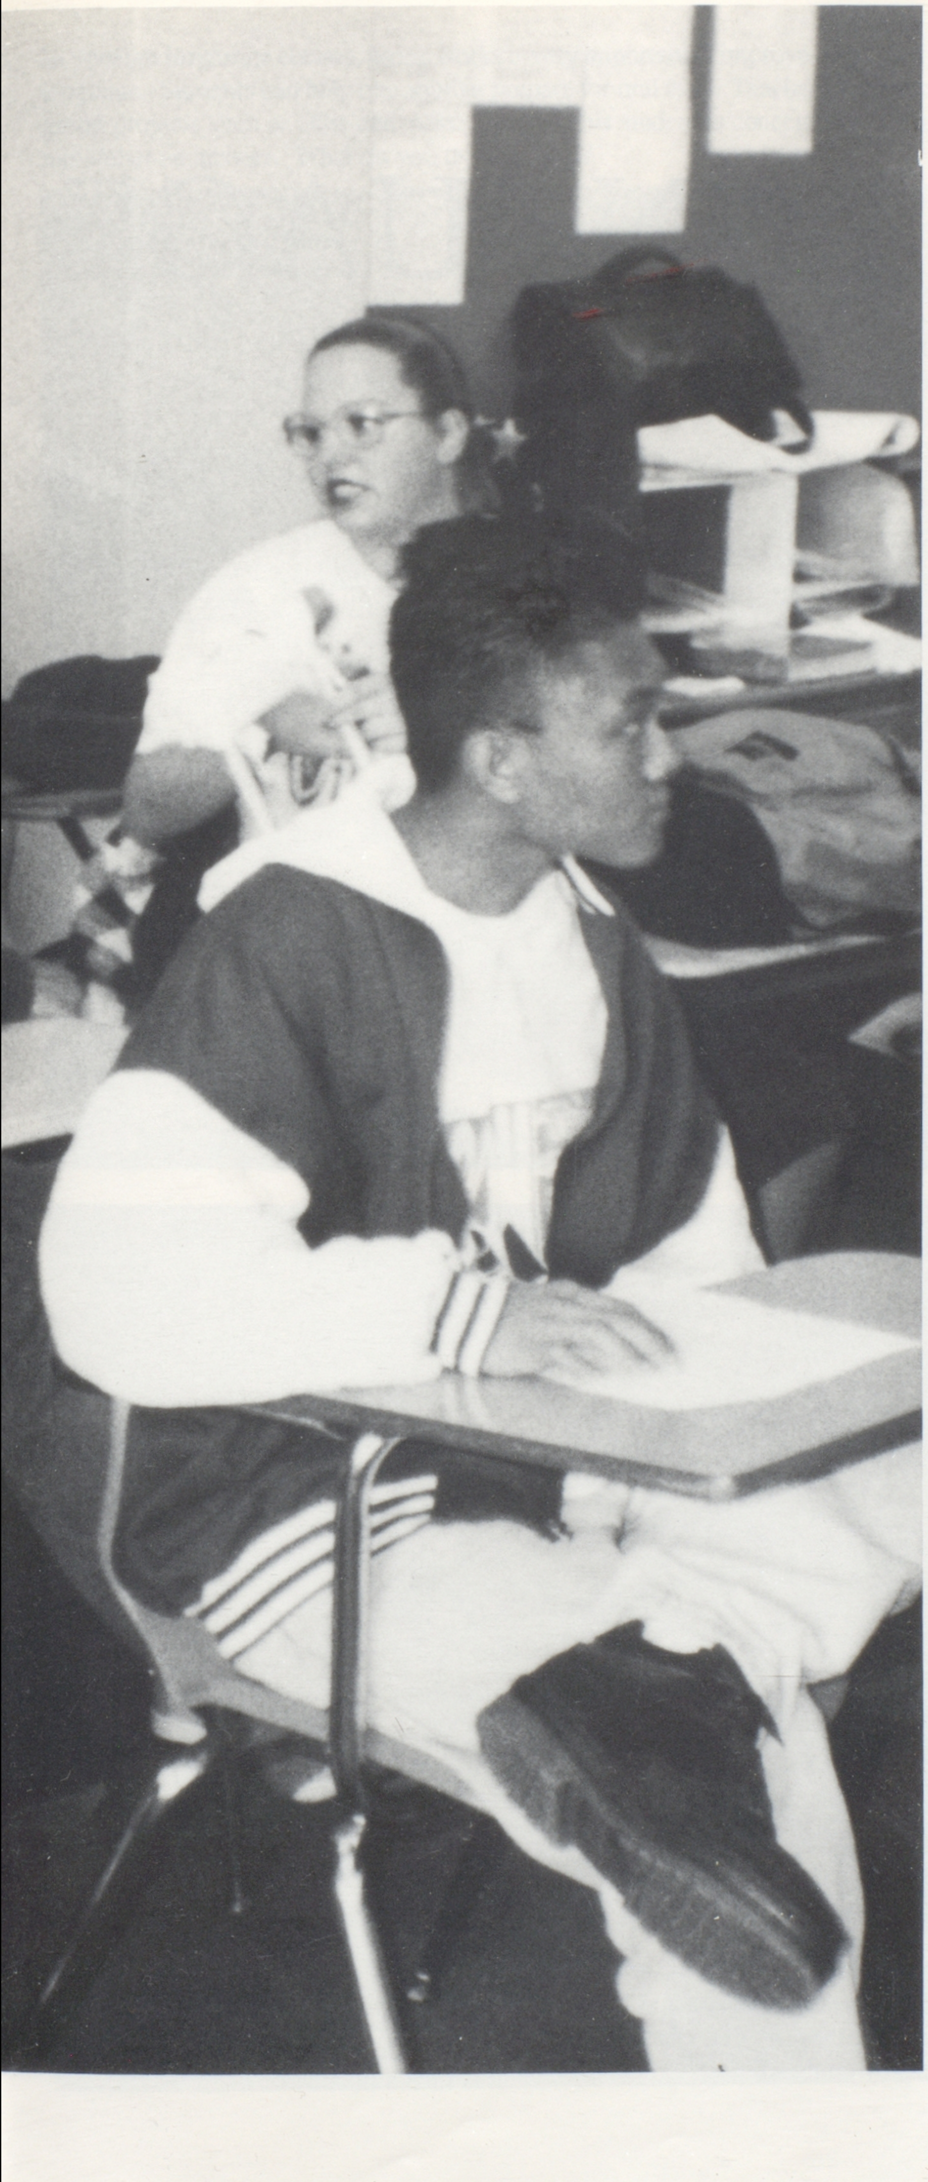
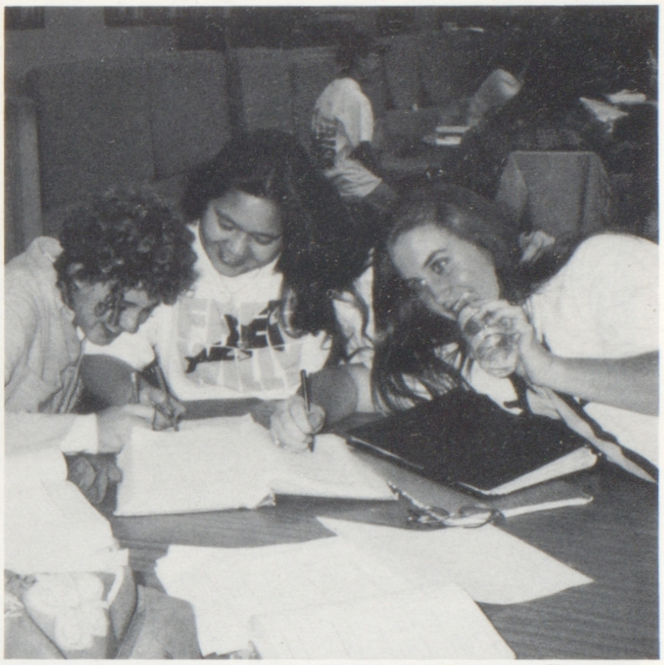
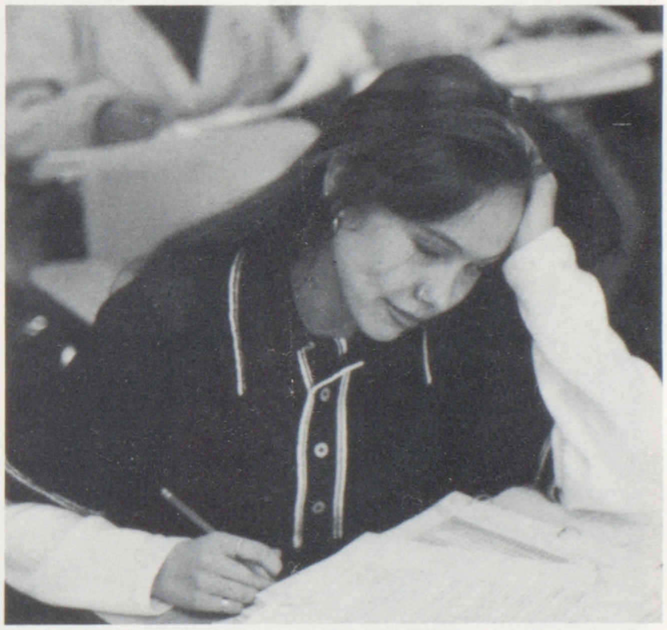
Even though all the work can drive people crazy, the wisdom that they gain can last a lifetime. Of all the knowledge that they learn, much of it will be carried to the college years and beyond. Students put up with school along with numerous teachers, pressures of tests, and piles of homework just to see the day that they will go on stage to receive their diploma.

By: Christina Jung



"I'm tyring to get an education!" During Mr. Manno's third period government class, some students like Senior Emmanuel Flores try hard not to listen to the conversation between Senior Manuel Cortez and SeniorMichelle Clymer who's just fininshing up after the five minute break. Students learn from teachers, as well as from their peers. Inside and outside of class, everyone can get the endless knowledge that will last them a lifetime. Knowledge is a valuable aset to every student.





After school in the AHS's library, Senior Leilani Poulson and Junior Alia Siangco are studying hard for their Algebra II class while Junior Lisa Hansen takes a little break to get a sip of water before tackling her work again. Studying at the library really helps some students and allows time for socializing. After school tutoring is always availablein the Media Center.

This is so much fun! Senior Sonja Hager falls soundly asleep during class. Sometimes staying awake in class is impossible. Some students just partied so hard on a school night that it is too hard for them to stay awake to listen to lectures the next morning. Others burned the midnight oil studying for their tests the next day. Who said getting good grades was easy?

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

The two foreign languages that our school offers are French and Spanish. Many students take one of the languages for the two years requirement to graduate. A lot of universities and colleges are looking for students who takes a foreign language.

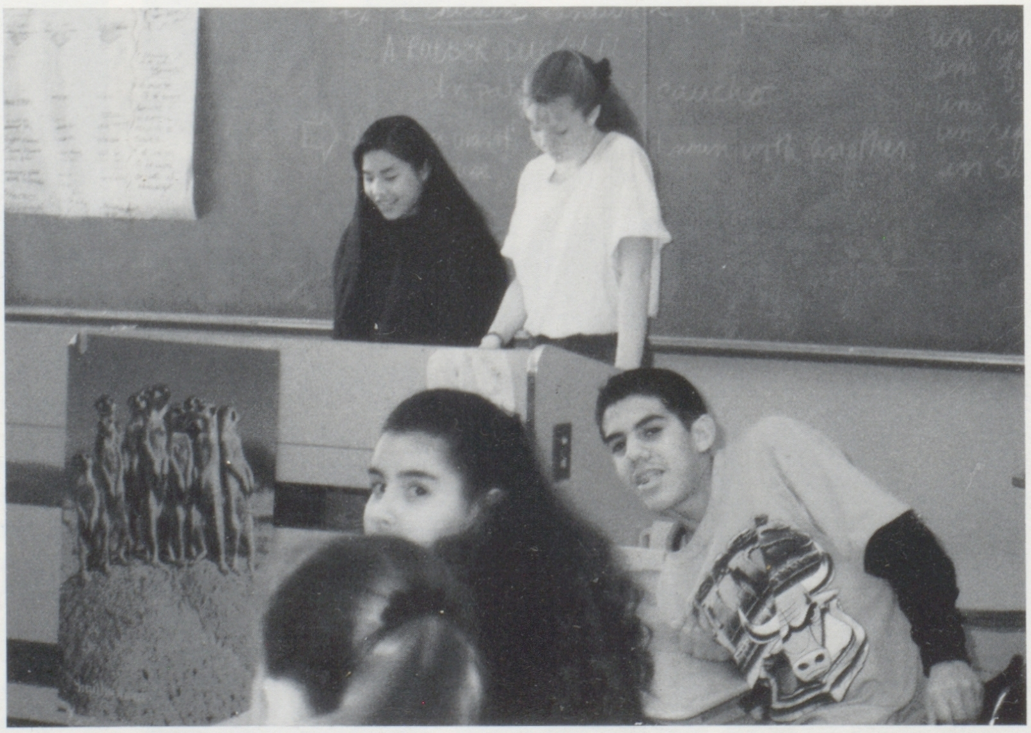
Once in a while, the foreign language teachers will have their classes to cook French and Spanish food. This is one of the most interesting part of the whole program. Everyone enjoys cooking traditional food.

At the end of this year, Bon Voyage will once again go to France, and Aventura Mexicana will go to Spain. These students will spend a couple weeks in some native family which will improve their oral skill in the language.Good Luck!

By Ronald Ip

"Hey Rana Rand, you better wake up now or I will tell Madame Ellsworth." said Cindy Chan. She looks like a typical French student with her buret. She might become a French teacher in the future.

Welcome back Mrs. Lauer. She used to be a Spanish teacher in Alameda High School. The students in her class will definitely receive good grades.

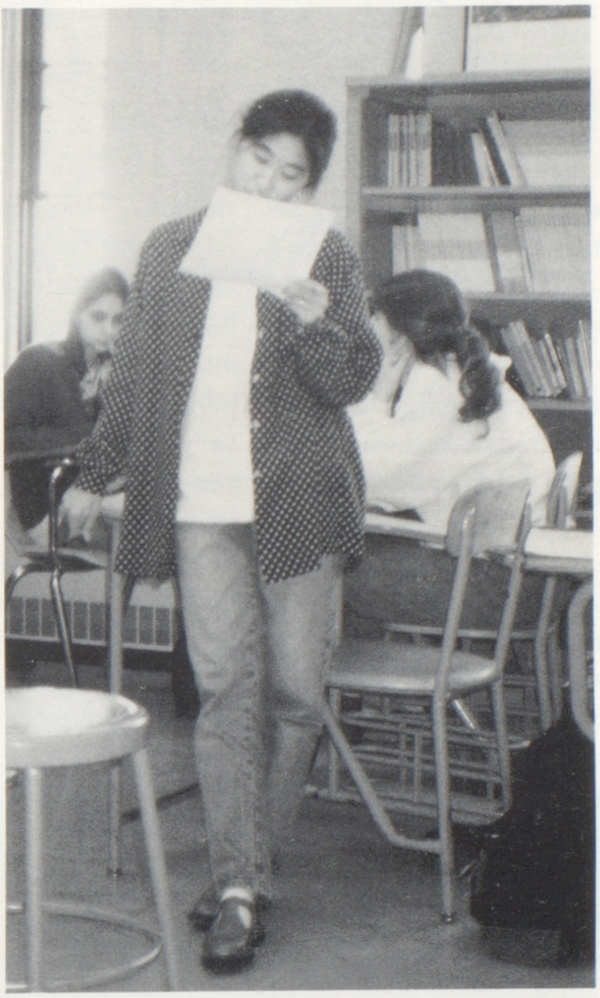


Students in Mrs Olsen class always have the chance to become a teacher. They act as a teacher and ask questions to the rest of the class. They get brownie points by doing so.

As the bell rings, everyone begins to pack up and ready for the next class. Stacey Perevell does want to leave the class, nobody would like to leave the class because it is such a fun class.

In foreign language classes, group works is very important to improve the skill of the language. Students can help one another prepare for oral tests. Teachers often assign group projects such as skits and video taping. This student is concentrating hard to remember an answer. What do you think Amiga?

Chan-Min Kim is orally participating in her French 4AP class taught by Madame Ellsworth. She tries to pick up more participation points. It takes courage to speak French in front of the class.



Spanish 5 students are watching slides about Spain. And they discuss which is the best destination for this year's Spain voyage.

M A T H

One of the most important classes a student might ever take in high school is math. The skills that are taught in these courses are the basis of our every day life and are the stepping stone into more advanced, and complex fields and careers.

The students at Alameda High School enjoy a wide variety of different math courses. Some of the most popular math courses are Algebra, Geometry, and Algebra II. Students seeking more advanced, and challenging courses can enroll in Pre-Calculus, Math Analysis, and Calculus (Advanced Placement), where the work is more rigorous and requires more thought.

Math may not be every student's favorite subject. The teachers at Alameda High School know this and they do their best to make learning more interesting and enjoyable. Group work is very common in math because it allows students to learn from each other. Some special projects are used for students to learn from a more creative aspect. Math teachers now also use overhead projecters where they can present the work more clearly and use bright, vivid colors, that make visual graphics more interesting and understandable. Math is definitely a fun subject at Alameda High.

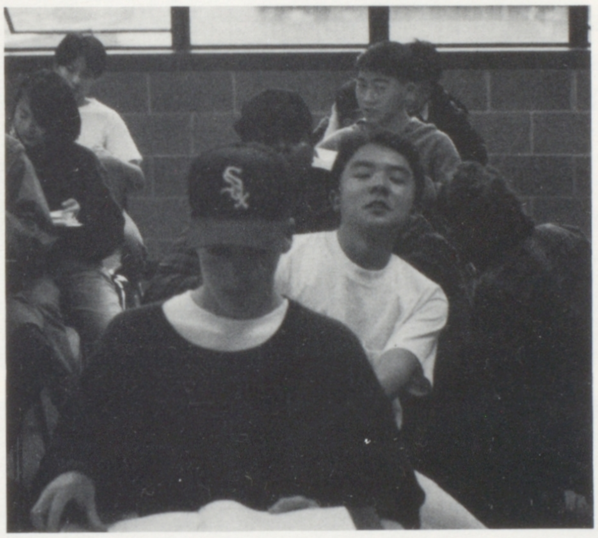
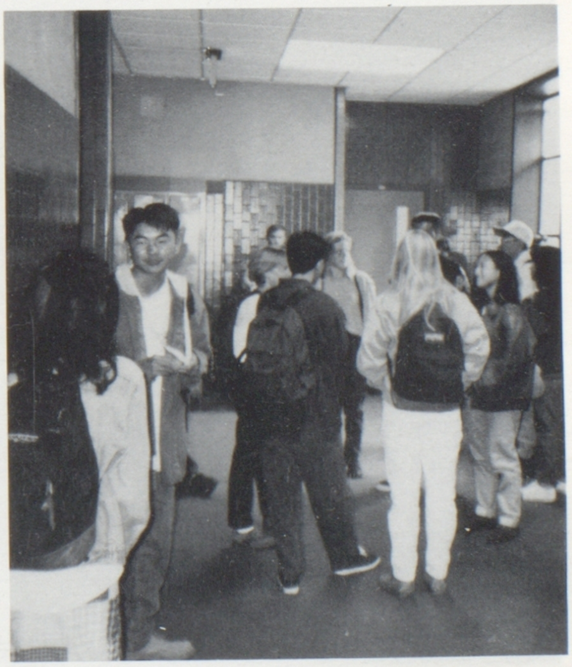
One big happy family. Mrs. Kyle's A.P. Calculus class gets together in groups to help each other tackle those tough derivative problems!



Hey, no cheating guys! No use looking over someone's shoulder, cheaters never win!

What did she just say? Mrs. Quan's class pays close attention to her as she teaches. Obviously a fine bunch of future mathematicians.

What did you get for number one? Working together is very common in math classes. Learning from asking questions is the way to go!



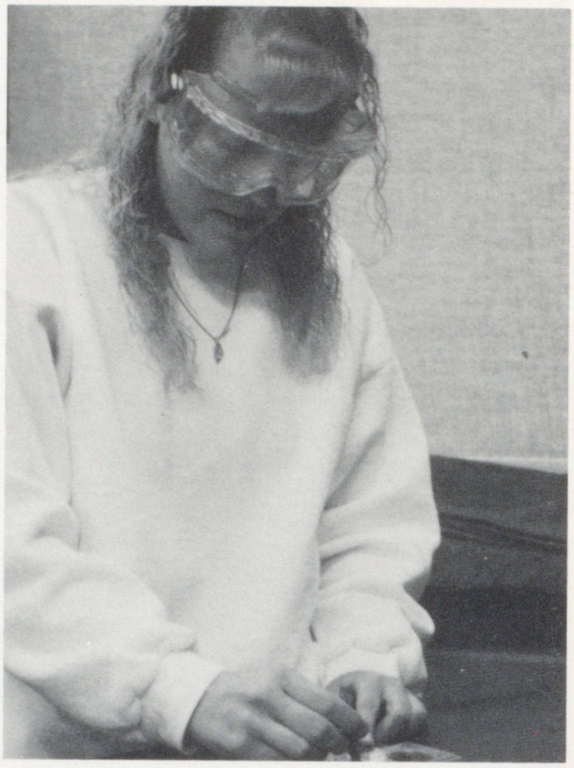
Waiting patiently outside is Mrs. Kyle's A.P. Calculus class. They just can't wait to start working!

MINDBOGGLING

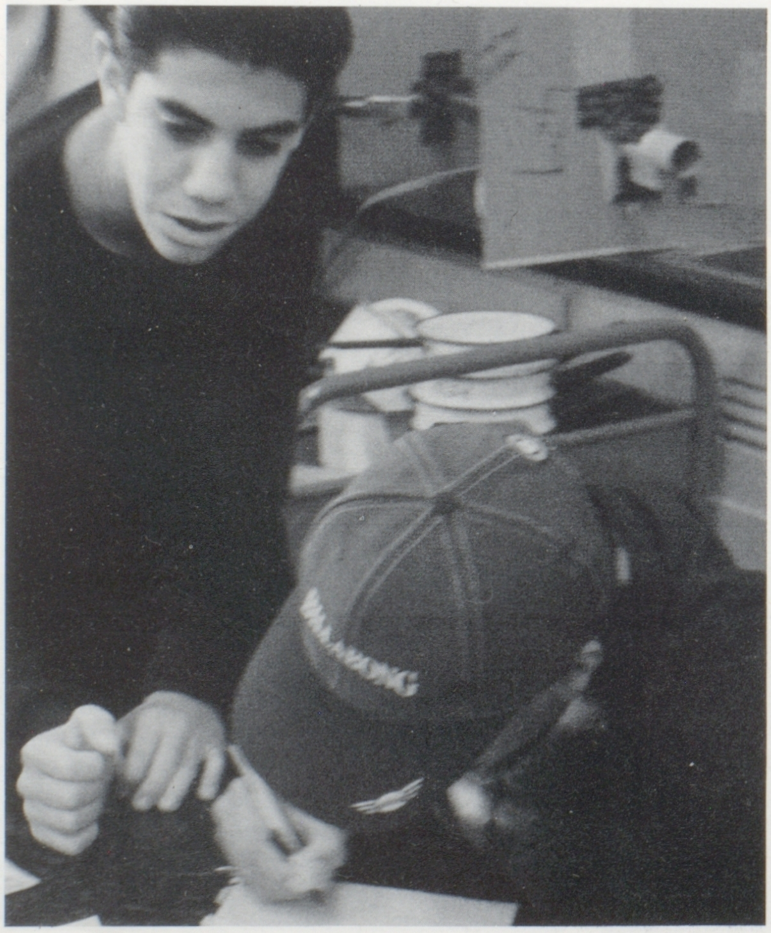
Science is a subject where people can discover Mother Nature. Studying science at Alameda High is more than a learning experiece, it is a chance to discover the roots of mankind. Students study the beginning of life and the future of the planet. "Alameda High offers a variety of science classes which really helps students experience the outside world. The students enjoy the pursuit of understanding these courses offered. Science provides a good way of looking at our world, and the universe by finding answers to its mysteries," says Mr. Richards.

After all, in what other subject can a student get hands on experience, and not just listen to long and tedious lectures? Labs are perhaps the best of science, especially dissection labs. Many students enjoy dissection," Dissection has to be the best part of science," says Sophomore Kevin Yee.

The science teachers at A.H.S. work hard to make their classes interesting and fun. The goggle song is a good example of this, "Goggles you'll love your goggles they will keep your eyes from burning out..." It is always a good sign when students are singing in class. Science at A.H.S. gives students an understanding of Mother Nature and what she holds. By: James Wong

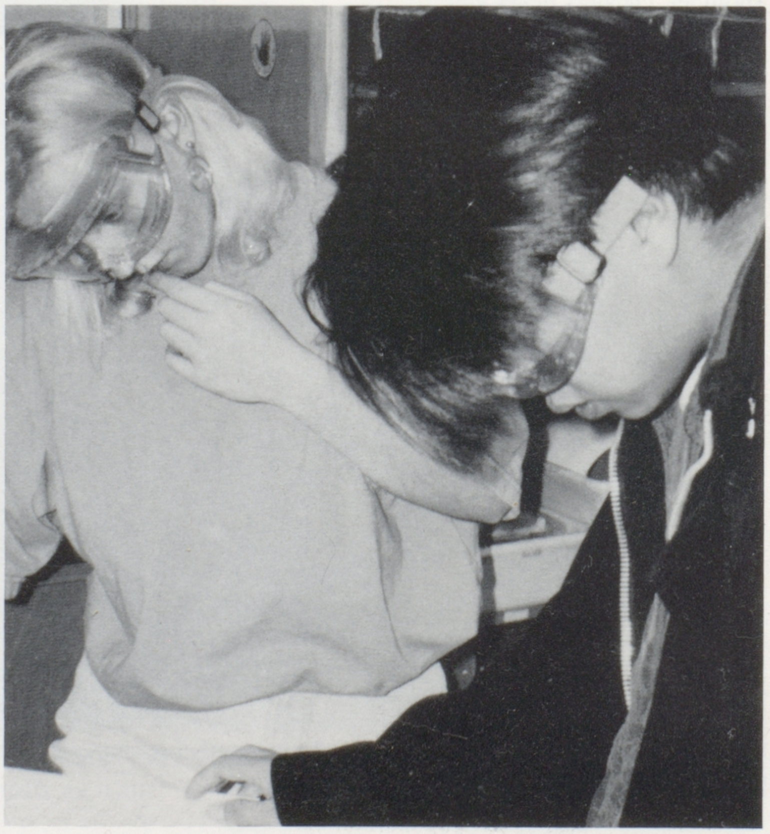


Future scientist?? Heather Powell carefully stirs the solutions watching it turn colors.This lab requires observation and accuracy.



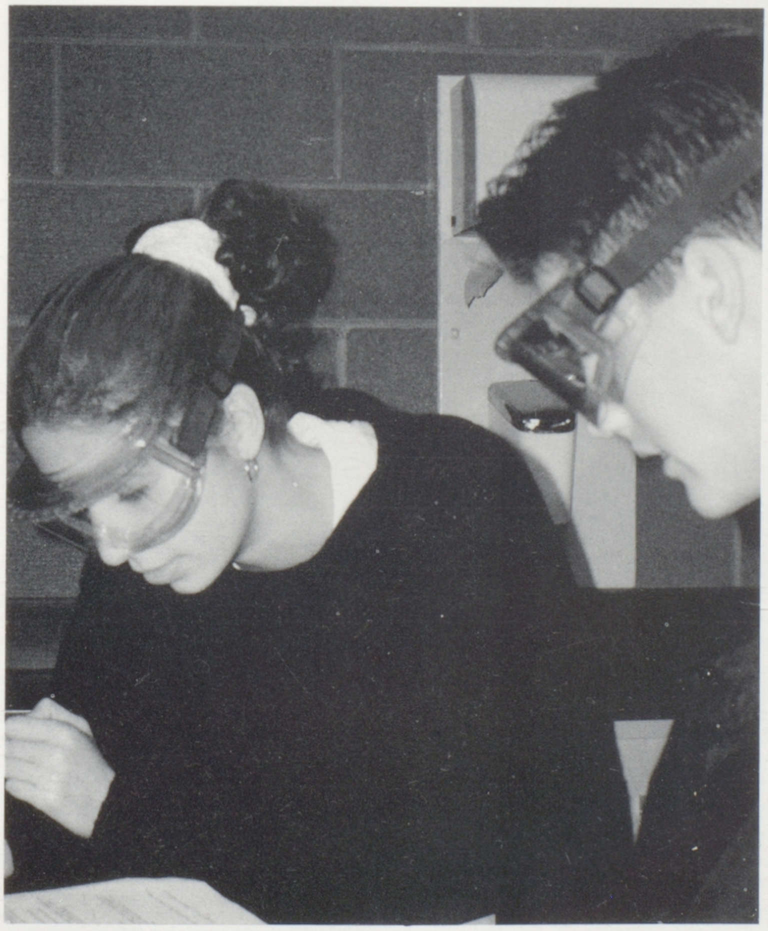
This is how you do it! Miguel Rodriguez and Michael Han are concentrating on writing the lab report.

Two heads are better than one! Jeff Leong and Heather Demarest follow directions carefully to finish up a lab.

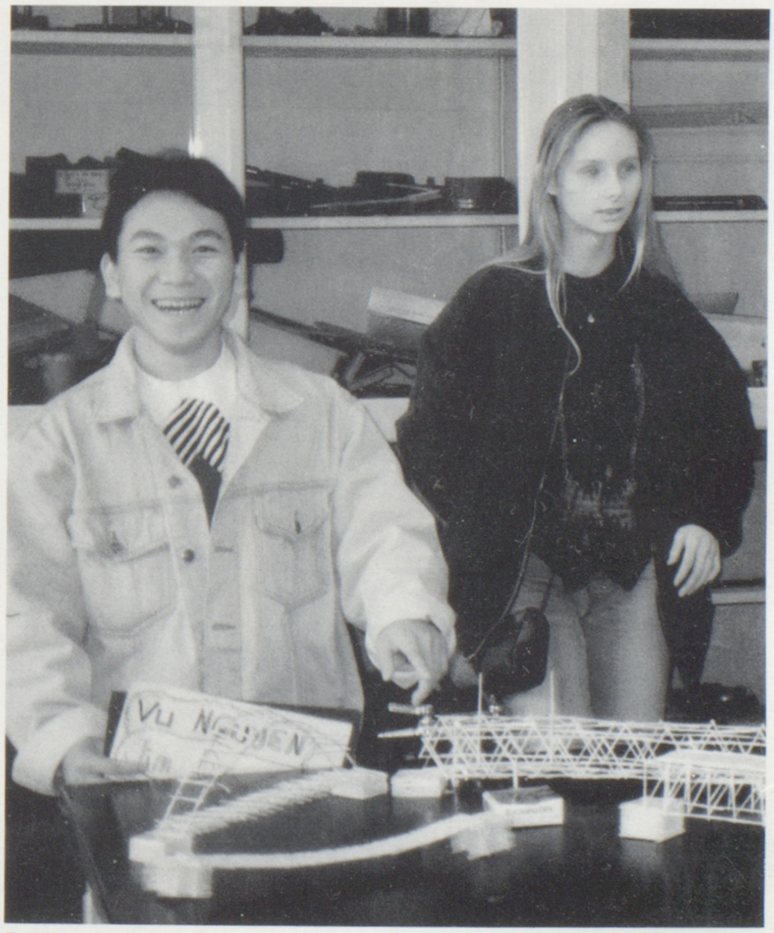


Chemicals are fun ! Jessie Smith and Paulo Sunia looks over the bottle's label before performing a test on the unknown chemical inside.

Wow look at that! Bavi Quan and Misha Villa observe the reactions in their lab.



Hard at work. Samantha Madrid and Ryan Knoth take down results from their chemistry experiment.



Look what we've got! Vu Nguyen and Marzena Borkowska show off their toothpick bridges which they built in their Physics class.

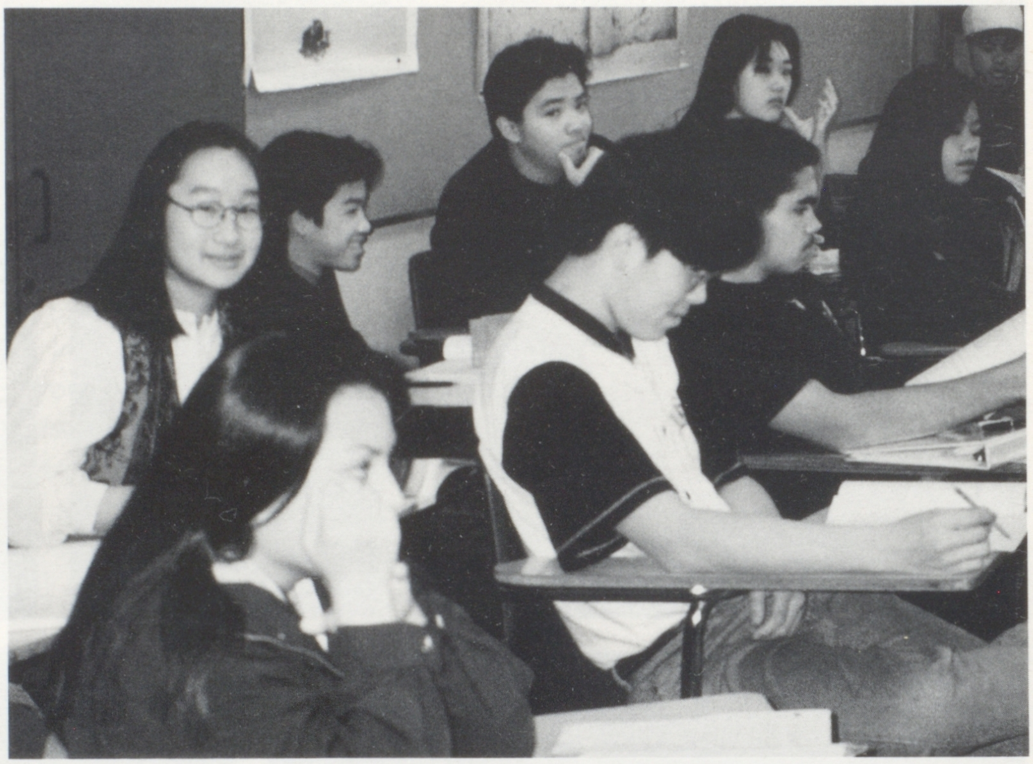
SEE SPOT RUN

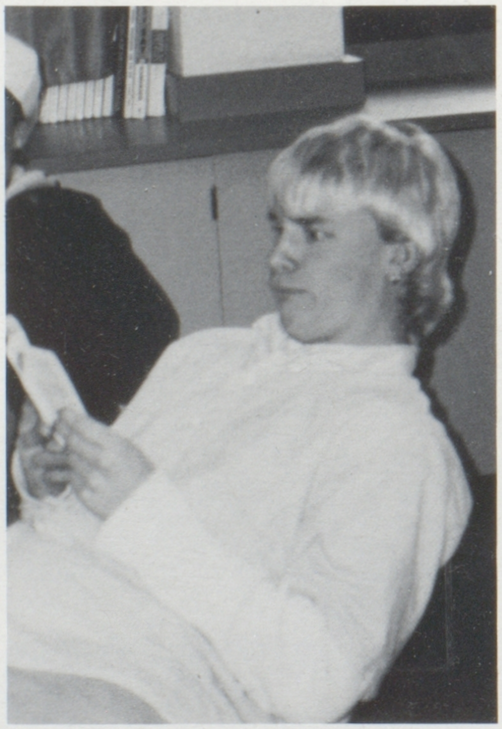
See Spot run. Run Spot run. English is the biggest and most important subject during High School. Alameda High students are required to take four years of English and so do many Colleges and Universities.

At Alameda High School the friendly and creative English department do their best to make the students' four years a pleasurable experience. They offer a wide genre of literature such as short stories, Shakespearian plays, abstract poetry, mythology, and novels. The students really get a feeling of all the different types of writing they've been exposed to and have a really good time practicing their literacy. Anyone can often find an AHS student around campus deeply involed in his/her copy of The Great Gatsby or Catcher in the Rye.

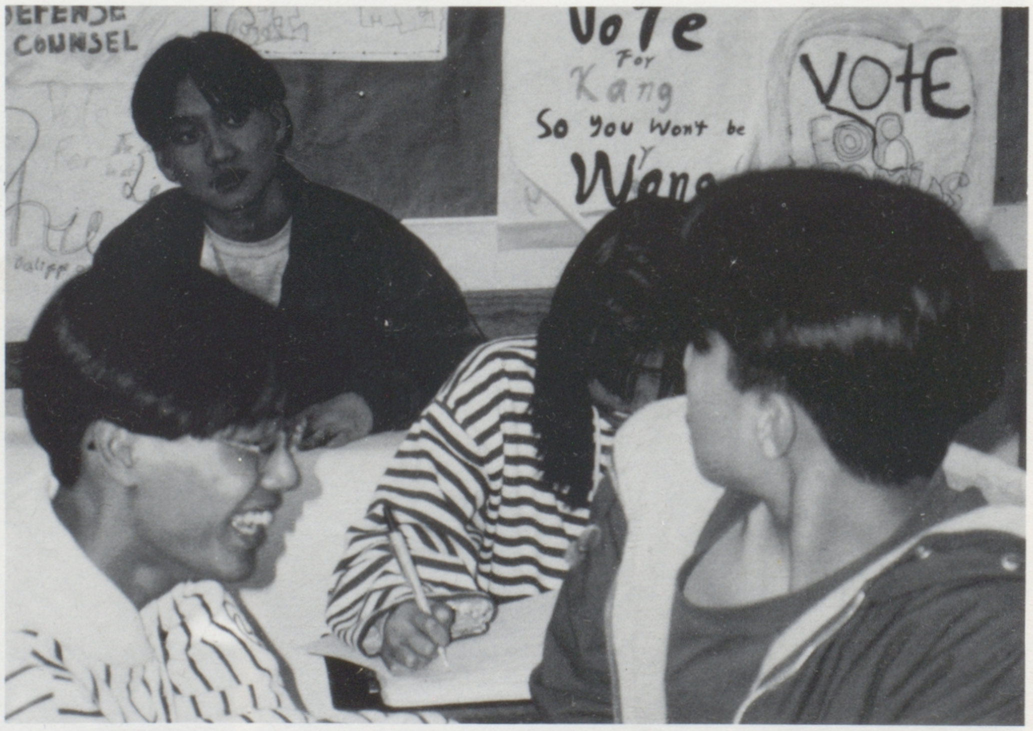
By Grant Lee

Work! Work! Work! English classes are always busy doing something, especially in Mr. Carman's class. But Sophomore, Katy Ip, finds the time to smile big for the camera. Hey, get back to your work!





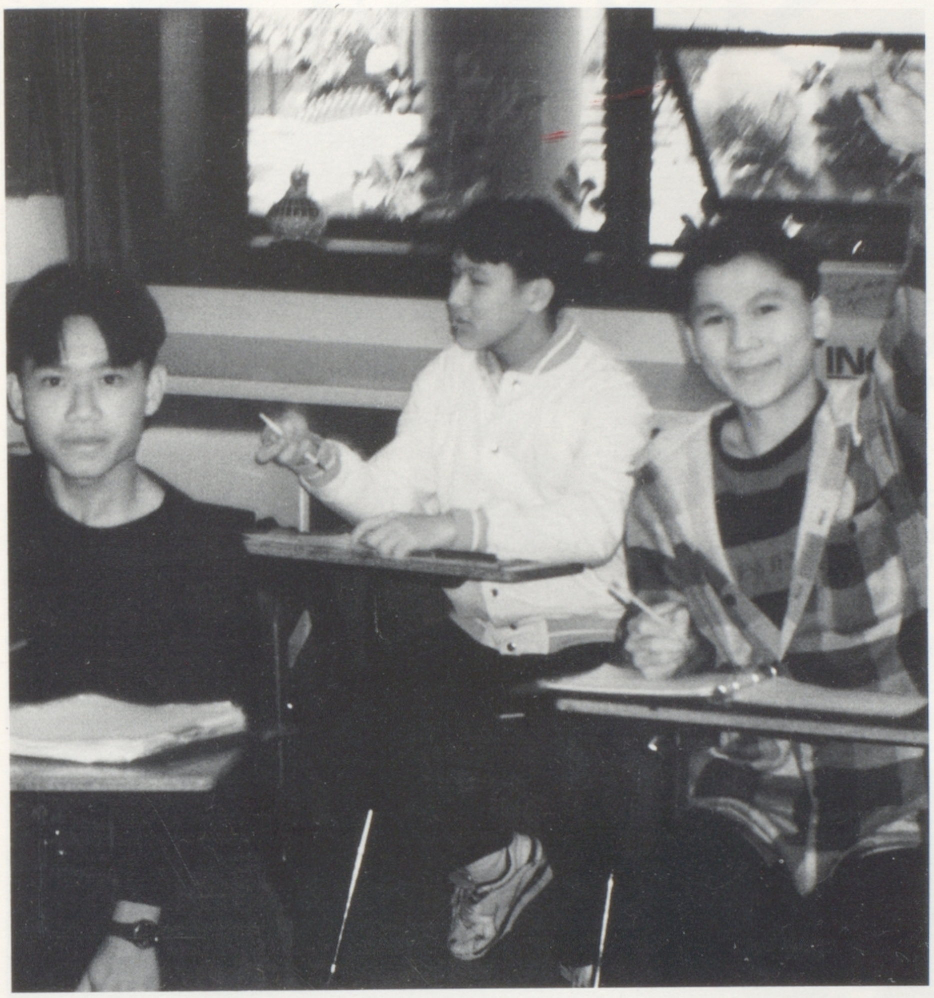
Ooh!Ahh!Ohh! Books are a great activity for leisure or at school. Rob and Zach look really absorbed in their books. What great literature!!!



Waddaya Want?! One can become very involved with their English work. David Lai snaps at his classmate for breaking his concentration while working on his favorite English project.

Giving a little constructive criticism is Miss Rose. Good teachers not only teach but serve as guides. Thanks for the help Miss Rose!!

I know! I know! English can be a very inspirational subject. The students are just dying to answer all of the teacher's questions. Hey guys calm down, there are plenty of opportunities. But teachers are not the only ones who can ask questions. Students are free to ask questions too. That's how they learn!



Turn in those papers! English isn't just fun and games! Mrs. Zimmerman takes charge of her class. The students have to learn discipline and the importance of promptness.

SOCIAL SCIENCES

This year, there are three new teachers in the Social Sciences Department at Alameda High making it even better than it was before. The new editions to the department are Mr. Manno, Mr. Gross, and Mr. Allee.

As well as there being new teachers at A.H.S., there are new social science classes. Classes which are different from your ordinary History class.

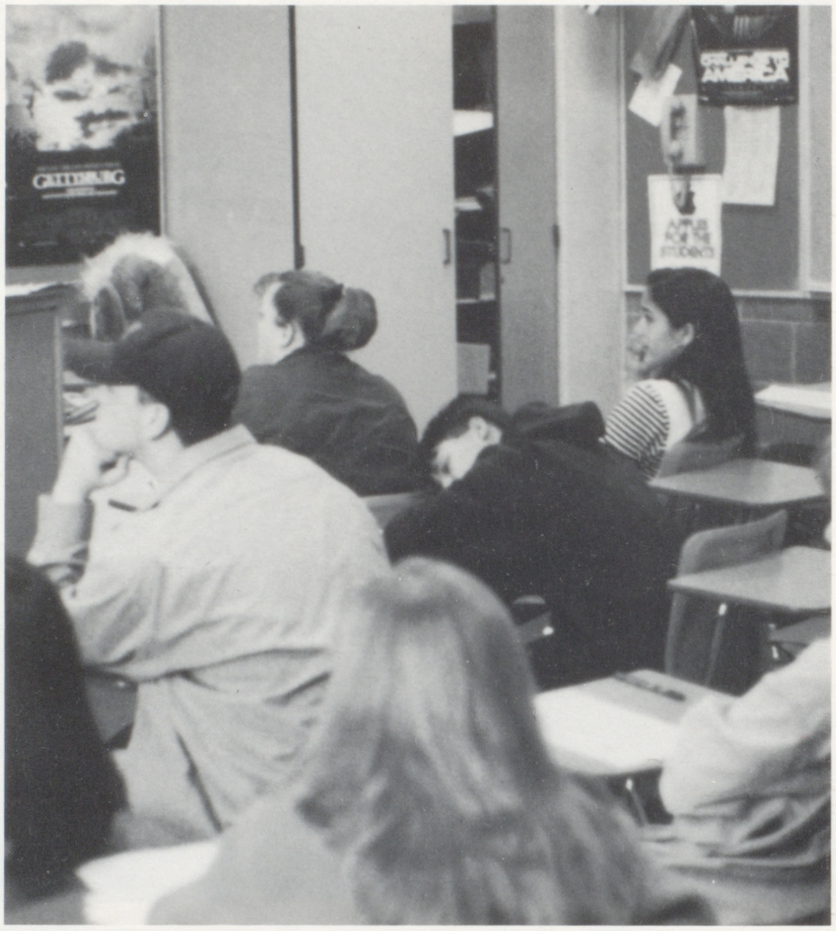
These classes are Psychology/Sociology which is taught by Ms. Mann and Humanities which is taught by Mr. McCracken and Mr. Carmen.

Humanities is a connection between English and History. That is, the books in English relate to the same period in time being studied in History.

Psychology and Sociology are about the study of human behavior and the principles which are believed to influence it.

There a lot of dates and facts that the students need to remember when taking these courses. A good way for students to learn exactly what went on in history, is to experience it for themselves. Some teachers were actually using that technique. Alameda High is lucky to have such great history teachers.

By: Traci Woodburn, Kandi Blumberg, and William Lundquist



All eyes ahead. Everyone in Mr. McCracken's Humanities class pays close attention as he gives a lecture.

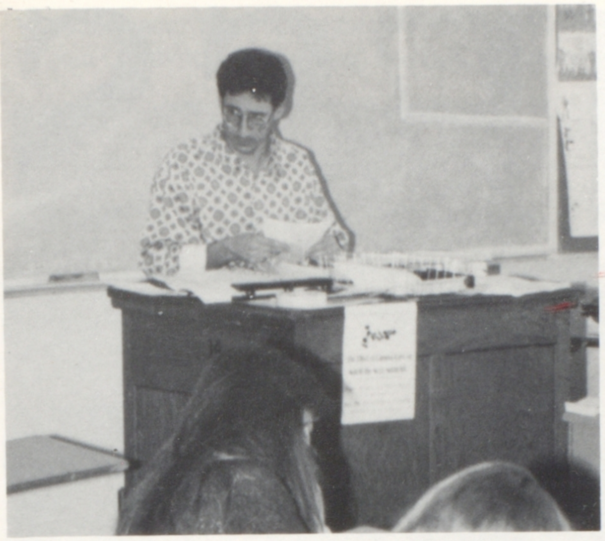
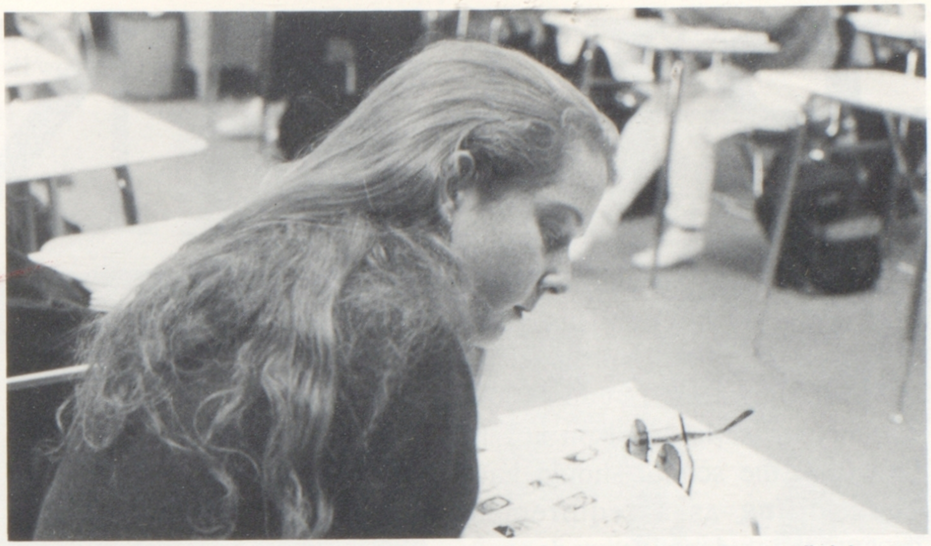
Attention to detail. Sophomores Jeff Wilson and Benjamin Reed show off a part of what they have to do in history class.



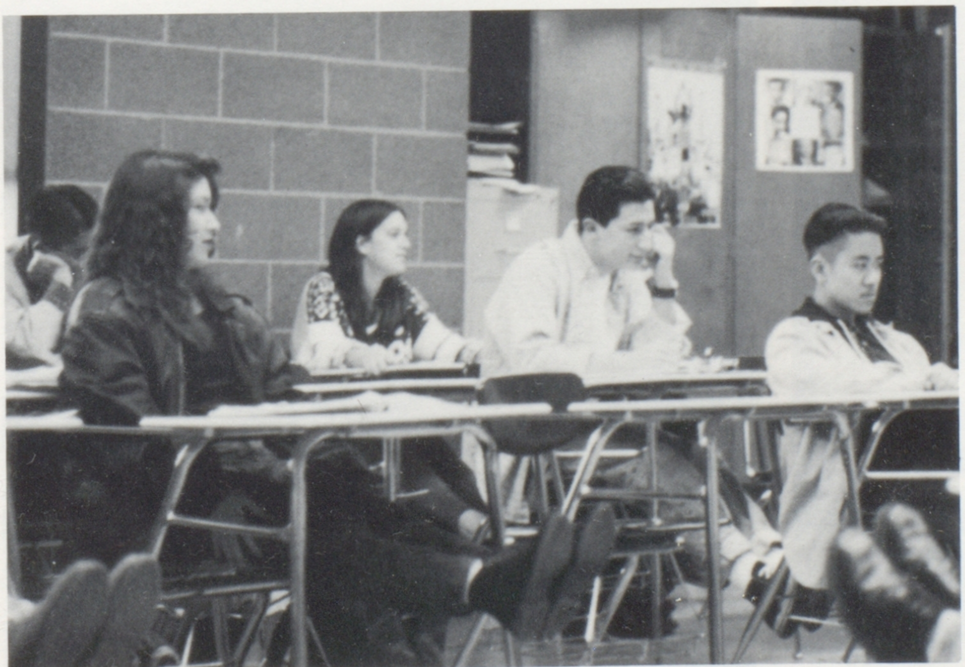
"My name is Kap Doggy Dogg, and I'm here to say, I like History and Government in a major way. "



Busy with classwork. Senior Kelly Holt takes time given in class to finish some undone assignments.

I don't understand. Junior Nathan Frye listens to the teacher as he lectures to the class.

Here's what you do... Sophomores Michael Dutch and Greg Macdonald work together as a group to finish their work faster.



Streeetch! Besides learning, classes like Sociology involve activities such as hands on work and things that don't need the use of a book.

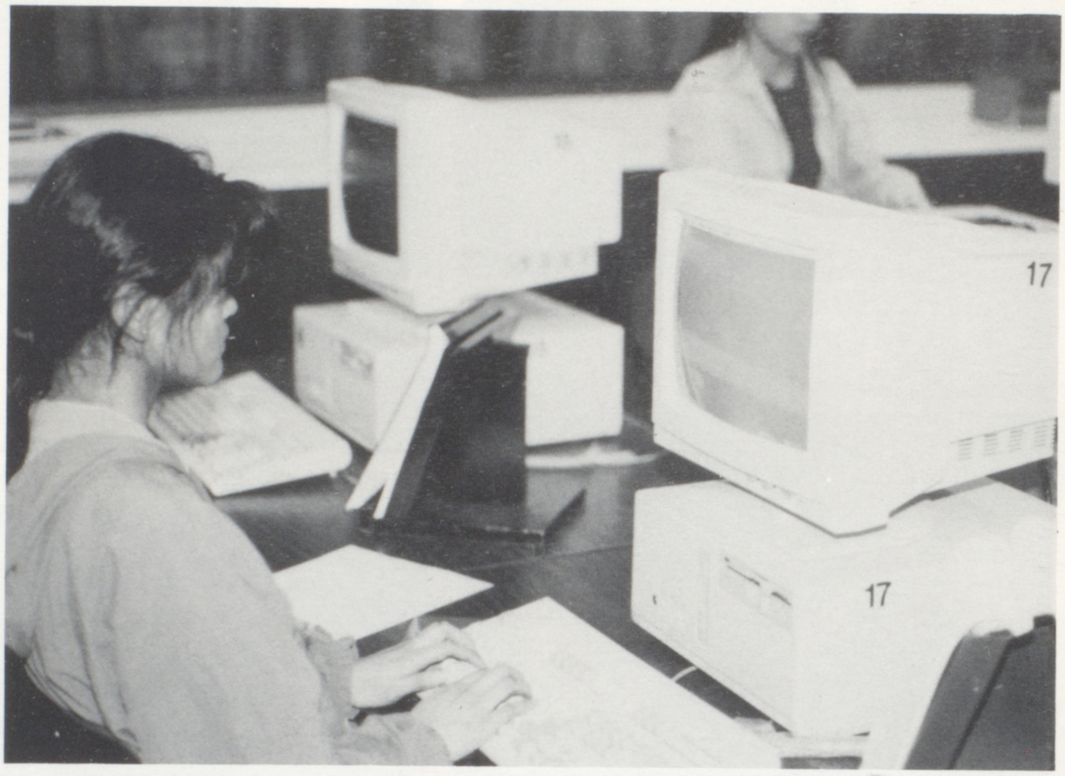
Having a good time. Senior Andrew Trenev and Mr. Rodd joke around during Rodd's third period class.

BUSINESS

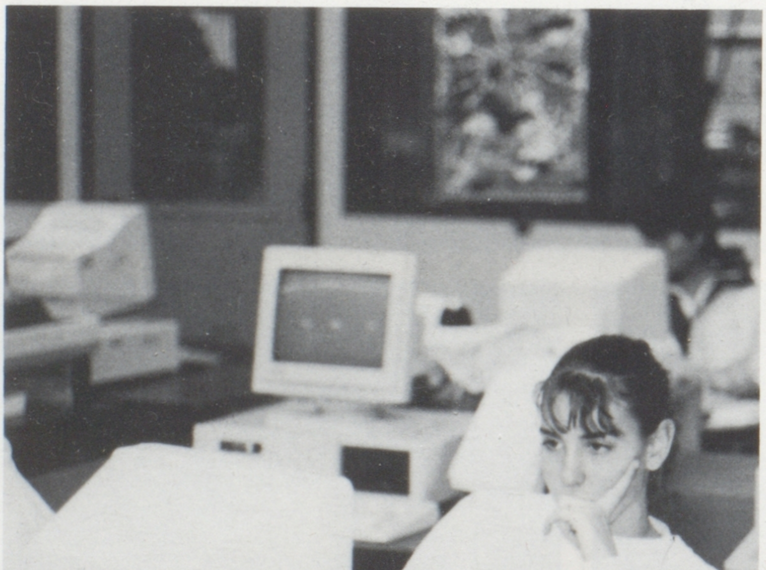
Business '94 enters the "New Age" of keyboarding. This year's business class is being introduced to 5.0 DOS on their IBM compatible. The teacher is Ms. Madison and she feels that the school should have keyboarding as a requirement because the students' future depends on their experience with Technology in the "New Age."

Cassie McKenna said, "This class helps me learn how to type faster for my job." Steve Goddard said, "Ms. Madison is my favorite teacher, all she does is help out and encourage us." "This class will help us all out in the future. I think everyone should take this cool class." said Kristina Dombholt.

By: Ted Lawton and Michael Fass



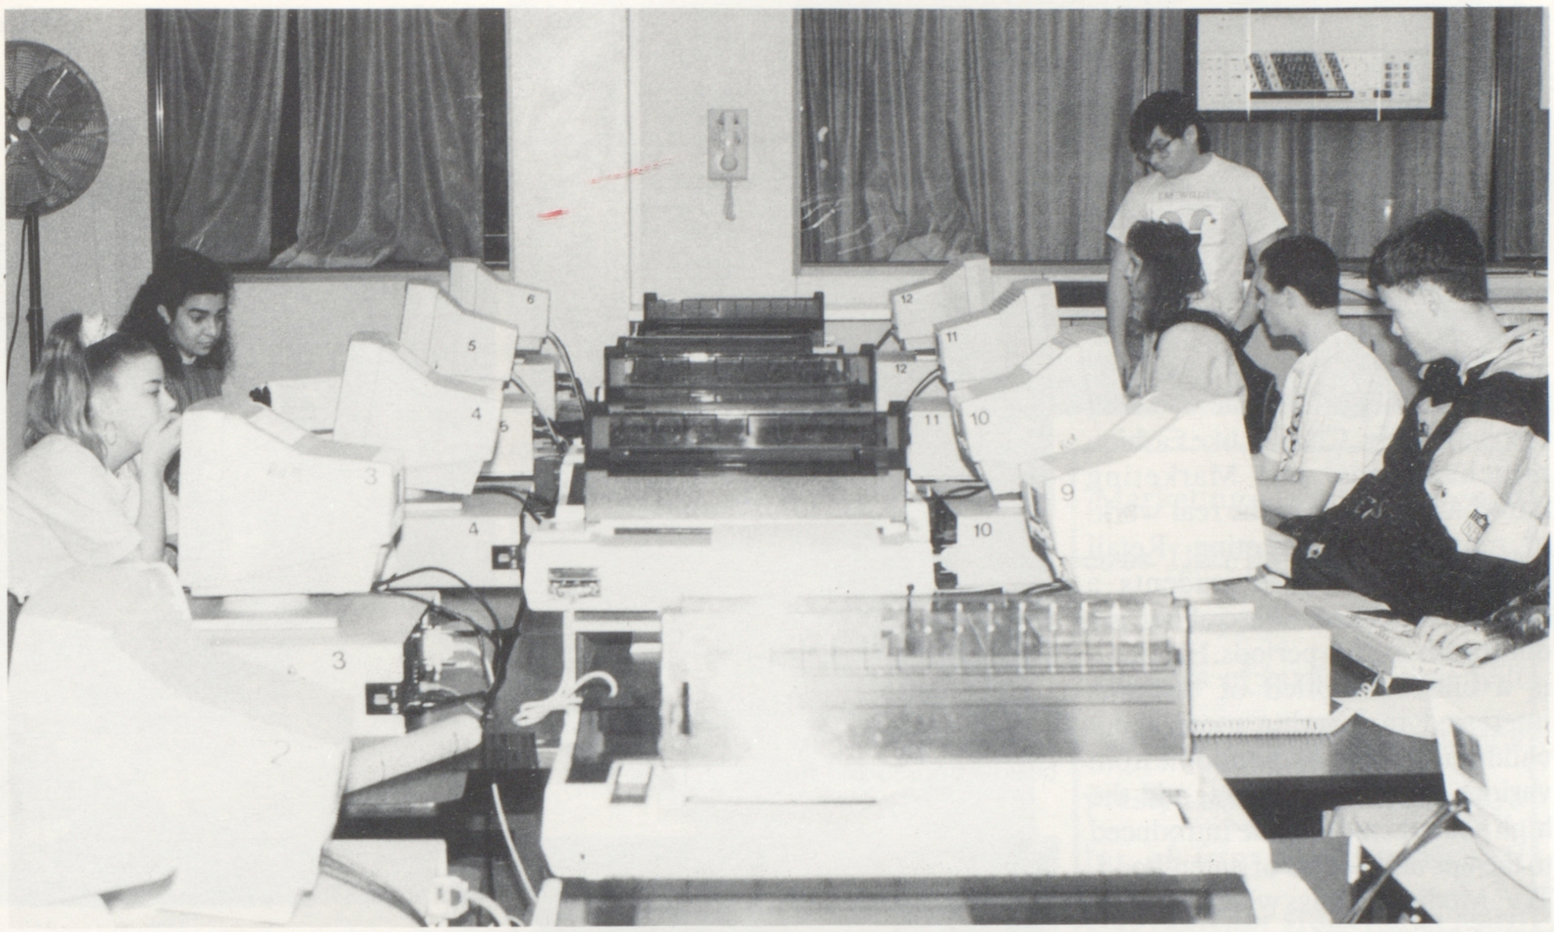
On the job, Raquel Guyyoch types on one of the many IBMs in her sixth period keyboading class.



What should I do? Cassie McKenna stares at a screen and takes time to think of what she should do next.

I need a break! Zerlina Leon, and Michelle Kim battle with thier progams after a long day of school.

Working hard. These students tackle their computer work which will later help them to succeed in life. Alisa Blair, Brooke Biehl, Jason Bowen, Kristan Domholt, Jeff Dierking, and Erik Dempsey are all work on computer programs.



I need help. Jeff Silva sits and waits for help from Ms. Madison during a tough assignment.

WHAT IS R.O.P.?

Endless preparation for the real world. Endless hours of struggling over a math problem wondering when this will be used in the future. Believe it or not there are classes at Alameda High that show when and where knowing the value of x will come in handy . Classes ,like Fashion merchandising and Marketing introduce students to the real world of money and marketing. Retail Mechandising gives students a chance to get an after school job during 5th and 6th periods. H.E.R.O. is a class compiled of students interested in learning more about children. Young children come from various day care centers, and the high school students are introduced to the ups and downs of parenthood. T.V. Media is a class where aspiring movie makers get their break. Not only are the students on screen, but they learn the basics of editing, camera work, and even directing. Taking advantage of the R.O.P. classes at A.H.S. not only looks great on a resume but puts students a step ahead of the rest of the world.

Working hard on their class project... Dianna Moran and Jackie Fernandes diligently finish their assignment.

That looks pretty good! Clara Ricabal and Seth Kreiss review what is happening in front of the camera.

Let me show you! Ms. Andrews shows her students how to finish ther class project in her Fashion Merchandising class.

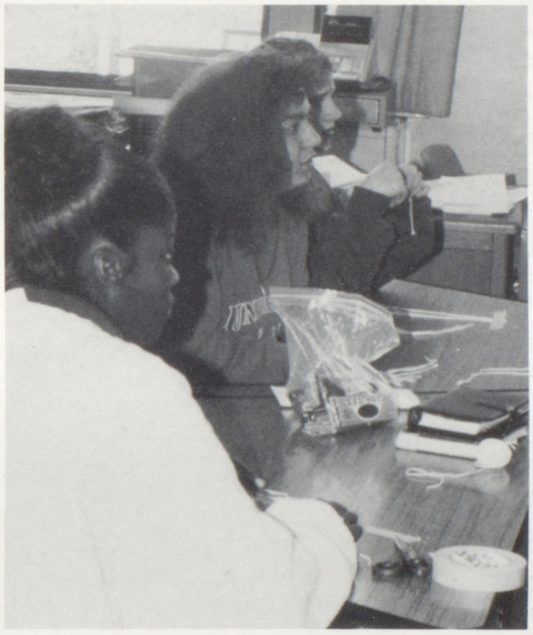
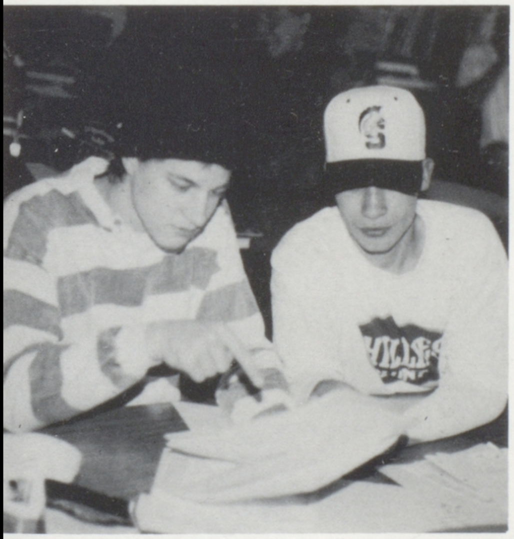
Do you understand? Mr. Potter explains to his class what the next automotive problem of the class is.

Be careful! Adriana Lopez tells her little friend how to hold on to the scissors properly.





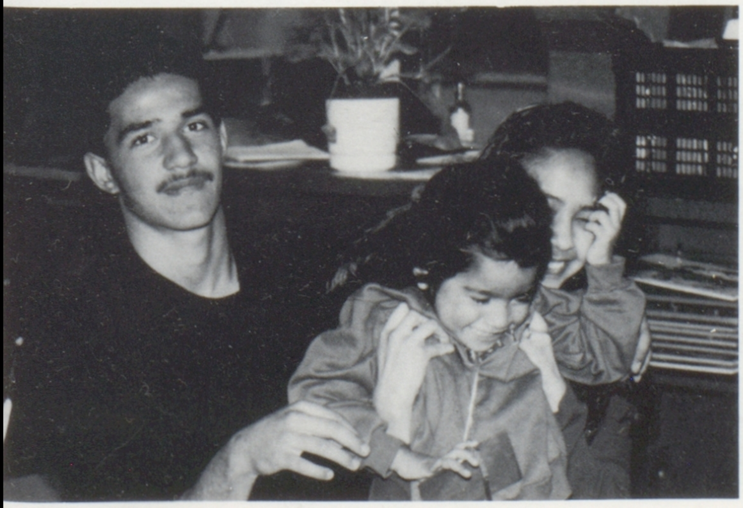
Is this the right way to do it? Wishon Chandler and Alisa Blair watch the teacher demonstrate how todo their project.

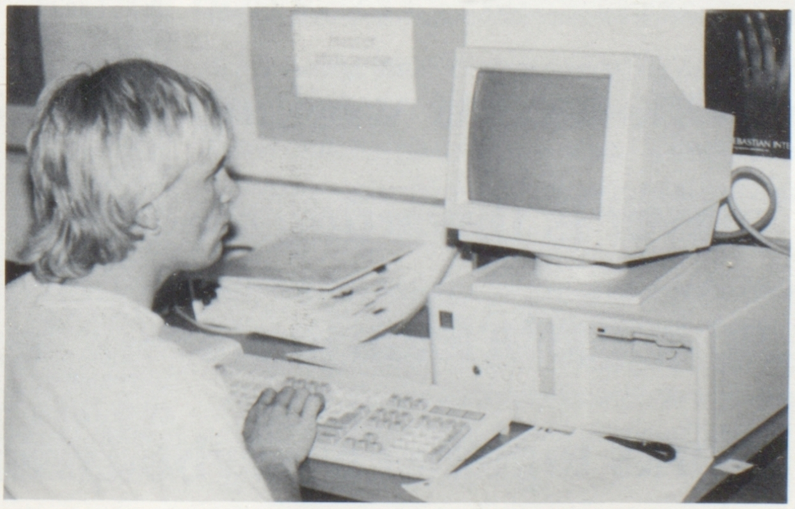
Understanding the lecture... John Stanley and Shomar Escamillo look over the notes that they just took in class.

Having fun... Zacke Hamidi and Natisa Rosco are enjoying the company that they are responsible for the day.

"Marketing education is a good class. I like this because it gives me an opportunity to learn concepts of business that will help me in the future and the present time. The class is also a lot of fun which makes it enjoyable for students to learn and and not boring like every other class. I hope marketing ed. continues through out the years. So other people can have the same oppertunity as me. -Ryan Meyer-

This is pretty easy! Zach Taylor uses learns how to use Word Perfect to type his resume.





ENDLESS DRIVE

To play on a sports team, everyone has to work as a team and compete with one another to improve themselves. Everyone that plays on a team needs to work hard to show their determination, persistance, and endless drive. The coach needs to know if a player is capable and motivated enough to work with others. Being on a sports team is being in a family. Everyone cares about each other and is there to give each other support. Team work means working together. If even one player is thwarting the teams' effort, there is no longer a team to play for. When everybody works together,everybody wins!

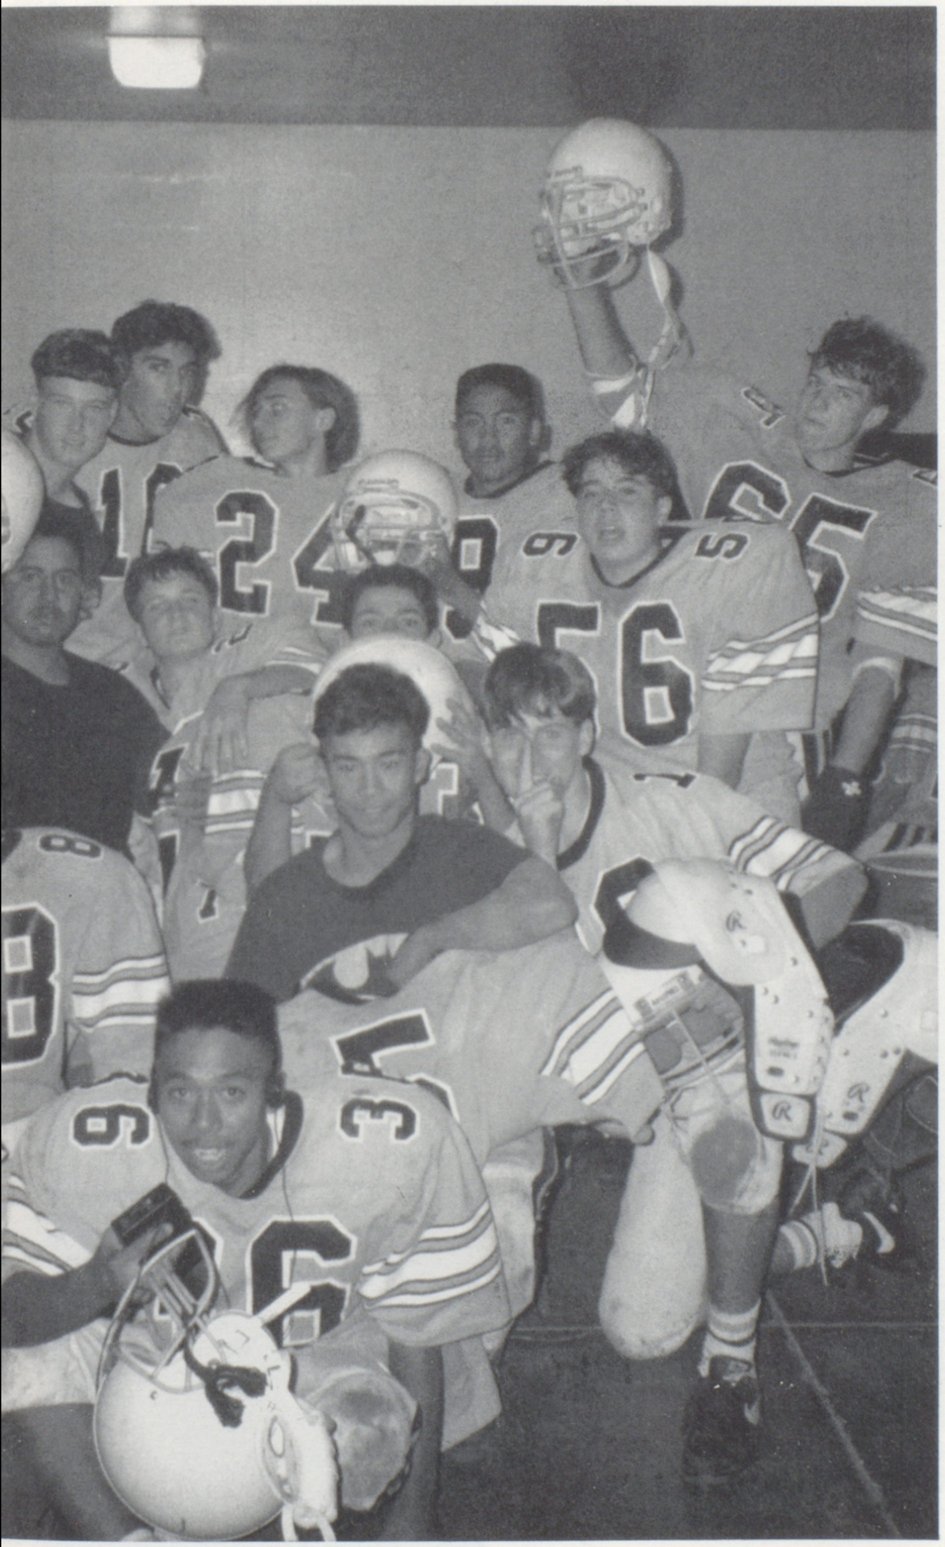
Move over, here comes Dan Nguyen! Playing hard for Alameda Varsity Football, he fights for his career rushing record of 5,000 yards and for the Hornet pride. Nguyen is a perfect example of endless determination, team work, and school spirit. Without those three charateristics, sports really isn't sports.



Way to work! Jamie Yi plays proudly for Alameda. She hits and hits the ball until the other team either gives up or misses. Still, she plays hard and strong. "I like playing for the Hornets," she said. Here, Jamie works to keep the teams upbeaten streak alive.

Get on in! The Freshman football team tried their hardest to win. Even though the team did not win a game this season, they had great spirit.In every game, each person gave 110%. The team met in the locker room to have a sad, yet happy ending to their first season of football at Alameda.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Third and eight at Kennedy's forty yard line, Hornet's ball. Hike! The ball is handed off to Nguyen, he goes up the middle, a nice block by Barnhardt and Schiender, and he breaks through the line, down's number 24 jukes left, right down the sideline and he's loose-15, 10, 5, touchdown Alameda!

The Alameda Hornet's Varsity team had one explosive game after another. The team worked like a synchronized unit. The name of the game was "The Machine". The line poured blood, sweat, and tears into every down. The running backs dug a few yards deeper. The defense punished any team who dared to challenge their honor. The quarterback, always the center of the action, put the ball into the air or handed off to team members. The quarterback just watched them go for the score like a parent watching a child take it's first steps. They always blamed themselves for mistakes."The Machine", all for one--a hundred yards to the goal line where all wounds were healed and all pain was absolved. With team work like this one, the Hornets finished the league with a 3-5 record, barely losing to cross town rivals Encinal and crushing Kennedy at Homecoming. Go Hornets!

Breaking through... Dan Nguyen is on a one way track to the end zone. This run leads to one of his five touchdowns against Kennedy High of Richmond.

Third and Two... Scott Hennessee fakes out the opposition by changing the count. As linemen Paulo Sunia, Rudy Pontemayer, and Curtis Schneider prepare to surge forward and meet the oncoming defense.

Perfection!! Ryan Hamlyn kicks another extra point, contributing to the Hornets' great season. His consistent kicking proves to be a great asset to the team.

J.V. FOOTBALL

This year's Junior Varsity football team had a fighting season. After the smoke cleared from summer practice the J.V. was left with tons of first year players and only a handful of returning veterans. After proving that they weren't pushovers to the rest of the league , injuries hit the team during the season.

Players, like Junior Fullback Brad McIntyre were out for a few games there were others out for the remainder of the season. Such as Sophomore inside linebacker Evan Herrington and Freshman cornerback Noah Chapman. Then when most fans gave up hope and the bleachers were almost empty , the JV Hornets team with hearts of fire made their other opponents regret ever hearing their quarterback say "Hike". With a team with such a solid core the future of Alameda football looks' bright . Go Hornets !

Striking distance.... The J.V. quarterback, Lance Franke has the wide receiver in sight and is ready for the score.

"It was a learning season"
-Seng Saelee-

"We had heart but we just didn't have the confidence in ourselves."
-Joe Hughes-

"We had a decent team but lack of seriousness brought us down. People thought the uniform made them men. It's the men who needs to make the uniform."
-Mike Nashida-

"We have a young and unexperienced team, I think that we will do better next year."
-Dennis Dizon-

OH NO YOU DON'T.....J.V. cornerback Sashi Manellie takes down a Kennedy receiver with his sights set on the goal line.

Road block .... Ben Reed man handles a Kennedy running back. Closing all the right gaps in the Hornets exceptional first half. Showing the Kennedy offence that they are not going anywhere on the ground.

Ready .... Gray sixty seven zap on the third go ready break. Lance Franke preps the troops for the long battle ahead, as the high powered Alameda offense prepares to fight.

You're mine.... Mike Nashida tearing through to the opposing quarterback, refusing to be denied the prize that awaits him at the end of his journey.

Go. Go.... Freshman kick returner Joe Hughes fields a kickoff, moving with percision and pointing out blocking spots for his wedge of fellow Hornet teammates

Stop.... Ben Reed and Troy Vincent attack the Kennedy line, crashing through that unpeneratrable barrier to bring down the opposing running back in mid stride.

FROSH FOOTBALL

Freshmen Football in the 1993-1994 season looked stronger than ever. Many people said, "They had the potential to become Alameda's finest."

Coming together at the beginning of the season since it was a new year in a new school and many junior high rivals now had become friends.

It wasn't long, though until the team came together and began to perform as if they had been working with one another for a long time.

The team had an offensive line which was relentless and that could hold their own with the best of defenses. They also had a strong running back and a solid defense to compliment their offense.

Their hard work during both games and practice had payed off. To finish the season knowing they had all tried their hardest was better than the feeling of any victory or defeat.

By: Teddy Lawton and William Lundquist

All for one.. Teddy Lawton, Steve Belmont, Mike Walker, and Jason Cornbread show their team spirit both on and off the field. Being able to know and like your fellow teammates is very important if you want to win games. Here these four players get together to show their support after a games conclusion.

Leaders of the pack. Team captains Tino Luis and Teddy Lawton work hard on every down and well deserve their positions as team leaders. Tino and Teddy are both very important members of the Freshman team.

Come on team! Playing football is very demanding. More so is supporting your team while off the field. Here Noel Felipe takes a break from the action to rest up for future plays.

ABOVE THE REST

Eyes widen and fists are clenched. Then the ball is served and the game begins.

This year's Varsity Women's Volleyball team worked very hard this year, putting their all into every game.

"This year has probably been the best out of all the years I've played," said Senior Ruthie Pontemayor. "We had good start on the season, and a very committed coach."

"While our record didn't show it, I think our team had a productive season. We learned to play together as a team and we had fun playing," said Sophomore Kaelyn Garvine.

Coach Timothy Vowles said, "We improved with every match as the season progressed."

This year's team may not have been the best, but at their rate of improval, they should be a great team next year.

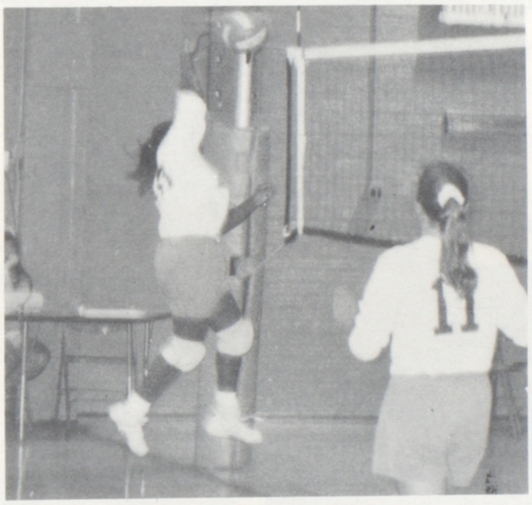
Way to go team! The women on the court congradulate each other after scoring a point during a game against Bishop O' Dowd.

Go Hornets! As a large part of playing volley ball, teamwork is needed in order to win games. Here Elaine Chin passes the ball to a fellow teammate.

"Take this!" When preparing for the big game ahead, Junior Jenee Moore nails this ball across the net. Warm-ups help loosen the players muscles before the game.

"In your face!" Junior Alissa Dubois launches a powerful spike towards the opposition on the other side of the net while Ruthie Pontemayor and Kaelyn Garvine watch.



Time out. Coach Timothy Vowles stops the game to plan the next few plays of the game. Coach Vowles did a great job with this team in this his first year of coaching here at Alameda High.

"I've got it!" Elaine Chin and Jennee Moore both hustle to get to an oncoming serve. Jennee calls for the ball to help prevent an on court collision.

Anticipation mounts for the players as they take the court. All of the prior weeks and practices now show their usefulness in the match ahead.

"In the beginning of the season, it seemed like we would have a real hard time pulling together, but with hard work and lots of improvement from everyone, we came together as a team...," said freshman Lisa Slauson.

Coach Kelly Gardner said about her first year coaching at Alameda High, "In the beginning of the season, it was tough to start a new program, but at the end of the season, the team pulled together, played with teamwork, and improved incredibly."

That they did when they came together to win both late season games vs. Encinal. In a few years, these young J.V. players should come to form a great varsity team.

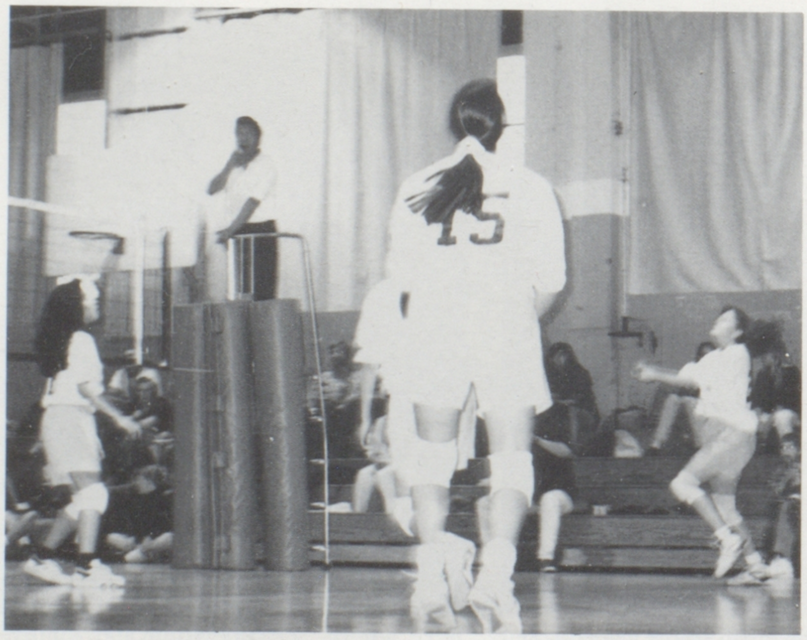
Hit the deck! Here a player stretches out and sacrifices her body in order to try and prevent her team from being scored on.



Anyone's ball here! No player wants to be blamed if a loss occurs, so everyone gives it their all on every play. Seen here, all the women on the court converge to where the ball is headed.

What now Coach? Coach Kelly Gardner gives her team some advice before the next set starts. This year's team worked very hard for their dedicated coach.

Ready or not... Junior Debra Contreras gets into the set position to better inable herself to hit the ball when she passes it to a teammate.

Thanks for the advice! Freshman Jenny Kang has a discussion with Coach Kelly Gardner after the game about what was done during the match and what could be done to improve their play.

Incoming! Freshman Lisa Slauson reacts quickly to get to the ball and put it back into the air so that her team has a chance to set the ball up for a spike attempt.

Good luck team! The women on the court wish each other good luck as well as get mentally pumped up, as the match is about to start. Team encouragement is very important in building moral among players.

Set it up! Sophomore Lauron Zimmerman watches Freshman Cindy Mui, who puts the ball up and over the net during the final game of the season. The team did a great job towards the end of their season.

OVER TIME

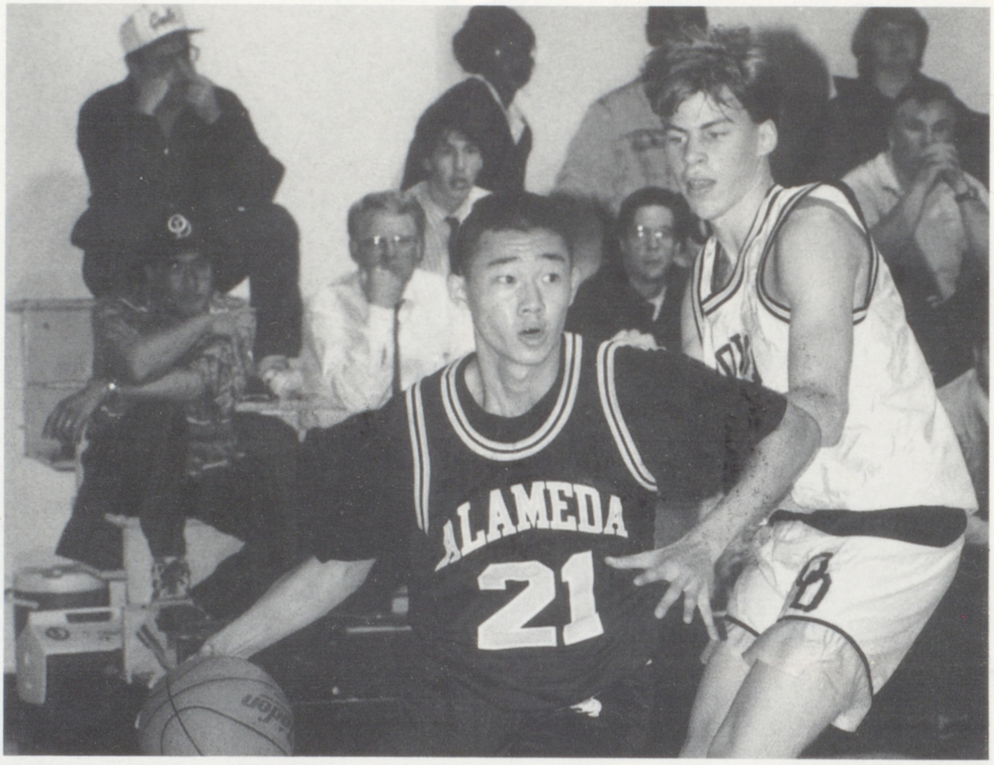
With only seconds left on the clock, the team needed one shot to win the game. Determined to score, an active player aimed at the basket, and made a triumphant shot just as the buzzer went off. Exhilerated by their victory, the players' hard work had paid off.

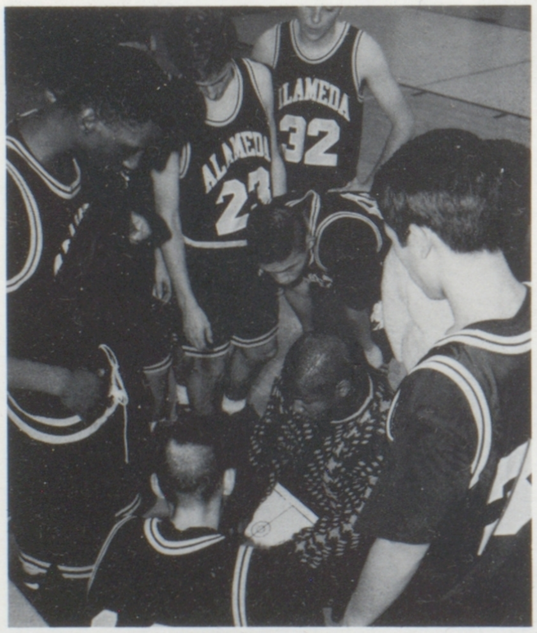
Practices were performed diligently by these athletes almost everyday during and after school. Working on drills is complicated and tiring but with the right attitude and the active use of their energy, the team was able to accomplish what they wanted.

Unlike some other teams, the main emphasis was not solely on winning. They played not only to win, but to work together as friends and teammates. Sr. Matt Shargel explains, "Our team started out with many individuals, each with different ideas about the game. Now we have come together, all in one team, all in one family."

Good chemistry, tight unity, and dedicated players lead the Alameda Varsity basketball team to a fulfilling season.

Ready to take charge! Co-captain Johann Lim takes action to get into the center court. He uses his quick thinking and moving ability to get pass his O'Dowd opponent and get closer to the net.





"Listen Up, boys.," says Coach Felix Douglas as he gives the team last minute pointers.

Being challenged by the Bishop O'Dowd defense, Jr. Mitchell Thomas uses his stretching ability and quick reflexes to set himself up for the difficult shot.

The Intro! The Alameda Cheerleaders and Pom Pons give the basketball team a warm welcome before the game starts. A team can't win without a little spirit!

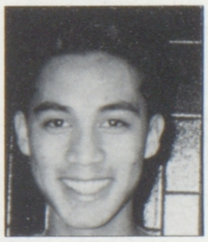
The players of the Varsity basketball team are (pictured from left to right) Alexie Escondo, Dustin Canalin, Matt Shargel, Co-captain Scott Hipol, Mitchell Thomas, Simon Stewart, Captain Johann Lim, Blandon Yee, Scott Hennessee, Ryan Speer, and Ryan Wong. Not pictured are the Coaches: Head Coach Felix Douglas, Eddie Ruiz, Frank Yamasaki, and Ron Williams. The players along with the coaches work together as a team, building up unity and dedication to success. This teamwork makes the Alameda High Varsity team of 1994 a winning team.



"Basketball is my favorite sport because it brings people on my team closer together. I've been playing it for four years and I've enjoyed every minute of it."

-Sr. Alexie Escondo-

THE FAST LANE

They don't quit. This year's 1993-94 edition of the J.V. Hornets basketball team had a lot to prove after an abysmal 2-5 start to kick off the season. Every team has their problems and bad days, though. They were able to live with the ebb and flow of the season, developing momentum and maturity, and race their way to a 15-11 mark.

"They're young. We look for big things from our returning players and Freshmen. With a little hard work, I'm sure that we'll have an awesome Varsity team for the next few years," remarked Coach Eddie Ruiz.

The boys' JV basketball team was a collection of different strengths, and styles of play, with little experience playing together, though. They all but made up for it with their aggressive play, willingness to learn, and right attitude. Basketball is not a game for those without a big heart and strong desire to play. In the end, all the ingredients made for the team, a winning combination!

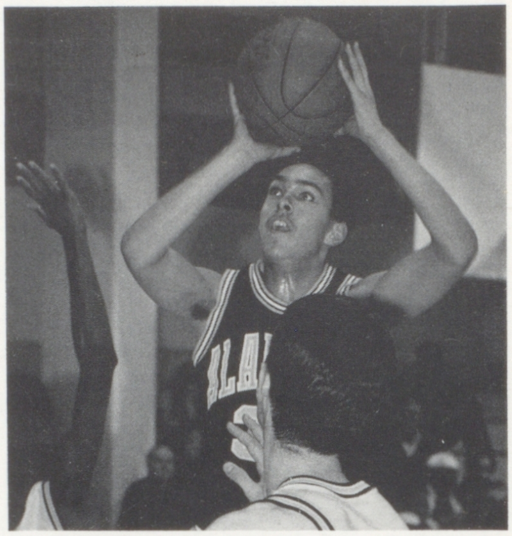
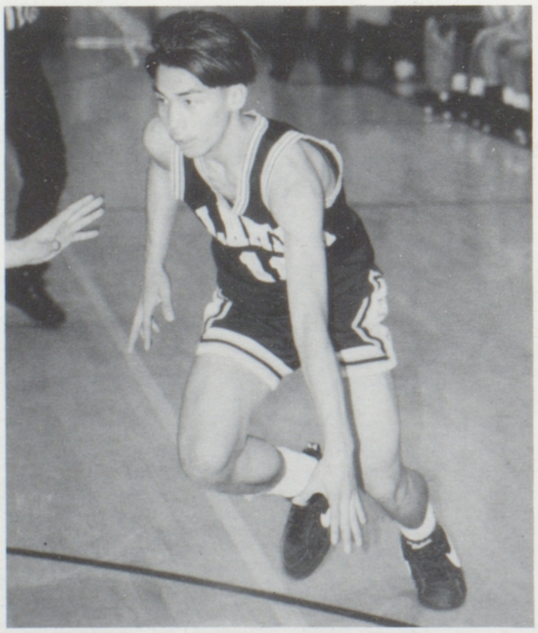
Within his reach, Sean Omen battles for the loose rebound in the key to get the ball back for the Hornets.



Stop and pop! With his eyes set on the score, Isaiah Martin leaps over his defenders for a clear and easy jumper.



Putting the ball on the floor, Alvin Vinoya looks for any open holes in the defense. Open lanes to the basket seldom show themselves.

Get out the peanut butter, 'cause here comes the jam, as Isaiah Martin soars in for a simple, yet poignant score.

Using his body, Ryan Spear takes the ball to the rim over the outstretched fingertips of the opponent.

Developing a halftime strategy, Coach Eddie Ruiz sets the table for the second half. Halftime pep talks get the team focused and ready to get out on the court. What is practiced and learned in scrimages and practice sessions, is reviewed by the coach and applied on the court. The coach is the link that brings the team together, building confidence in players and enstalling in them a winning attitude. The team is on all four cylinders when every player plays together toward a common goal -- winning.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

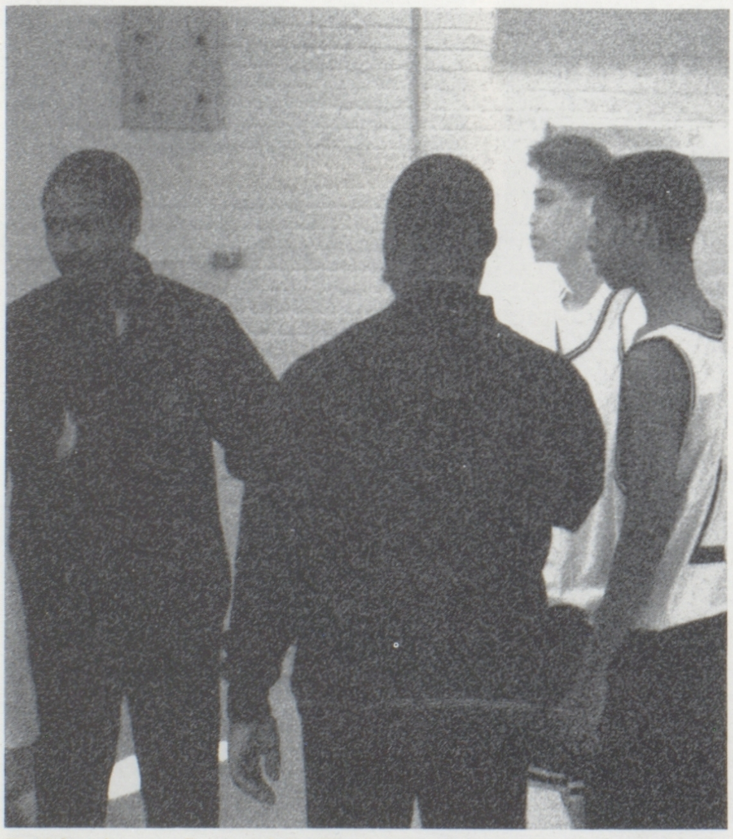
The young players run up and down the court. Every last bit of energy used in conditioning and practicing. With each practice their coaches hope that the team will continue to progress and turn into an unstopable unit.

The Freshman Basketball team is a sign of what is to come. The talent and energy they posses now, will be used to make them better players in the future and tough to beat once they reach the Varsity level.

Along with many new experiences at Alameda High, they also face one of the toughest in playing basketball for the school. Most of the time in practice is spent conditioning teh players as well as perfecting their skills in all parts of the game.

With their determination, as well as that of their coaches, they will all be very good players in the near future.

Preparing for the game. Number thirteen takes some practice shots during warm-ups before a game.



Talking it out. Some of the Freshman players talk about the game with their coach after the game.

Putting on the pressure. Two Alameda players show their team's solid defense as they force one of their opponents to pass the ball away.

Heading down the court. After Alameda scores, the players head to the other end of the court to defend against the other team.

Stopping play. A time out is called and play is stopped so the teams can evaluate their play and send in new plays.

Go for the score! A player takes to the hoop to practice his lay-ups before a game.

Starting drills. Practicing for perfection, the team works on mastering their shooting and rebounding skills.

WOMEN'S VARSITY BASKETBALL

"Nananananananaaa" the theme song of the Girl's Varsity B-ball team fills the gym. The girls take their lap around the court like a well trained army battle lion. After a loss of most of their Varsity starters last year, the Varstity put together a fine team of well rounded athletes. Every member equally needed, from the ballet-like gorgeous shot of Freshman Stacey Chinn to the back board crashing of Mary Paquett, Beth Rogers, and Marie Chinn. Or the "Go to" grace under pressure of Junior Andrea Thieme to the 3 point excellence of Chen Lang and Stacey Thomas. Even the moves to the lane of Venela Escondo and Nhung Tran to the aggressive return of missed shots by Bernadette Brown and Jenny "J.Q." Quan.

Every aspect of the game was mastered and controlled by the lady Hornets as they trampled the competition on the way to a 12-3 record. Go Hornets!

WOMEN'S J.V. BASKETBALL

" GET OUT," erupts the bellows of the Alameda Hornet fans as they cheer on the Girl's J.V. B-Ball team. Only moments before, center Shirley Sono had just swatted a shot by a St. Elizabeth's Girls J.V. guard, who was driving through the lane.

The girls' team ran through the opposition like a heard of wild buffalo. All year, they show cased their young and unperfected raw talents. Putting together a succesful season took plenty of hard hours of practicing and preparing for the big games. All sweat and time spent paid off whenever they felt the sweet sense of victory.

The team put together an impressive record. The fourth quarter was the time when the team stepped up their game, showing no mercy to the opposition. Defenders cowered from the Hornet's fast-paced play, till their hearts burst and the spirits were broken. They ended their season with a 7-8 record. Take it to the hole, Hornets!

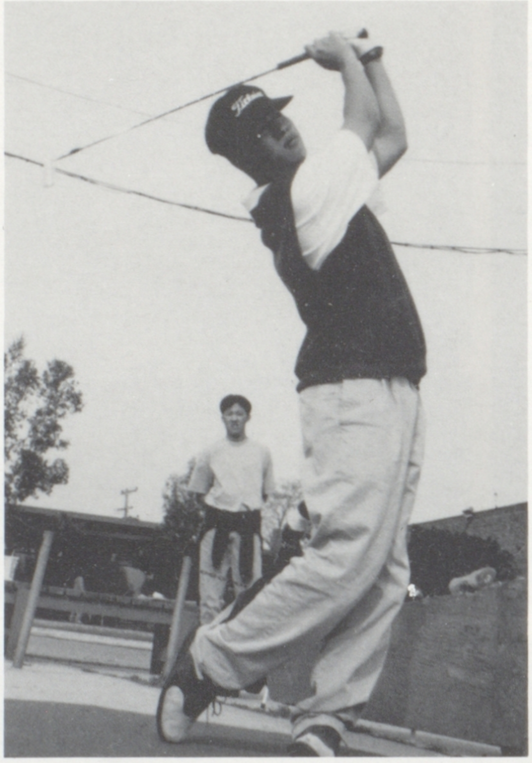
HOLE IN ONE!

So, what's all the excitement about golf? People's first impressions of the AHS golf team is a bunch of guys and a girl who walk around in an overgrown backyard, hitting a little white ball. Welcome to the world of golf. Like all sports, golf takes a fair amount of skill, practice, and dedication. Just ask Michael Jordan.

The Alameda Golf Complex at Bayfarm Island was the home turf for the AHS team. The golfers tee-off everyday. Spending endless hours each afternoon trying to perfect their strokes. First of all, they practice at the driving range, then to the putting grass. No time was wasted practicing, that made the players more confident in their golf game. Spending time together in the golf course, not only brought the team closer together but made playing more enjoyable.

By: Ryan Gong

Fore!!! Jason Cheng tees off at the driving range. The driving range is their practice ground for working on drive distance. A good tee off can help to score high.



Dig that ball out! In golf, sandtraps are one of the golfers' main enemies. Mari Chinn sucessfully hits the ball out of the dirt and on the green.

Nice Putt! Paul Blaisdell nicely putts in the ball from the green. Putting takes skill, form and patience. It is not easy to master in.

"This year is like uh.. kinda not as cool as last year, because we lost couples of the good players from last year. Those dudes could really hit some balls. But this year is like uh.. more challenging for us. We have quite a few new comers and they seem to have a lot of potential. I believe next year, they will become more experienced and we will be able to win more matches. I hope in the coming year, more students will join the golf team because golf is a very challenging sport."

- Jason Cheng-

Can't wait to play! Mari Chinn and Jason Cheng walk anxiously from the parking lot to the golf course. They can't wait to start.

It's going going... Dong Yi calculates and putts the ball towards the hole. He hopes it goes in and then it would be a birdie.

Whack! Dustin Wayne shows some musck in his stroke. With the correct form, one can drive the ball very far and accurately.

On your mark, get set go! Jeff Stewart and Todd Webber have a putting contest. Just a little friendly competition, no prize will be awarded.

Have time to chat? Dong Yi, Adam Andrews and Ben Blaisdell go over some strategy before a match. Their smiles show that they are going to beat the opponents in the upcoming match.

Practice makes perfect. Mari Chinn takes several practice putts on the green before a game. It always helps to warm-up first. Good luck AHS golf team!

ENDLESS CONQUESTS

Each match begins with double the practice. All the players spend countless hours perfecting their backhands and forehands. All for the express purpose of destroying the competition.

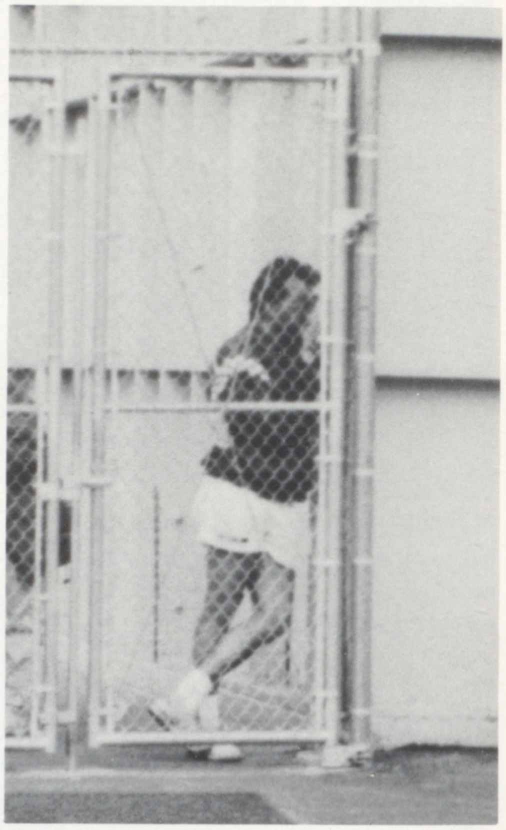
This year's Men's Tennis Team is just as strong as ever. Once again they're expected to be a very strong force in their league. Meets are won by the majority which ever team gets the most wins out of seven games played. Usually the Alameda team wins all individual games.

"This year's team is full of potential and my job this year is to get us to realize this potential. I've got the best one and two singles players in Blandon Yee and Jason Chin and I'm going to try and build the team around their leadership." said Coach Fairfield.

With the way these players perform, all challengers will be made quick work of.

By: William Lundquist

Concentrating hard. Senior Shaival Dave puts a lot of thought a effort into his game as he comes swats at the tennis ball.



Patiently looking on... Coach Hennessee watches on as his players take on a team from De Anza High.

Getting set. Blandon Yee prepares himself for the on coming serve from his opponent on the other side of the net.

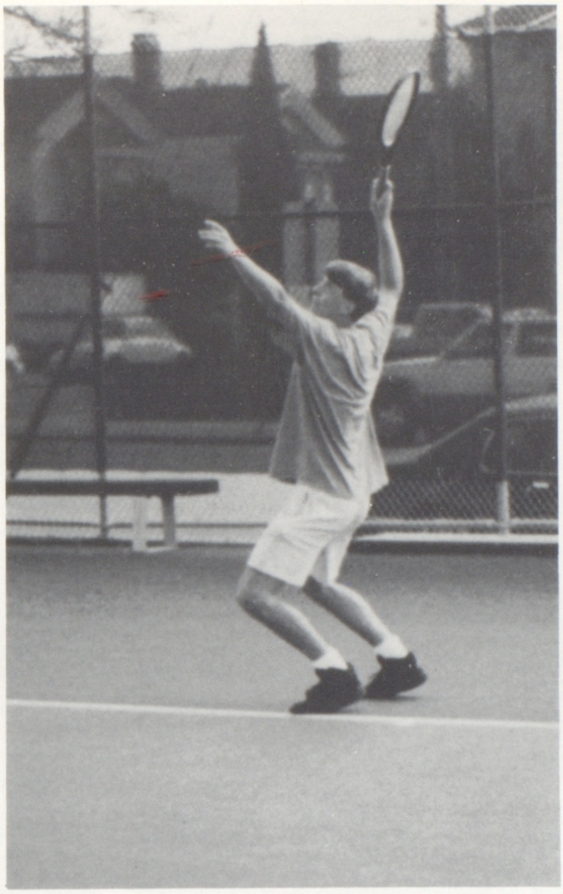
Working together... Doubles partners Shaival Dave and The Tran combine their efforts to take down the other team.

"This year tennis has been better than ever before, especially because the team has so much depth."
-Kevin Dement-

"I think that we'll go undefeated this season. We're the power house of the league and usually we easily beat the other team."
-Brian Parodi-

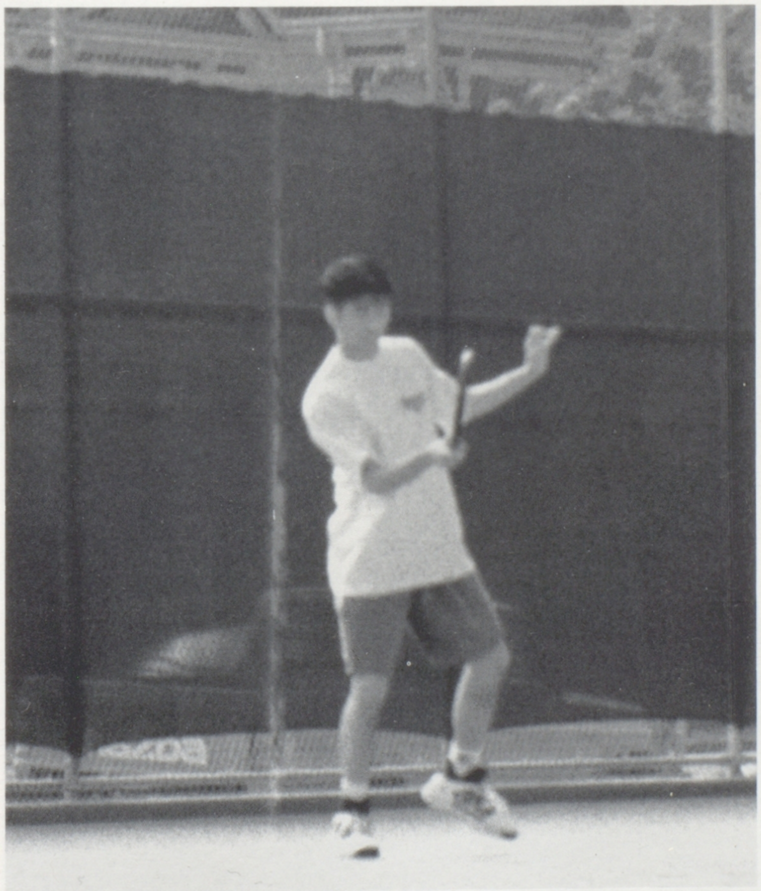
"Tennis is poetry in motion."
-Everett Louis-

"I think that we have a very good team and no one can beat us."
-Shaival Dave-



Serving the ball... Junior Scott Hennessee launches the ball over the net during pre-game warm ups. Practice always makes perfect.

Reaching for the sky... Senior Brian Parodi takes aim to bring down a vicious serve to his competitor. This is his third year on the team.



Ready to send it back... Jason Chin sets up to return the ball back to the other side of the net. Tennis is a game of endurance and coordination, as Jason proves.

Awaiting the next play... Mike Desai stops for a moment to take a rest between sets. Taking breaks in between points is a great way to prepare for rest of the match.

QUEENS OF THE COURT

The tennis player squints her eyes as she face the blazing sun. Bodies begin to tense as palms start to sweat. The adrenaline rushes through the veins of the player as she serves the ball. That is how a lot of tennis players feel during a match. "Tennis is different from what people think, there is a lot more involvment. It is not just a drive to do your best, there is always college scholarships to motivate the players," said Jenny Hosel. But not all tennis players play tennis for just the scholarships, many players like Lucy Chu just think of tennis as " a relaxing hobby and a great pass time."

Tennis requires tremendous amount of energy, endurance and stamina. "It's a good challege to try to get to the first seat," Stephanie Wong said. Their ambition keeps them going along with the encouragement from the fellow team members and the coaches. "We have consistently proved that we are the best team in our league," said Alisha Lee. The team works hard to get to where they are today. The team had a geat season and they are still unbeatable!

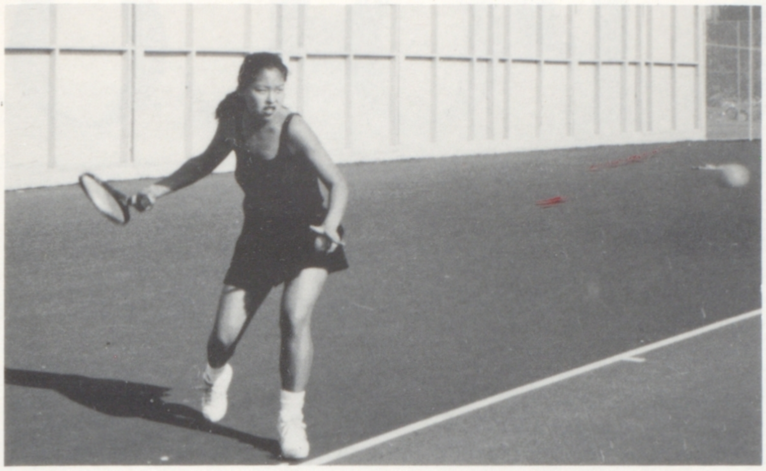
Reaching for the sky Junior Monica Gilkey tests her powerful serve during practice against one of her teammates. Being able to serve well is important in a match.

Bodily sacrifice is part of the tennis game, Freshman Jennie Quan runs after a cross court shot during a tough practice. Constant battle on the court helps to sharpen their skill.

Warming up for her last big match Suyon Yi concentrates on psyching out her opponents during the highly intense game. Concentration is a big factor in the world of tennis.

Victory is oh so sweet! Sylvia Ahn and Chen Lang, the dynamic duo exchange a victorious high five in their excitment after winning the first set of their challenging tennis match. Cooperation is the key that is greatly needed for playing a doubles match.

A look of determination flashes across Senior Sylvia Ahn's face as she step into a powerful forehand.



Moving cross the court, Senior Erin Yi conquers a down the line shot which won the match agianst the big Encinal game.

WATER POLO

Beginning September 10th and lasting a gruesome two months, the A.H.S. Water Polo team wrapped up their sesason by placing sixteenth at the North Coast sectionals on November 6th and placing second to Encinal High at the A.C.C.A.L. tournament.

The team put in all that they had throughout the season, but they still fell short in winning games. This season, with only six girls on the team, the team competed in 24 games. A major asset to the team was Andriy Shevchenko, a foreign exchange student from the Ukraine. Coming in as a rookie, he scored a total of 21 goals to assist the team.

All in all, the water polo team tried their best and kept up good spirits during the fall season. Water Polo is not just a sport. It takes speed, stamina, hard work, and timeless effort, something not everyone can do. But with the Hornet team, anything is possible!

Looking cool in his shades, Coach Rodd contemplates his team's strategy to successfully win the game.

Playing Water Polo aggressively, Jeremy Meier tries diligently to retrieve he ball from his Jet opponent.

Looking intensely for a teammate, Jaime Olson scans the pool for the perfect maneuver to score. In Water Polo, teamwork is extremely important.

Making eye contact with Coach Rodd, Scott Monroe seeks guidance before executing his next play. Many players look for Coach Rodd for help in a game.

Watching the game before going in, Danielle Gulden studies the action going on in the game. Checking out the others is a great way to get ahead of the game.

With a natural flip of his wrist, Senior Ryan Leong quickly throws the ball to another teammate, assisting in a great play to achieveendless goals for the Hornet team. He helps the team a lot in the twenty four game season.

After blocking an unsuccessful attempt to score from the opponents, Jason Andrew is poised for more goalie action. He shows that playing Water Polo is hard work.

ENDLESS SWIMMING

It's six o' clock on a chilly winter morning and most A.H.S. students are still in bed or just waking up, but a group of about thirty men are jumping into a cold pool about to swim for the next hour and a half.

"It's tough to get up so early, but we need the practice and it's actually kind of fun," says Junior Dany Gamboa.

The men's swim coach is Robert Rodd, who is loved by all team members. He is truly inspirational and pushes all his swimmers to the limit in hopes that they will all do well and possibly make it to the North Coast competitions.

Practices also take place in the afternoons as well as in the mornings.

During spring break the practices become even more grueling to prepare for the upcoming League and A.H.S. events.

This year's swim team is just as strong as ever since most of the team members are all returning from last season making the team tough to beat in meets.

With the talent these swimmers possess and the superb coaching that they all receive, all should be able to do well in all major competitions to come.

"I think swimming makes you yoked! I can sure see the difference in the mirror every morning and my strokes have greatly improved!"

-Robert Hudson-

"Rodd makes us work... his unusual way of getting his point across is taken into all of our minds. He's funny, yet serious at the same time. That is what makes us a winning team..."

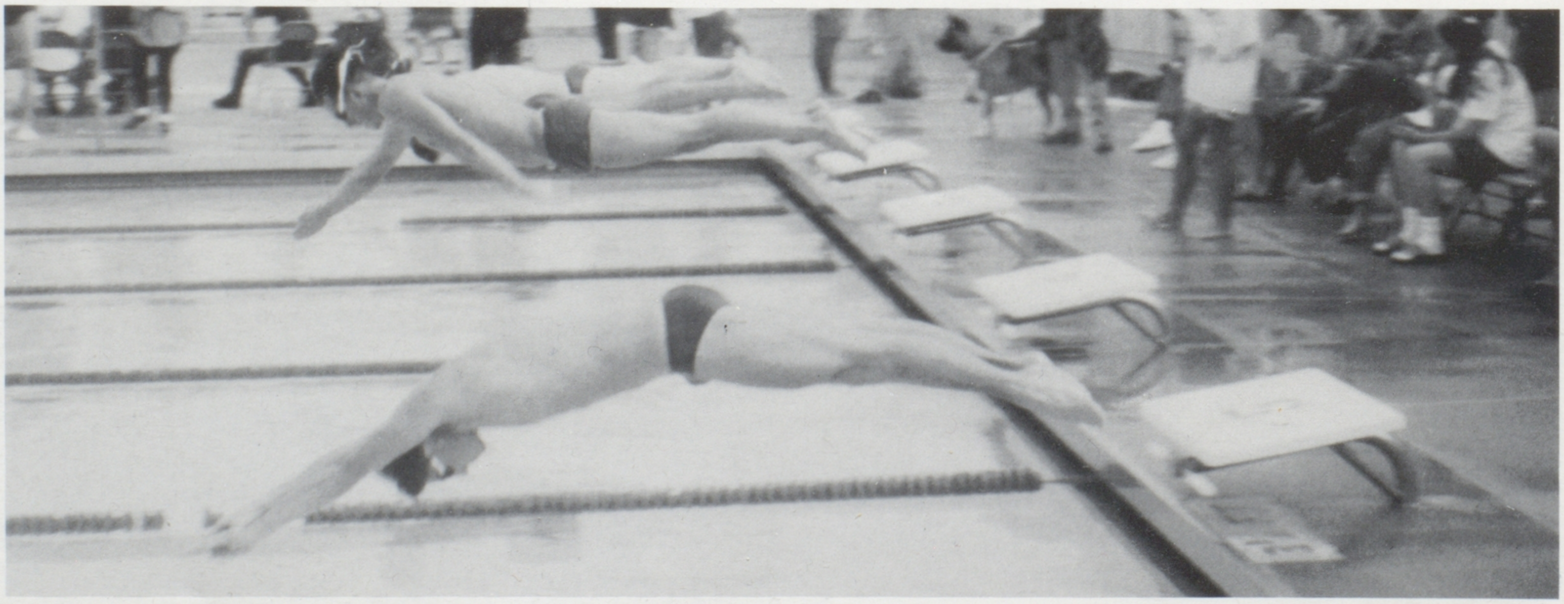
-Dennis McDaniels-

"I think coach Rodd is the coach of all coaches. He is a true friend and a leader. His 60's style hair cut really lets him be one of the guys, again he's like my second father."

-Jason Andrews-

"I think swimming is a state of mind. It's more of a mental aspect than anything else. You need strength in all sports, but to get over that physical barrier, you need to have strength in your mind."

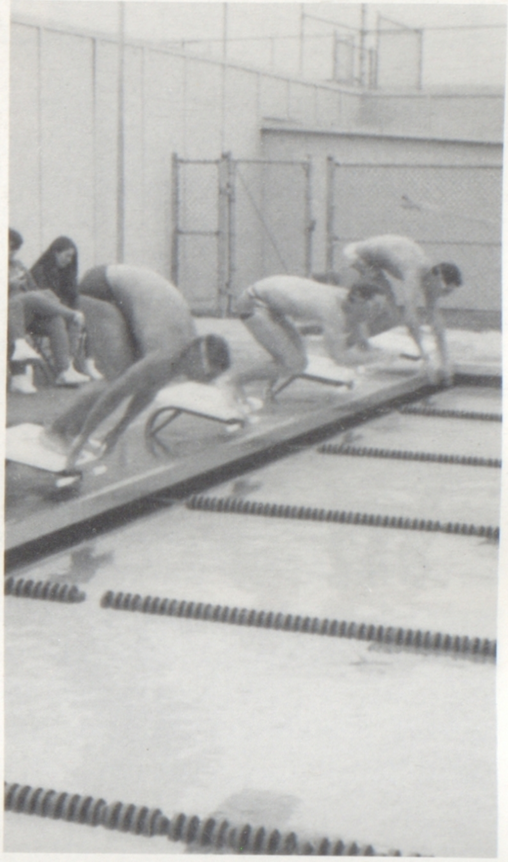
-Jeremy Meier-

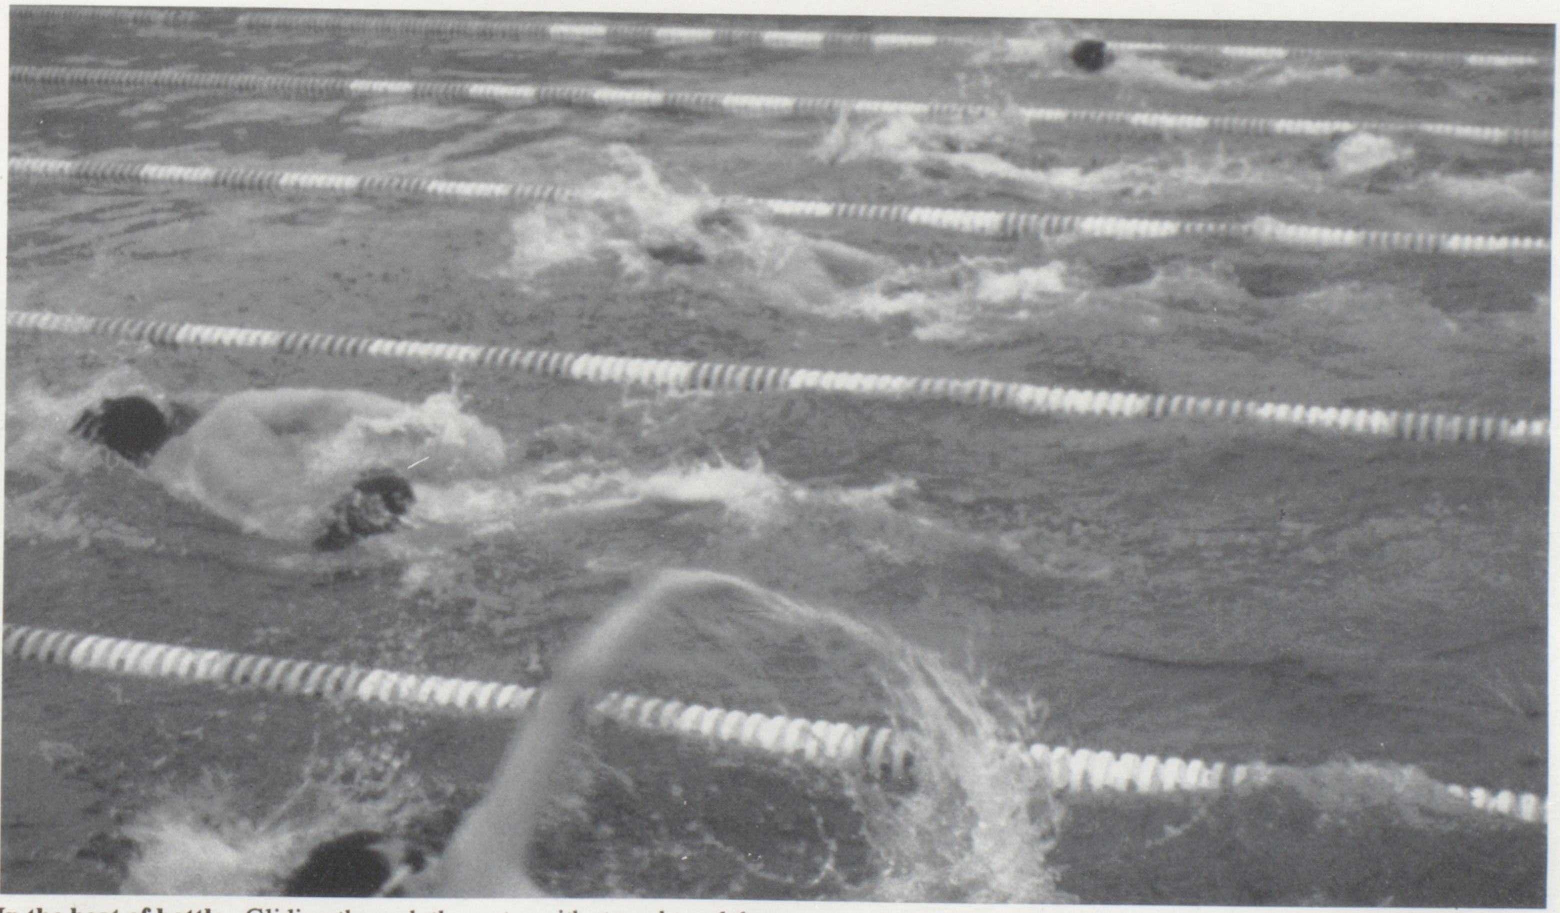


And they're off... The swimmers vault off the starting platform and begin the competition. Every swimmers is very determined in their efforts and none ever give up. In a sport such as swimming, it's not size that is important, it is the spirit and skill that helps to enable a person to win in their event.

Looking tanned and intense. Men's swimming coach Robert Rodd talks to his swimmers about an up coming meet. Rodd has been at the helm of the swimming team for over ten years. His dedication is reflected in the fine program he has created.

Beginning their descent. A good start is always crucial to getting a good time and the win. Here some swimmers get a jump on their opponent.





In the heat of battle. Gliding through the water with strenght and the greatest of ease, Alameda High swimmers give it their all to defeat the competition. This free-style event is almost at a close and all the competitors are neck and neck as they approach the wall and the finish to a long, tiring race.

ENDLESS SPLASHING

It's swim time once again and the "Splashing Hornets"are ready to beat all other competitiors.The JV and Varsity teams both consists of powerful swimmers.

The swimmers are commited to their sport.They practice every day 6th period, rain or shine.They are trained to do the best they can and most importantly, to win the meet! Darlene Cirmelli and Linda Monroe are the captains of the teams and they' were ready to lead their team to victory. This year's competition looked alot tougher then last years but the Splashing Hornets seemed to have it all under control.With a lot of school spirit the swimmers knew they had to be strong and do the best they could to win. These girls worked really hard to keep the Hornets name in the limelight and for that let's thank them."This was my first year on the team, I met alot of nice people. Ms.Curry is a really good swim coach, she makes us work really hard and she gives us alot of individual help. I think it was a good year".-China Crawford-

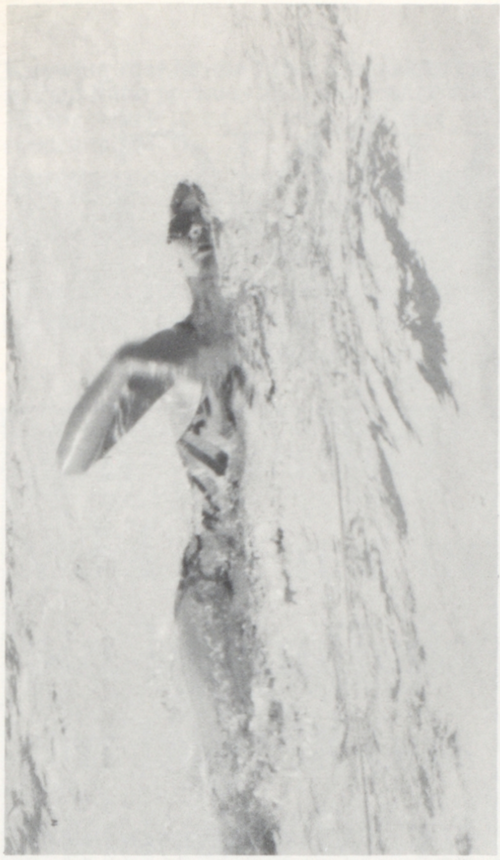
The Varsity Women's swimmers take a short break from a long and exhilrating practice.A lot of hard work always pays off, in some way.

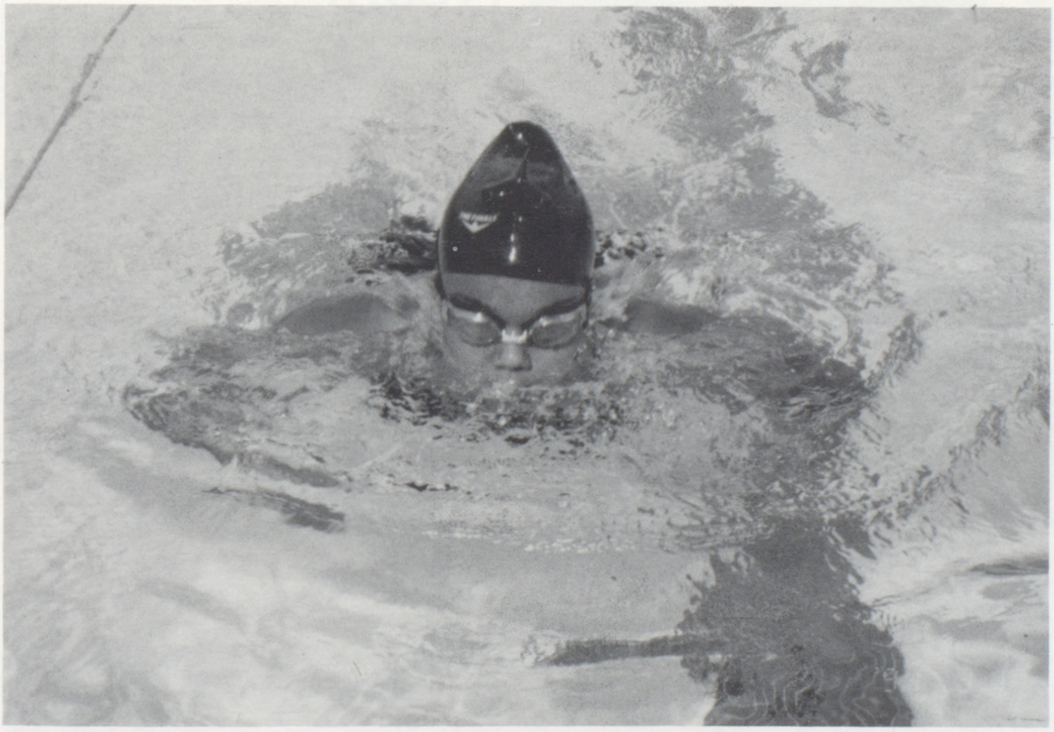


Gasping for air, Libby Connolly heads back for the last half of her laps in the afternoon practices.It's important for a swimmer to have good breathing skills in the pool.

Side to Side, Tara Alliger does her daily sixth period routine to make her team the best.A daily routine of exercise can build up speed.

To exercise her arm muscles, Nathalie Overfield does the classic windmill. This can help for speed,while competing in a swim meet.

After laps are done the swimmers take time to enjoy the cool water.It's not just winning that counts,but they have to like it.



Practicing her breast stroke, China Crawford use's her powerful athletic ablity to improve her chances of doing well in a meet. As a Freshman, China is dedicated to her first year on a high school sports team.

ENDLESS DIVING

Climbing up the ladder, rung by rung a diver quickly goes over all the important aspects for a perfect dive. Why would someone in their right mind jump off a board three meters in the air, into a 12 foot deep pool? " The rush I get is unexplainable ," responds third year diver Sabrina Leslie.

This year's team has 8 members and they welcomed a new Coach Jason Lipton. He pushes the team to their limit s and beyond. Workouts are two hours long, half of which is spent just warming up. Before they can go near the water the divers must work and tone all the important muscles of their bodies. The rest of practice is spent perfecting their dives and listening to Coach Jason call out criticisms and compliments.

As the season moves on, the team has to deal with complictations of team members getting ill and missing two weeks of practices and meets. Injuries are common in this sport as well as sprained ankles and bad headaches.

By: Kimberley Joy Miner

Preparing to take the plunge is Brad Mc Intyre. This is Brad's first year as a diver and hes becoming a true success story.

> "Diving has mentally challanged me and helped me to over come many of my fears."
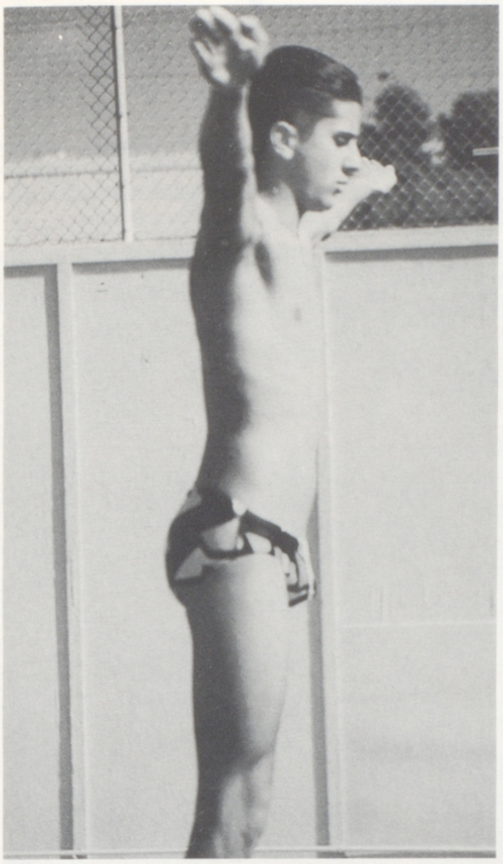
> -Tina Oakes-

And 1 and 2 and 3 and 4... Dara Kaplan knows that warming up every muscle is important to prevent any and all injuries.

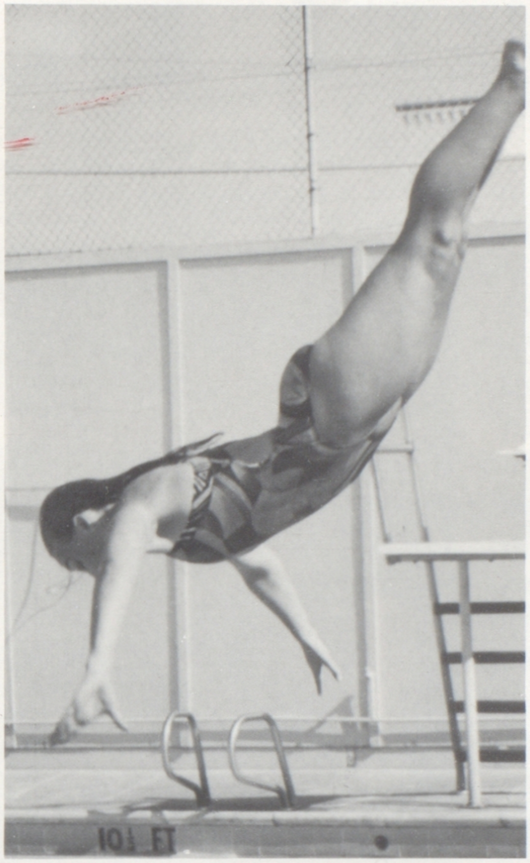
Waiting in line for their turn on the diving board are Sabrina Leslie, Tina Oakes, Melissia Hickey, Brad Mc Intyre and Paul Ratto.With a mixture of old and new members, this group really came together as a team.

Entering the water with sheer perfection is Melissa Hickey. A new member on the team Melissa is proving to be a strong addition.

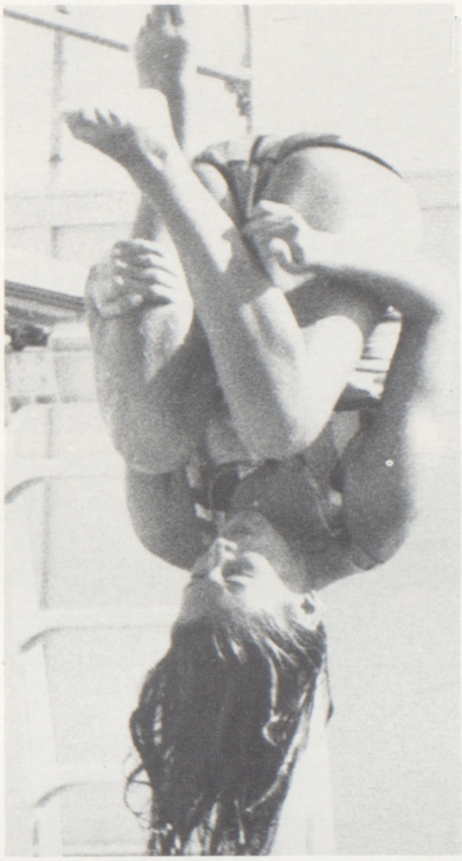
Knowing that he can't just jump right into it, Paul Ratto prepares for a complacted dive. Diving takes a lot of time, practice and concentration.

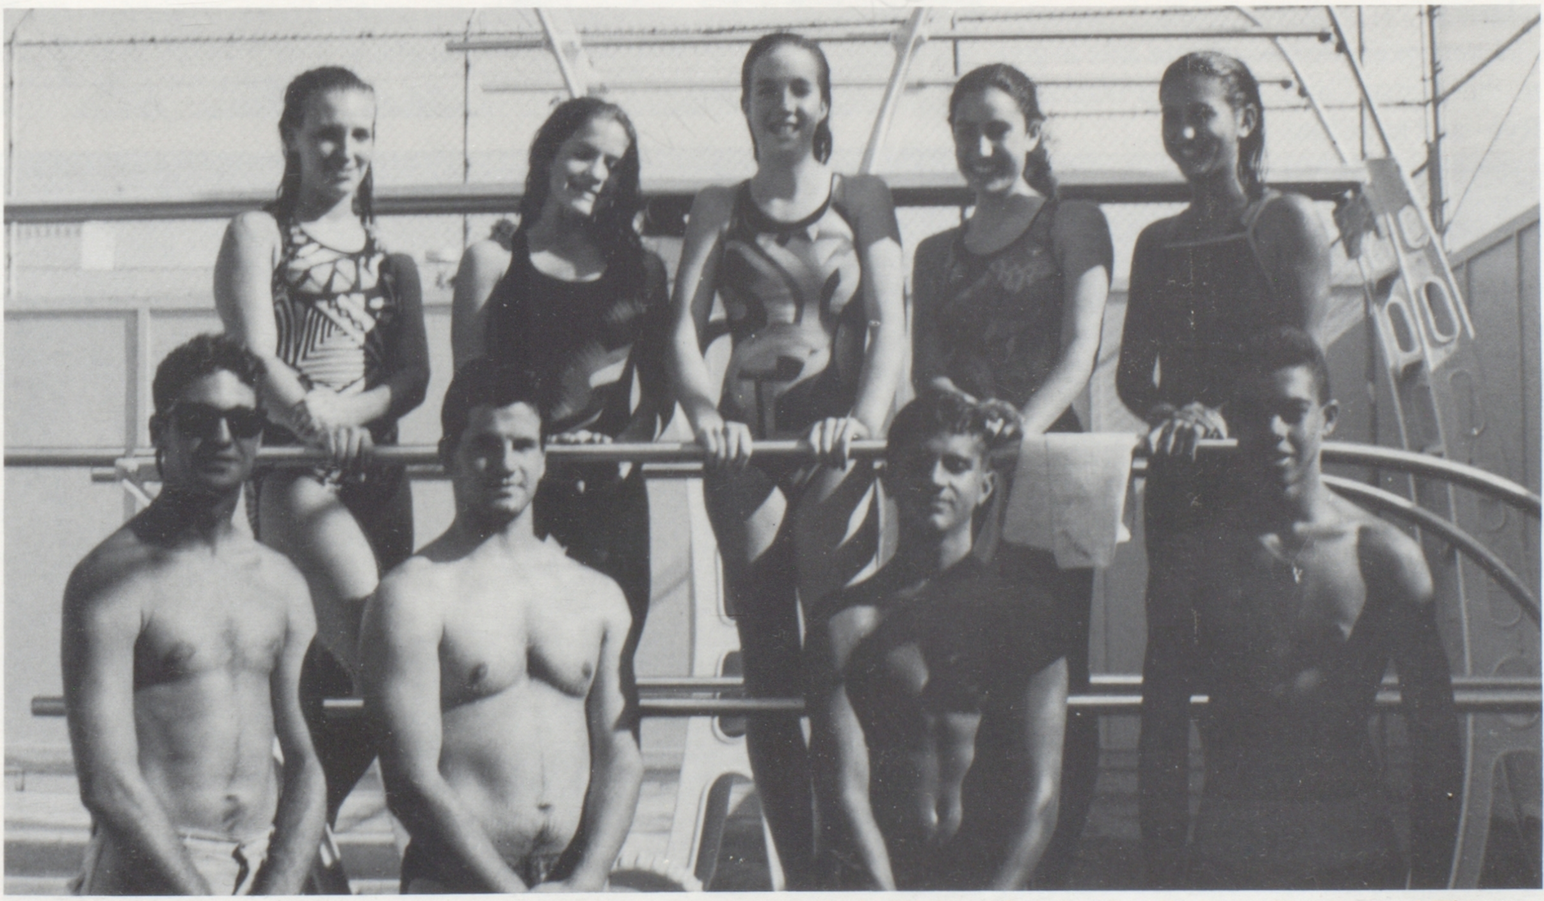


Soaring through the air is Monica Gilkey. This is her 2nd year diving and when the AHS season is over she and other team members dive in Concord.



Making it look so easy is Tina Oakes. This is Tina's 2nd season with the team and she improves with every dive.





The 1994 diving team includes top row -Monica Gilkey, Melissia Hickey, Sabrina Leslie,Dara Kaplan and Tina Okaes. Bottom row- Coach Jason Lipton, Brad Mc Intyre,Paul Ratto and James Trotter.

JUJITSU

Jujitsu is originated from an ancient Japanese martial art, known as "the way of gentleness". The principle of jujitsu is to use your enemy's force to take them down. This is a suitable art for anyone because it doesn't require a lot of strength.

All the students take the class seriously, even in normal workouts, determination is shown on their faces. Often, the higher belt students teach the lower belts, but sometimes Sensei Fairfield will teach the class new techniques. Everyone watch the demonstration closely in order to learn from Sensei Fairfield.

In the dojo, the students not only learn to defend themselves, but also how to heal. They learn how to massage the pressure point on the body, which feels relaxing.

Every year, the students are able to go to the Jujitsu Camp, at Camp Danzan-Ryu--and have fun!

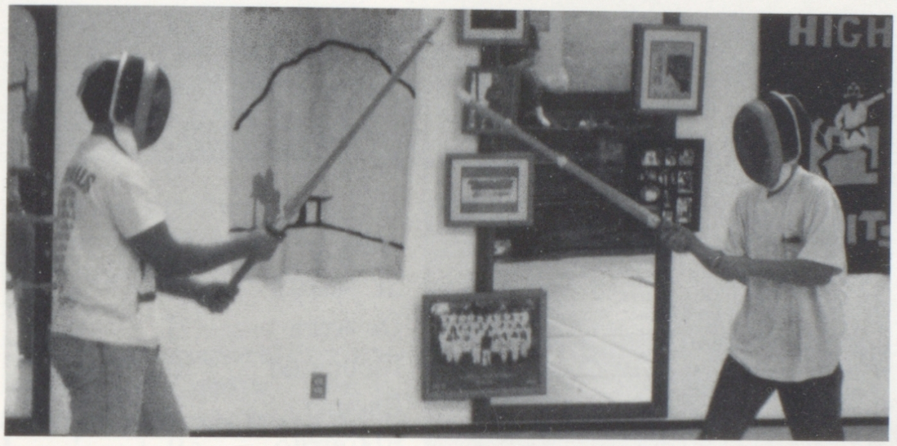
"Jujitsu is my favorite class. I like it because, I not only learn Jujitsu, but I also learn the philosophies of life, respect for myself and others."

-Anny Fong-

"I like jujitsu a lot. I think jujitsu gives students a chance to experience martial art. Also gives you a better understanding of philosophies as well as martial art techniques."

-Lina Song-

Knees off the floor! Conditioning and keeping the body in shape are important for Jujitsu. Developing a strong upper body will help a great deal in Jujitsu.



Put the gear on! Whenever practicing with the sword, one should wear a head gear and a body protector. Without the protector, bruises will be all over the body. This sword fight is called Kendo.

Basic technique. Learning the right way to roll on the floor can reduce the impact on the body. This is the very first thing to learn in Jujitsu.

Be careful of my neck! Eric Jacobson is teaching Aaron Fong how to do a head lock. Wow! Someone is flying in the air. But soon she will be flat on the ground.

Let's take a nap! After a long and hard workout, eveyone likes to cool down and relax for a while. Some use the time to socialize with their classmates.

MEN'S SOCCER

Two men stands facing each other. Sweat from their forehead, glide down their cheeks. Their eyes concentrate on the white ball, and they listen eagerly for the referee to blow his whistle to start the second half. Even with sore muscles, both men know the game had just begun!

Through muddy fields, rainy days and with the sun in their eyes, the team was always out there practicing and playing the best game possible. Fancy footwork, quick reflexes, and speed are not the only qualities a soccer player must have. Any good player needs to be hard working, determined, be there to rescue a teammate and have a heart. Alameda Men's Soccer team is all that and more.

The team consisted of a few returning players but there were many fresh faces. Veterans taught new players how to survive out in the field and once everyone trusted one another, the team ticked like clockwork on the field.

"Keep your eye on the ball!" Senior, Tom Bennett approaches the goal and faces danger. He keeps his concentration on the ball yet is still able to outwit his opponents with some fancy footwork.

"We can do it!" Ryan Hamyln and Jeremy Castro come in after a play and discuss some strategy and give each other words of encouragement.

"Overall,I believe that this year was surprisingly successful. We were inconsistent, but that is the sign of a young team.With so many underclassmen playing, I'm sure the team will only get better."

-Ryan Hamlyn-

"Well, we did better than people expected. We lost a lot of good people, but still almost made the playoffs."

-Brad Thomson-

Watch out below! Bodily injuries can occur on the field when players get aggressive. Some will do anything for a score and some will do anything to defend their goal.

Look Mom! Brad Thomson gives it all he can in one big effort to keep the ball from the oppnents and assist in a goal.

This is called teamwork! Everyone is there for one another. There is always someone close by to assist a teammate and get them out of trouble.

"Out of my way," screams Paulo Luis as he gets near the goal net. He will not let anyone stand in his way or make him go in any other direction.

Keepthe speed up. Fast pace yet controlled running is a key skill in soccer, when trying to drive the ball down the field to be in a good scoring position. The defense will have to do more than chasing to stop them.

"Go get him!" The team runs together quickly after the opponent to stop him from scoring. A team that runs together wins together.

WARRIORS OF THE PLAINS

The bright sun beam blinds the players' eyes as they look at the opponent's goal on the other side of the large green grass field. It stretches to what seems like a far away destiny that is too far to reach. Suddenly a loud blow of the whistle from the referee awaken a restless, powerful sleeping warrior that lies within each of the AHS soccer players. Bodies begin to maneuver around other players to get to the black and white ball. The determined soccer players at AHS move across the field overcoming the difficult obstacles that the opponents have set to get them to accomplish their ultimate desire, scoring a goal from the opposite team. The AHS soccer team had a great season this year, defeating the harsh rain and their tough opponents.

Beep! Beep! Stacey Thomas, the road runner races towards the soccer ball, outrunning her opponents.

What form! Stacey Lim practices her shot before the game. Soccer requires a lot of dedication and practice. Remember Ladies, practice makes perfect.

Oooouch!! That hurts! To prevent the opponent from attacking Freshman Cezanne Murphy bravely uses her body as a shield. Soccer is a physcially demanding sport.

Be aggressive Hornets!! Erin Sabbitini puts on her game face that warns the opponents to back off as she prepares to throw the ball.

Stop that run away ball!! The Hornets defense played a key role in their success. The best offense is a good defense.

Don't quit now Hornets! Senior Carrie Marril takes a little break after being on the battle field for so long.

THE HIT SQUAD

This years Varsity Baseball team has a good chance of making the playoffs, with their star players Tom Bennett, Jesse Sedillo and Dan Nguyen. The field is very strong defensivly. Although this team doesn't have much Varsity experience, considering they only have 6 returning players, Bennett, Jeremy Castro, D.J. Cooper, Nguyen, Sedillo and Brian Stoker . The rest are Seniors Gary Gomes, Domingo Renyolds, Bobby Williams and Erik Zell. Juniors Lance Franke, Chris Stauder Sophmores Brian Patrone and Ryan Wong.

Cheering on his fellow team mates, 1st Base man Lance Franke is eagerly awaiting his turn to be at bat

HIT IT HARD!

Play Ball! It's spring again and that means Lady Hornet's softball is back!

The 1994 women's softball team was a winner. The team was lead by Coach Eddie Ruiz but the Alameda Hornets were very self-disciplined and had very high morale and spirit. The team got along very well and had a perfect mixture of newcomers and Senior players. Occasionally the more experienced players were able to help out their other teammates. That is what made the 1994 Hornet team unique - teamwork.

The Hornet's team overflowed with talent. The new players were able to learn and master basic skills very quickly and the veterans refined their past skills and used their experience to their advantage. Some players had to learn new positions and it was very surprising on how fast they were able to adjust. Senior Elaine Chin had to learn the cather position from scratch. The whole team in general was very tough and showed outstanding determination. The fans really like the way they hit that ball.

Safe!!! Michelle Leckler slides into third base safely during a game versus O'Dowd. What courage!

O.K. Coach! Jamie Yi takes some last minute batting tips from her coaches as she's about to lead off hit.

Time!!! Batter Angela Jones checks out the sign from the third base coach before entering the batters box.

Steerike one! Karen Rivas swings and misses at a pitch during a scrimage versus themselves.

Batter up! Melissa Eihl gets th batter's box ready for herself. It's important that the batter is comfortable.

OFF THEY GO...

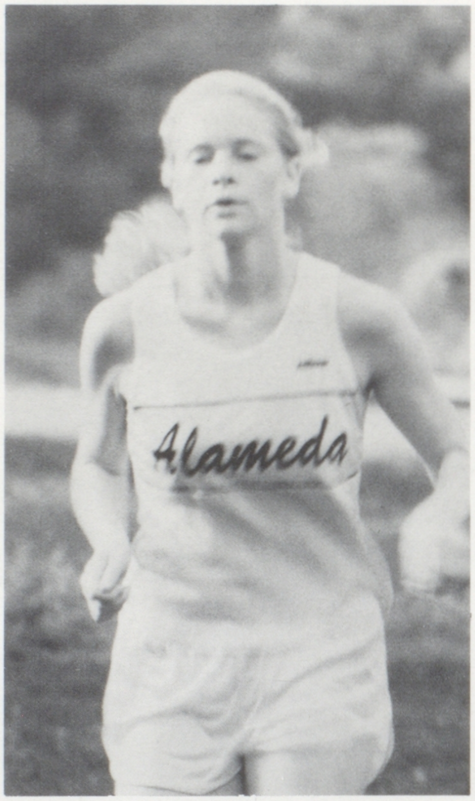
Cross Country is a sport that tests one's will and endurance. It requires great strength, determination, and stamina. "Cross Country runners never stop running. They only take breaks in between," said runner John Moore.

Senior Matt Shargel describes the runners on the team as "fast and furious, dumb and dangerous running down hill." This is often the case since there are usually no trails, and only white arrows to guide the runners. Many runners have hurt themselves during the course of the season.

"The worst part is that you cannot stop worrying about the runners. You don't know if they have become injured for quite a while when they run in the hills. When you find out, it takes a very long time to bring help to the runner. I just hope every runner comes back safely," coach Brian Lodge stated as he watched the team head up a hill.

By: Christina Jung,
Bill Lundquist, & James Wong

"I can do it!" Sophomore Jenny Shargel goes for the finish and helps to bring the Alameda High cross-country team the win win in a breath-taking victory at Joachim Miller Park.



Keep up the good work ! Senior Matt Shargel gets ahead of an Albany opponent and continues on for an extraordinary third place finish.

Come on! Juniors Ednacot and James Delosreyes pace themselves for the tough uphill climb toward Joachim Miller Road.

TRACK AND FIELD

Runners round the curve, putting all they've got into each race. The people in the field events work tirelessly, using all their might to achieve greater distances with each throw.

There are many different types of events in Track and Field; all of which make it possible for anyone to be able to compete because there are events that suit anyone's strengths and abilities.

Head coach Brian Lodge said, "With the new track facility at Thompson Field, it will be moving our program in a positive direction. The kids are working hard toward having a strong season. The girls will be very competitive in league this year and the boys team is a young, rebuilding team."

With the way the team is progressing each week, and since most of the team is composed of young players, Alameda High should be very tough to beat in the years ahead.

By: William Lundquist

Giving his all... Senior John Ontiveros puts all into this throw. Shotputs weigh from eight pounds for girls to ten pounds for J.V. Men's to twelve pounds for Men's Varsity throwers.

"Because I had 6th period athletics, practicing apart from the rest of the team made it difficult to feel like a team member since almost everyone else practiced after school."

-Chris Saali-

"I had a good time getting to know a lot of new people. Though we may not have had the skills, we had a lot of spirit."

-Matt Shargel-

"Running balances a mixture of strength and endurance."

-Kelly Holt-

"Running helps to keep in shape. It feels good to help the team while doing something good for yourself."

-Jenny Shargel-

Having fun... Not only is track tough, but fun as well. As shown here as Junior Maggie Fullerton jokes around while stretching.

Taking off. Sophomore Danny Friedman rounds a turn and starts into a hard sprint during time trials.

Stretching out. The track team spends a lot of time stretching before each practice to ensure that no one gets any injuries.

Getting the knots out. Junior Liz Baca does some extra stretching of the legs before beginning a long, tough workout.

Stair climbing... Freshman Doug Fullerton works on running up and down the bleachers at Thompson Field to strengthen his leg muscles.

Discussing the season... Junior Kim Eliason and Coach Dave Paiva talk about their season and competition.

Coming down the stretch. Seniors Jim Shargel and Brian (Paroddi) are neck and neck as they approach the finish line after a long, grueling race.

Smile. Coach Brian Lodge and Ted Lawton stop to pose for a shot. Ted is one of many newcomers to this year's team.

ENDLESS SPIRIT

1...2...down...up! The cheerleading season does not just last for nine weeks like other sports seasons do, it lasts for 12 months. During the summer, they go to a cheerleading camp to learn new cheers, and dances. They also perform a dance they made up, and the leaders, or coaches tell them how to improve. "We had a rough begining, but we can always pull it together. I feel close to my squad members, especially since most of us are seniors. Good luck next year Akala!" Stacy Peverell. Once on varsity, always on varsity. This allows the squad members to get real close to each other, and learn how to work well with eachother. When they are back from camp, they practice for football season, and when that is over, basketball season starts right up. After basketball season is over, they have try-outs, and then start practicing for camp again. These cheerleaders make the sport look easy, but it is not as easy as it looks. "Cheerleading is just as much of a sport as the other programs in this school. We have worked really hard this year, and we have pulled together to take second place at state championships. It takes a lot of dedication and motivation to accomplish something like this. I'm really impressed by our progress as a team."Natalie King

Eagerly awaiting their 15 minutes of fame, Jessica Faria, Lindsey Litchfield, Stacey Peverell and Akala Peoples watch and support their fellow cheerleaders.

If we were actually in the Janet Jackson video... Jackie Fernandes, Dianna Moran, and Stacy Peverell dance their heart out at the Encinal football game. GO HORNETS!

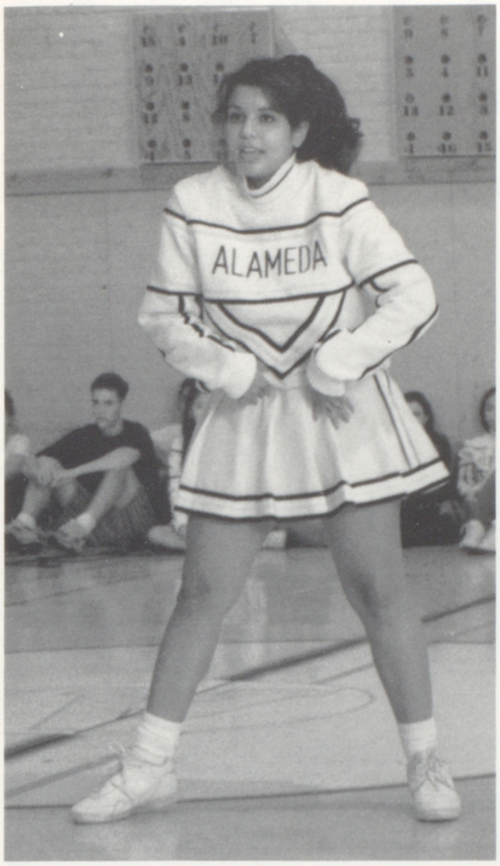
This step is so funny! Courtney Bellinger laughes as she tries to master this particular step.

WILLIE STARGELL FIELD

GO ALAMEDA! One ritual is holding up a sign as the football players crash through it to show their enthusiasm toward the big game. This helps both the cheerleaders and the football players get pumped up for the game.

Putting extra energy into their routine for the big game, the cheerleaders strut their stuff on the fifty yard line at half time. The student body was impressed at the spirit and enthusiasm the cheeleaders showed.

Time for a breather! Jackie Fernandes looks all out of breath as she dances this particular dance. Jackie has been a cheerleader for three years, and this is her first year on varsity. Go Jackie!



Watch those angles! Lynn Chiu, Jane Kang and Melissa Hickey show true perfection as cheerleaders, making sure each angle is correct! As you can see it is true perfection!

You go girl. Jessica Faria, head pom-pon, makes dancing look real easy! Jessica has been on pom all throughout high school, and has been on varsity for three years.

FREE SPIRIT

In front of audiences or during practice, the J.V. Pom and Cheer work together as one large family. They spend countless hours working to perfect their routines.

The Alameda High J.V. Pom and Cheer are a very important part of the motivation in the J.V. games. Especially in situations such as games away from home, their support can be crucial and possibly even the key between winning and losing.

J.V. Pom and Cheer work very hard at what they do. They spend many hours practicing and even work at camps during their summers just to improve their preformance. If it were not for these women, who knows how sports at Alameda High would turn out?

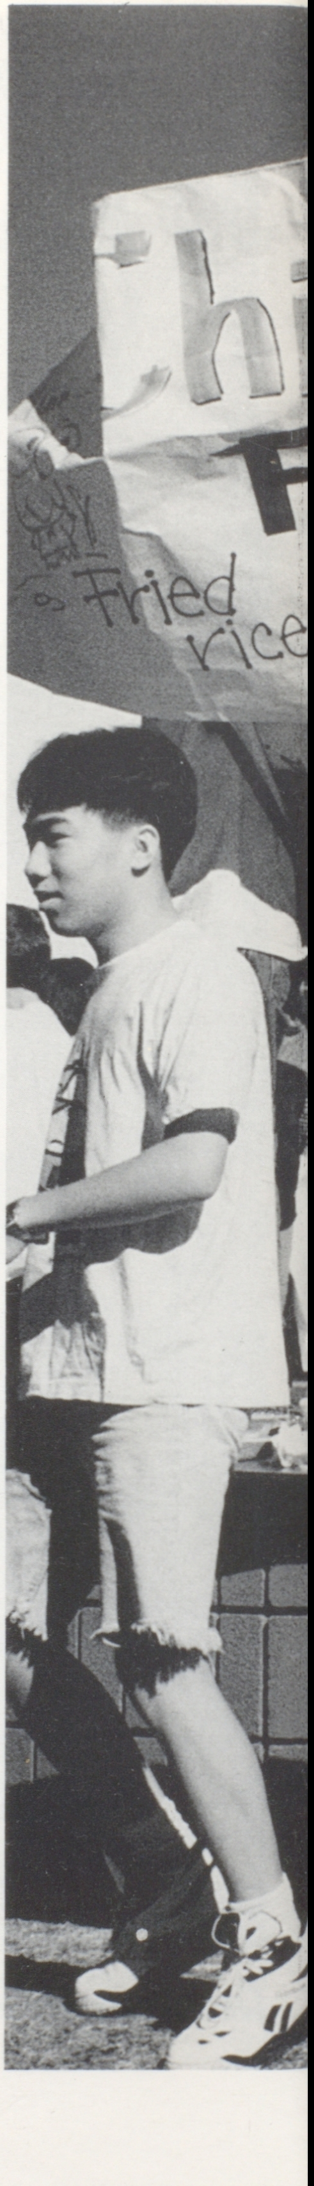
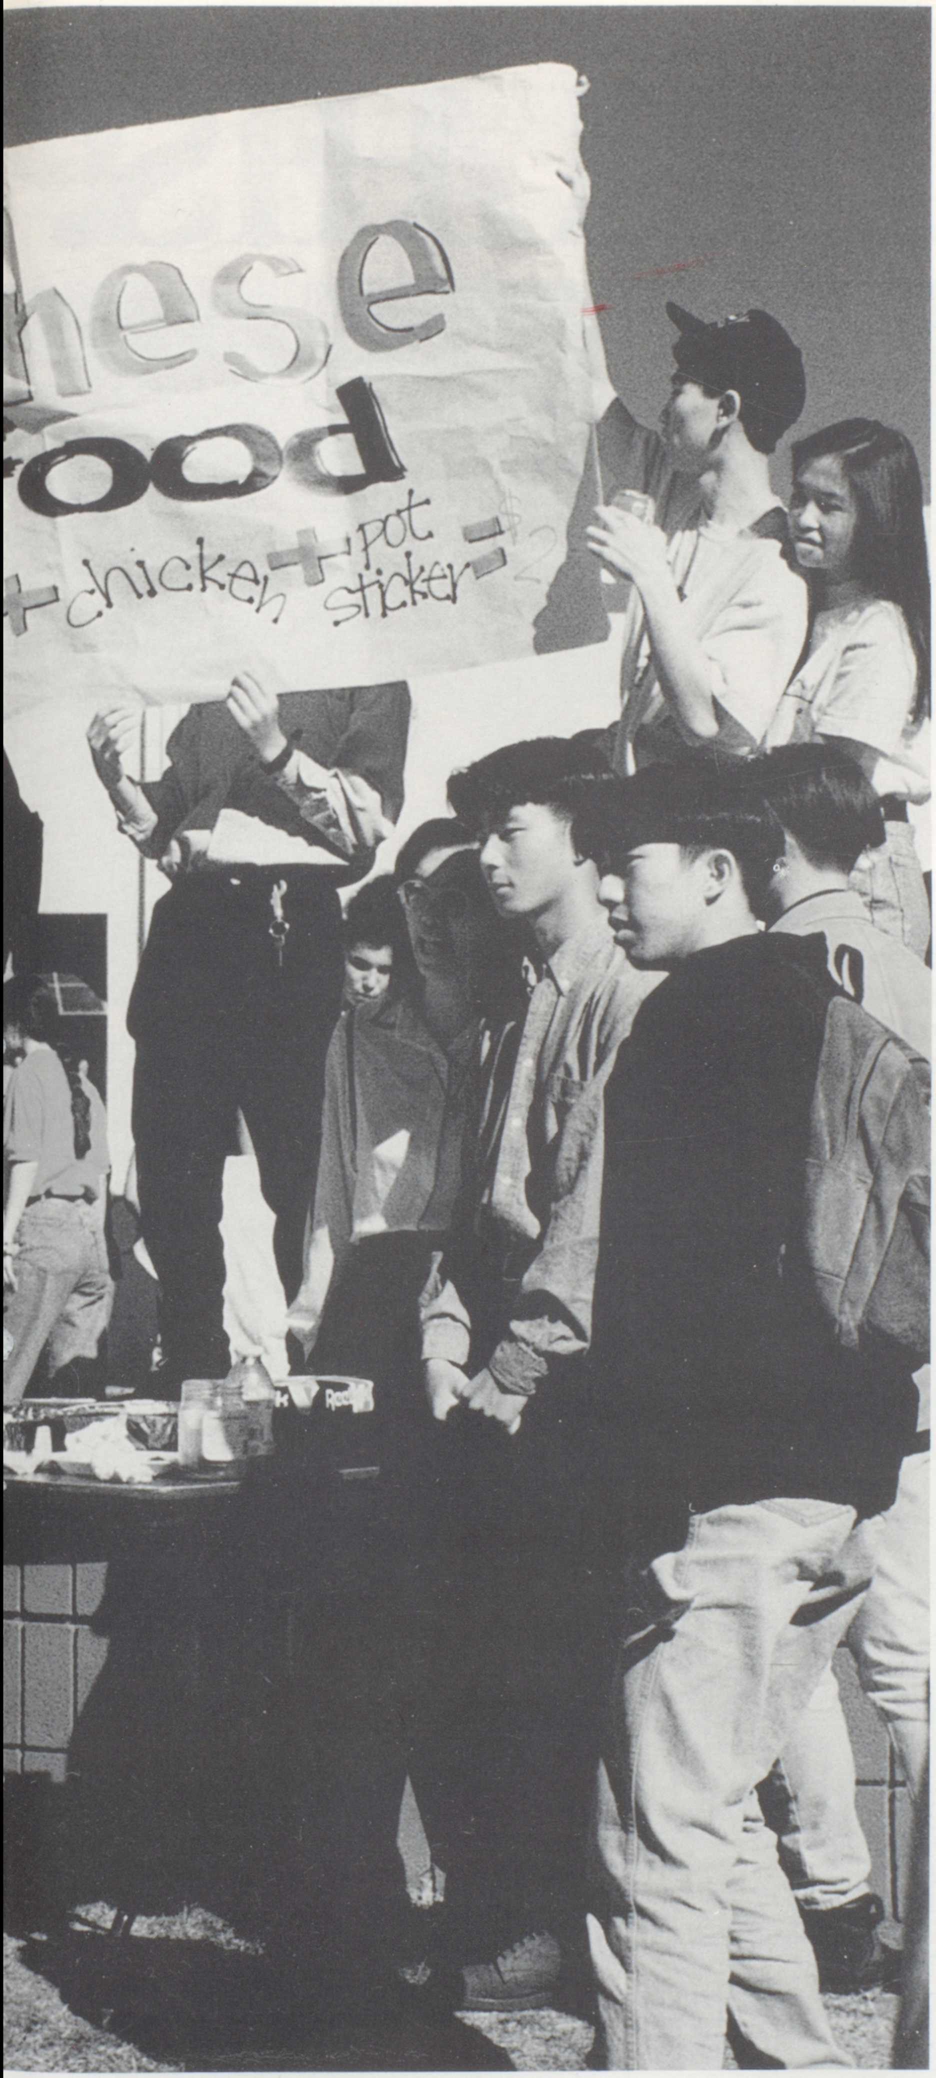
ENDLESS EXPERIENCES

All work and no play is not how Alameda High students spend the day. So by using their time wisely, students join clubs to enhance their interests by interacting with students that share the same past times. Clubs open people up to new experiences that they will never forget. Joining a club is a learning experience for students as well. They can learn more about themselves and about other members of the organization by working cooperatively in many funfilled activities. Some of them are group get-togethers, outings, and field trips that can be exciting, heart-stopping, and adventurous.

There are many clubs at Alameda High to suit any student's tastes. These can range from clubs that get students involved with school and activities to meetings that give students a better understanding of one another. Anyway students look at it, clubs are one of the best parts of high school.

-By James Wong





I Got One! Stephanie Wong, Anthony Woo, Micheal Chin are participating in a chopstick competition where they have to pick up marbles with them and place them into a styrofoam cup. Sophomore Micheal Lam is watching on. This is one of the many Asian club activities. Asian club is one of the many clubs that have exciting activities during lunch.

Join a club! Senior Tamara Vanhook and Junior Nina Scheir spend their lunch time promoting and trying to get new members for Key Club at Clubs Day. Key Club is a club that gives students a chance to work and expand their knowledge in areas within their local community. Key club members are always willing to give up their time to help others.

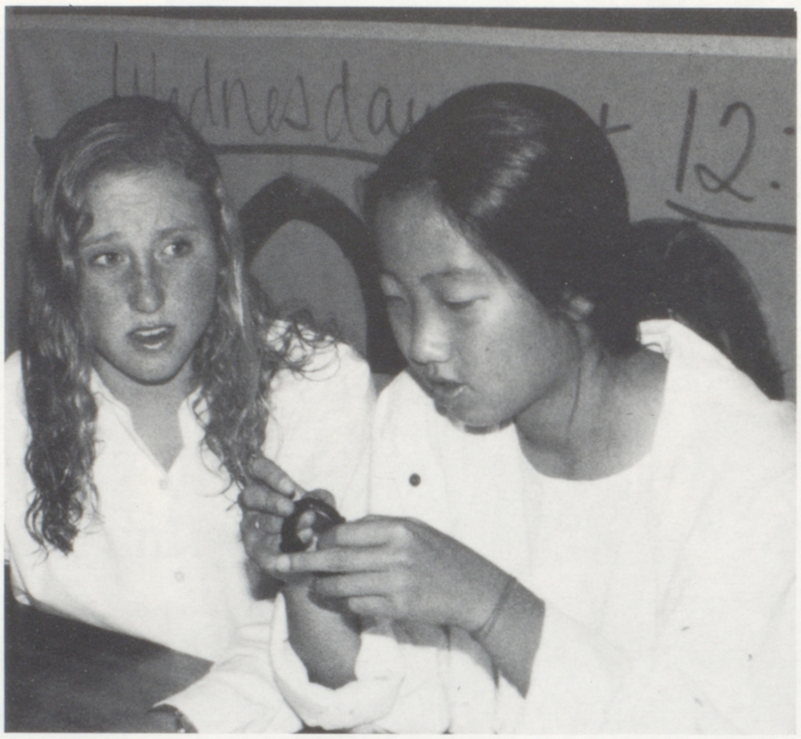
Any one hungry? During the Harvest Food Faire many clubs are involved with selling foods from their own culture to let Alameda High students experience the various types of foods around the world. This is also a chance for the clubs to raise money for club activities and for many people to see what other cultures are all about.

HELLO A.H.S.

"Good Morning, Hornets!" This familiar cry is heard every morning as the Student Government make their daily announcements to inform everyone about upcoming events.

In Leadership,the class consists of the A.S.B. and class officers. The A.S.B. officers plan most of the Hornet events that everyone can particpate in. The Harvest Faires, assemblies, dances and the budget are some of their responsibilities. The class officers help their classes get involved in the activities that Student Government plans. They also have fundraisers for Winter Ball, Junior Prom, and Senior activities.

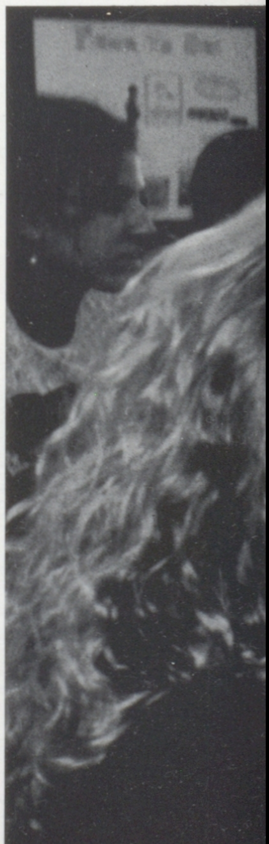
As this year's new Activities Director, Ms. Mann organized the class into a unified, organized group of leaders. They represent the school with confidence and remind students how much fun it can be to get involved.



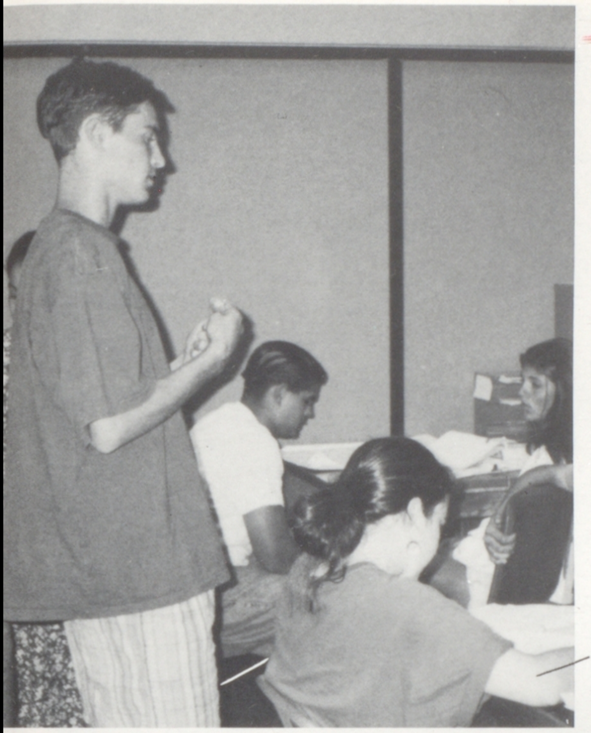
Time to go already!... Julie Mathieson and Sunny Lee earn their hours, helping lost parents at Back To School Night.

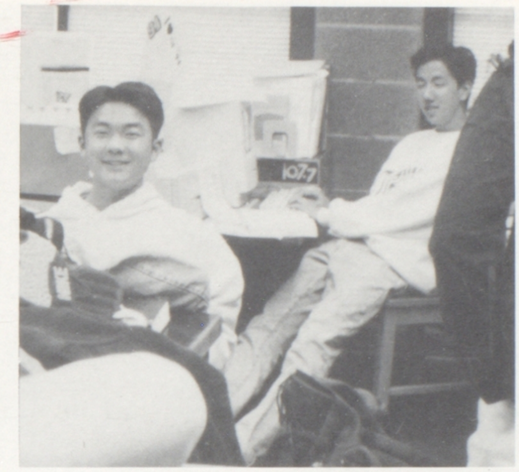
On the Job... Clubs Commissioner Tina Ng and Financial Secretary Amy Chan discuss their duties as A.S.B. officers.

Getting involved... Brian Wong always gives up his time for school activities



LEADERSHIP





Dedication... Jason Chin and Doug Aoyama know how to mix work and play in Student Government, as they discuss future plans.

On the move, Freshman Jonathan Ibarra gets involved in promoting classs spirit. He participates in all class activities!

Taking control... Senior class vice president Matt Shargel gives his ideas for fundraisers.

Ten Best Things Leadership Does for AHS

1. They make those fabulous signs in the hall that are so bright and beautifully decorated.
2. They make those cheery announcements every morning that really perk us up, especially when they say, "Have a Jazzy Day, Hornets!"
3. They give us cool music during lunchtime that we can really bug out to.
4. They keep us informed when we're not paying attention.
5. They sell us great stuff at A-Mart like dance tickets and yearbooks.
6. They provide us with oppotunities not available to all high schools.
7. They represent our school with confidence and unity.
8. They raise money through fundraisers so we can do exciting things like Kid's Day with Michelle.
9. They help organize our school budget and activities.
10. They show us how much fun it is to be involved.

Listening intently... Natalie King, Jason Chin, Susan Lai, Elizabeth Baca, Brian Wong, and Lynn Chiu think about the ideas being presented in the class.

ENDLESS MUS

Fine tuning of the wind instruments and sopranos trying to extend their vocal range are familiar sounds to anyone involved in the music department. Band and choir are classes where students with musical talents get togehter as one and perform under the steady hand of Mr. Riccardi. Entering his fourth year as the choir and band teacher, Mr. Riccardi has inspired many students to enter the music field. Mr. Riccardi introduced the Orphians to Alameda High School, which is and elite singing group compiled of students and alumni They are asked to perform by many groups around the island. AHS band is very unique in the sound quality, the band plays as a hole not as an individual so that it sounds professional.

Mr. Riccardi composes music for his band class. He also plays a variety of instruments and is an inspiration.

ICAL TALENTS

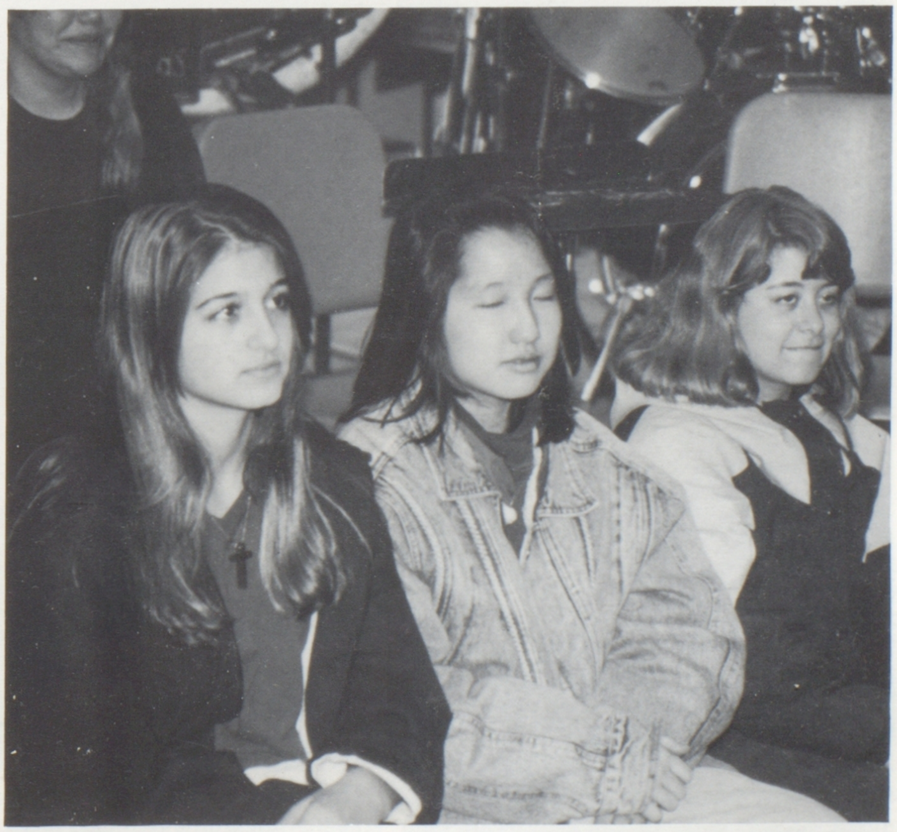
Practice, Practice, Practice... Cezanne Murphy-Levesque and friends play the clarinet.

Smile... Dayna Stephens takes time out of a busy practice session for a quick snap shot.



Quiet Please... Jenny Hartweg and friends listen to a lecture during choir class. It's very important to pay attention so that no mistakes are made.

ENDLESS

The canvas sits on the table. Bland, boring, nothing more than a plain white space on a table. Then a student comes along. Their imagination helps to transform that piece of nothing into a fine work of art.

Art is a class in which one can express themself through many mediums. Projects can range from drawings, to oil paintings, to water coloring, even to sculpting. Art helps to open the minds and imaginations of young students in new ways shapes and forms.

Now with the addition of Ms. Milgrim and Mr. Fox to a staff which already consisted of Ms. McAllister, the students at Alameda High now get an even more invaluable education in the wonderful world of art.

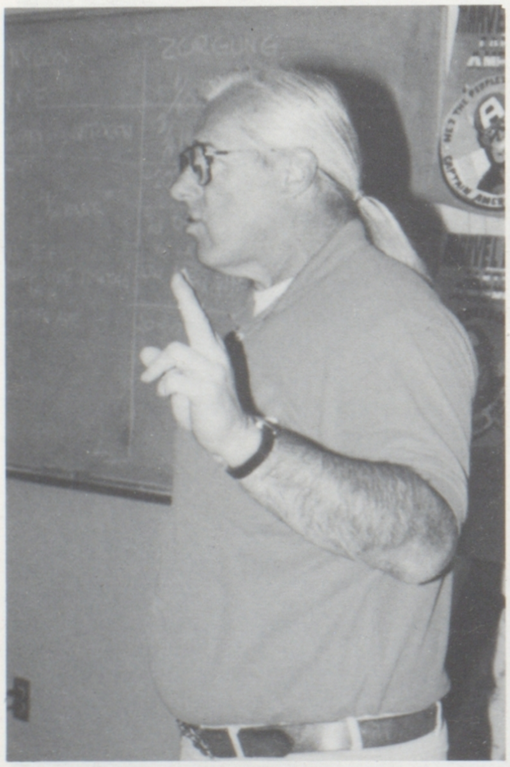
Hard at work. Senior Dianna Moran spends countless hours working on a project in Ms. McAllister's class.

Paying close attention. Senior Mari Chinn looks on at a display set in the middle of the class room.



Here's your assignment. Mr. Fox gives out the details for the classes next project. Almost all art projects allow the students to use their imagination.

How am I doing? Senior Irene Landini takes a peak at how Freshman Lidia Hampton is doing. Help from fellow students can be very handy in giving each other ideas on how to do their work better.

MASTERPIECES

I'm sorry! Freshmen Zeke Luis and Nina Dong pose as models for other students to draw.

Practice, practice... Art students always have projects that help to perfect their drawing. Here Senior Kim Finnicum practices drawing people.

How do I do this? Freshman Jennifer Lundquist looks to her teacher to try and figure out how to draw a difficult picture.

-Homera Amiri-

Just getting started. Freshman Tiffany begins on what will turn out to be a well done project.

Taking a rest. Agnes Szilagyi stops for a second to look over the work she has been doing.

ALL THE WORL

"OK, on that line I want you to cross down right and remember to cheat." To the average student this could be jibberish, but when taking one of the many levels of drama offered at Alameda High it all seems clear.

Drama 1 is an introduction to live theatre. This informative class, which covers scene study, improvisation and stage direction, is offered to all grade levels .

In Drama 2, students are expected to memorize monologues, produce scenes and prepare for Drama 3.

Upon completion of Drama 2, students are eligible to try out for Performance Drama, otherwise known as Drama 3. In this class, students are exposed to traditional plays with well known authors including Shakespeare and Thornton Wilder. Advanced Drama exposes students to every aspect of theatrical production. Not only do they act , but they are given chances to direct and work the technical side. Break a leg!

Kimberley Joy Miner
Sabrina Leslie

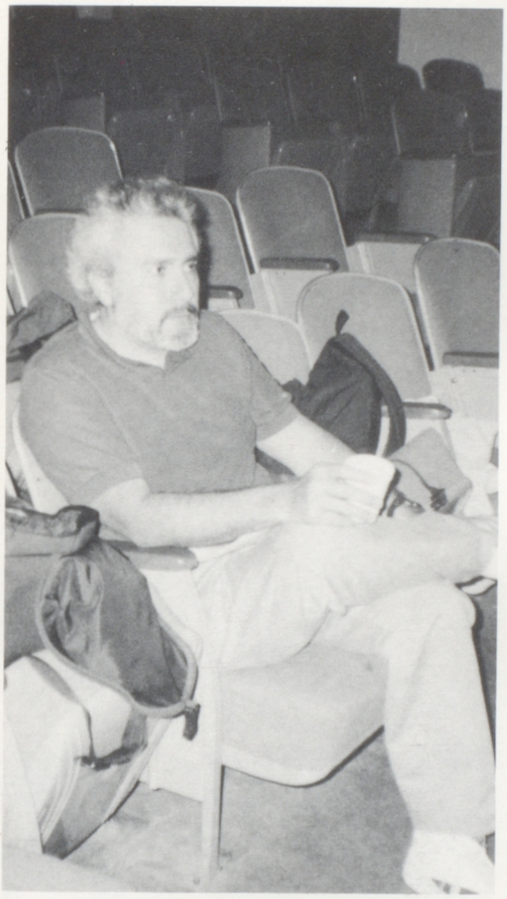
"Um- guys I think he's dead! "Ken Smith falls to the ground in a fit of anger during 3rd period drama.Smith was also seen on the Little Theatre stage during the fall production of "Our Town".

Ohh Sexy Mamas! Erica Centurion, Erin Thomson, Jessica Smith, Stephanie Tostie and Nicki Kaplan try on their dresses for the next prom. While drama involves a lot of memorizing and rehersals their is still some free time to go into the costume closet and play dress up.

D'S A STAGE.....

When the director speaks you listen.... Mr. Chacon ,with coffee cup in hand, watches as his students bring the script to life.



"We are woman, hear us roar!" Amy Gimlen and Jenny Olsen lift a chair over their heads during their drama scene.

" I enjoy Drama cause you don't just sit at a desk, you actually get on stage and do something."

Doug Fullerton

first year drama student

You better not tell... Sarah Burson and Sarah Shurburn-Zimmergive powerful performancesin drama 3 one acts," The Effect of Gamma Reys and The Man On The Moon Marigolds."Both have been heavily involved in drama since their first year at AHS.

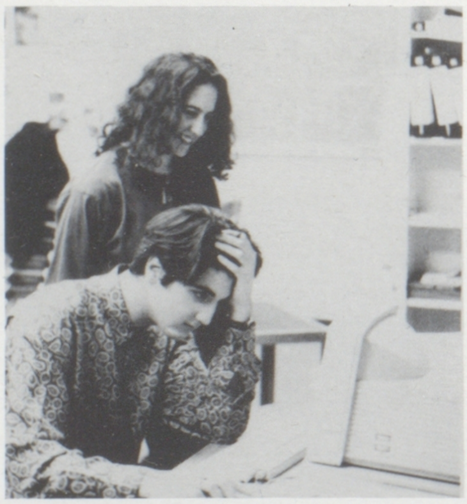
ENDLESS

Without the Yearbook and Journalism classes, time would be lost. The Yearbook class captures many high school memories forever. Journalism opens people's eyes to what's happening around campus, and main events around the world.

Journalism and Yearbook are under Publications. The Journalism class puts out The Oakleaf every four or five weeks. The Oakleaf did get off to a slow start this year, but the people in Journalism do manage to get the paper out. Students in Journalism set their own deadlines, including perfecting copy, researching information,

"My eyes are starting to hurt!" Photo editor, and photographer, Bonnie Joy and Shanna Tippett look over a light box to make a layout, and make sure everything fits and looks perfect.

Looking stressed out yet trying to have fun are Jason Buti and Jenny Hirshfeld.



"Being an editor of the paper has been an extreme challenge. As a whole, we lived up to the challenges. I am proud to have the opportunity to work with the whole staff on the Oakleaf."
-Johnathan Cervelli, Editor in Chief of Oakleaf-

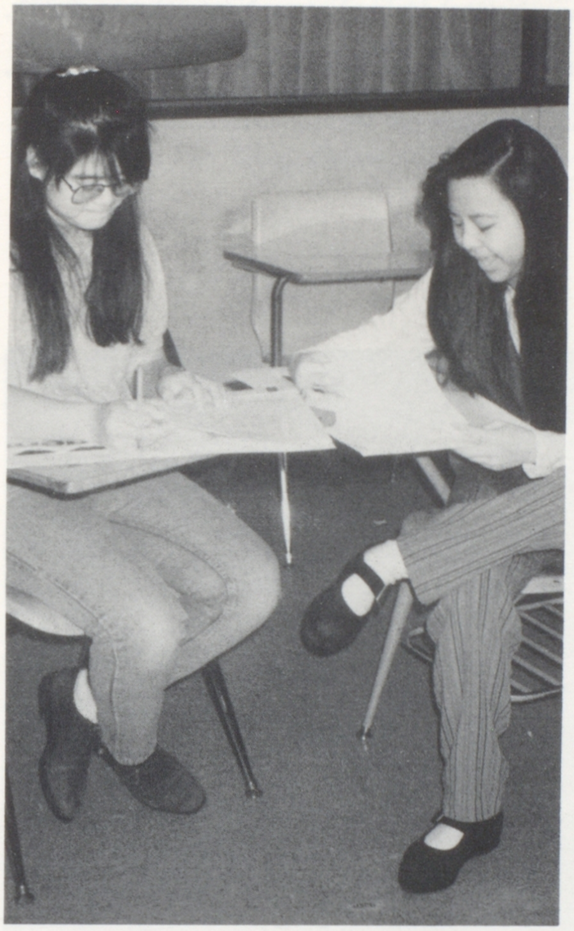
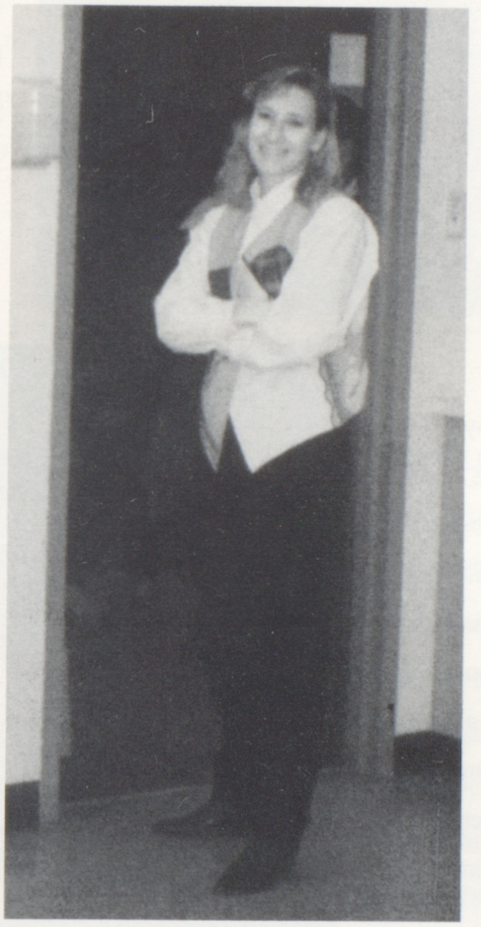
Ready to go! Before distrubuting the Oakleaf, Cassandra Chan and Mirella Mount look at it.

DEADLINES

The women in charge. Tannie Fung and Linda Chin are the Yearbook's hard working, devoted editors.



Welcome! Ms. Rose has a light-hearted attitude which makes the class enjoyable.



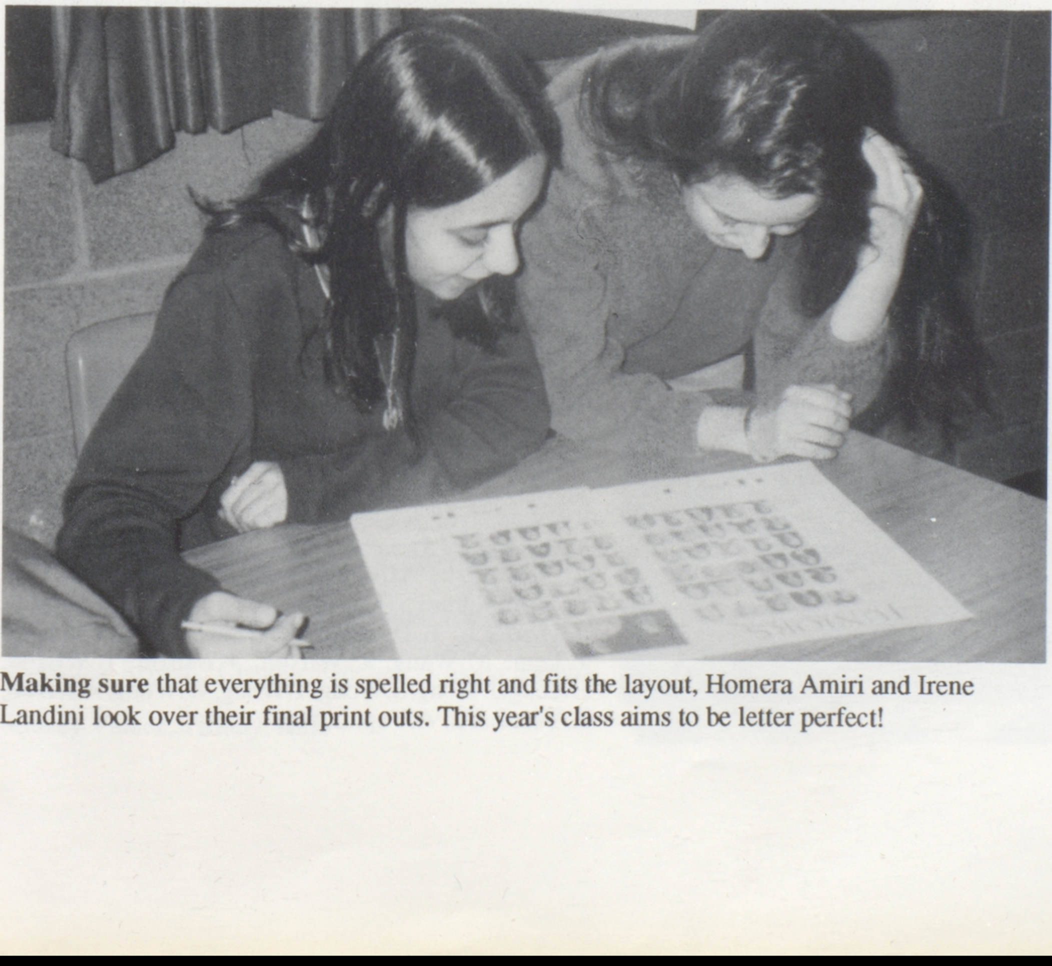
interviews, and taking pictures.

Even though Yearbook is catagorized under Publications, it's a totally different matter. In Yearbook, students are assigned pages to complete with copy, captions, photos and quotes, all brought together on layouts and computers so that they are picture perfect quality for the printing plant. This all must be completed by a certain time and date.

Without students in both classes putting in hard hours trying to meet deadlines, Alameda High wouldn't have a newspaper or Yearbook of "Endless Memories."

By: Homera Amiri

What should be done here, wonders Tara Alliger and Monika Moore?



Making sure that everything is spelled right and fits the layout, Homera Amiri and Irene Landini look over their final print outs. This year's class aims to be letter perfect!

"In the beginning, I thought this class was just fun and games. But then, I saw that it was hard work. And in the end it all paid off."

Clubs are a big part of the extra-curricular activity students have the opportunity to participate in at Alameda High School. At Alameda High there are over 25 different clubs. Some of the more popular clubs are ethnic background based, but there are many kinds such as Jujitsu, and Outing that have to do with activities and such as Science club and C.S.F. that have to do with academics. The students enjoy freedom by choosing as many, and which clubs as they wish to attend and participate in. Just because it says Chinese Club doesn't mean you have to be Chinese to be in it! All students are welcome! The amount of ethnic background based clubs that exist at Alameda High show what great diversity there is on campus. The clubs meet either during lunch or after-school so there are close bonds with school and make it easier for the students to meet new friends! All the clubs have a teacher sponser who supervises and helps them in the organization of activities.

STUDENT UNITY

CLOSE UP: Jennifer Acker, Paula Anglo, Brandon Boyle, Brad Macintre, Tracy Silvera, Jackie Taylor, Brian Wong, Dong Yee

Clubs do a variety of different activities. At the school, the clubs have a chance to do fund raisers by participating in candy sales, Hornet Gold Card sales, gram sales, or in a twice a year Unity Harvest Faire.

Unity Week gives a chance for the clubs to show their colors by presenting something their club stands for. The Harvest Faire is a get together of the clubs during an extended lunch period to sell tasty foods that reflect their club.

Clubs are a great opportunity for all students. Not only do you just get to participate in the activities, being in a club could mean learning valuable leadership skills and cooperation skills. Some clubs offer opportunities to go on trips and visit exciting places and some clubs gives students a chance to compete with other schools. The biggest club on campus is C.S.F.. They take trips to visit various college campuses. But the size of a club is not important, all the clubs in Alameda High have equal standing and can be equally just as fun.

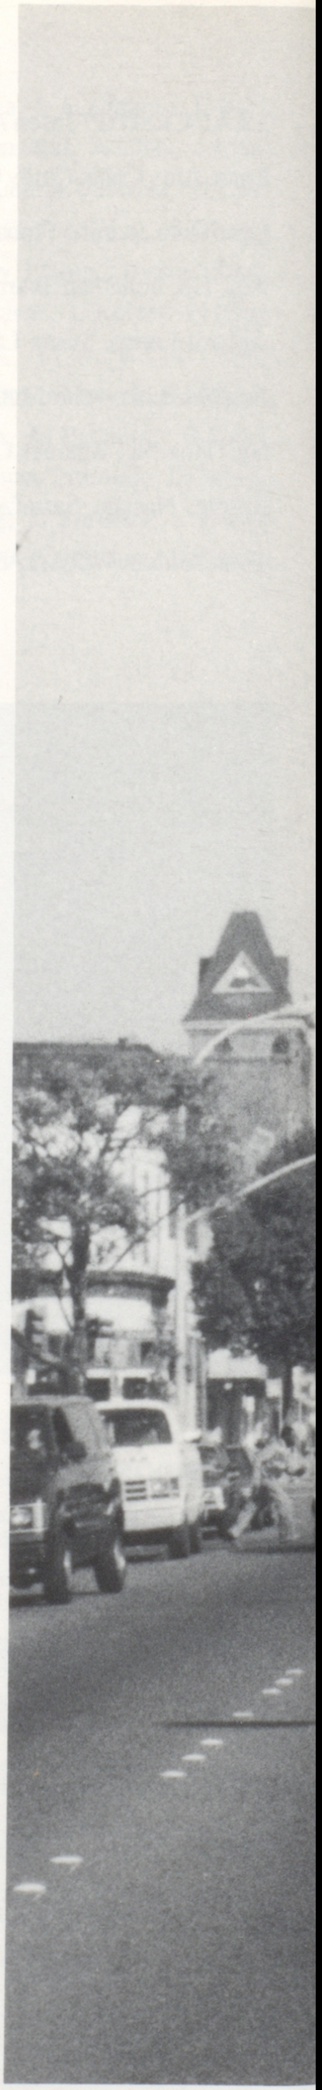
ENDLESS LIST

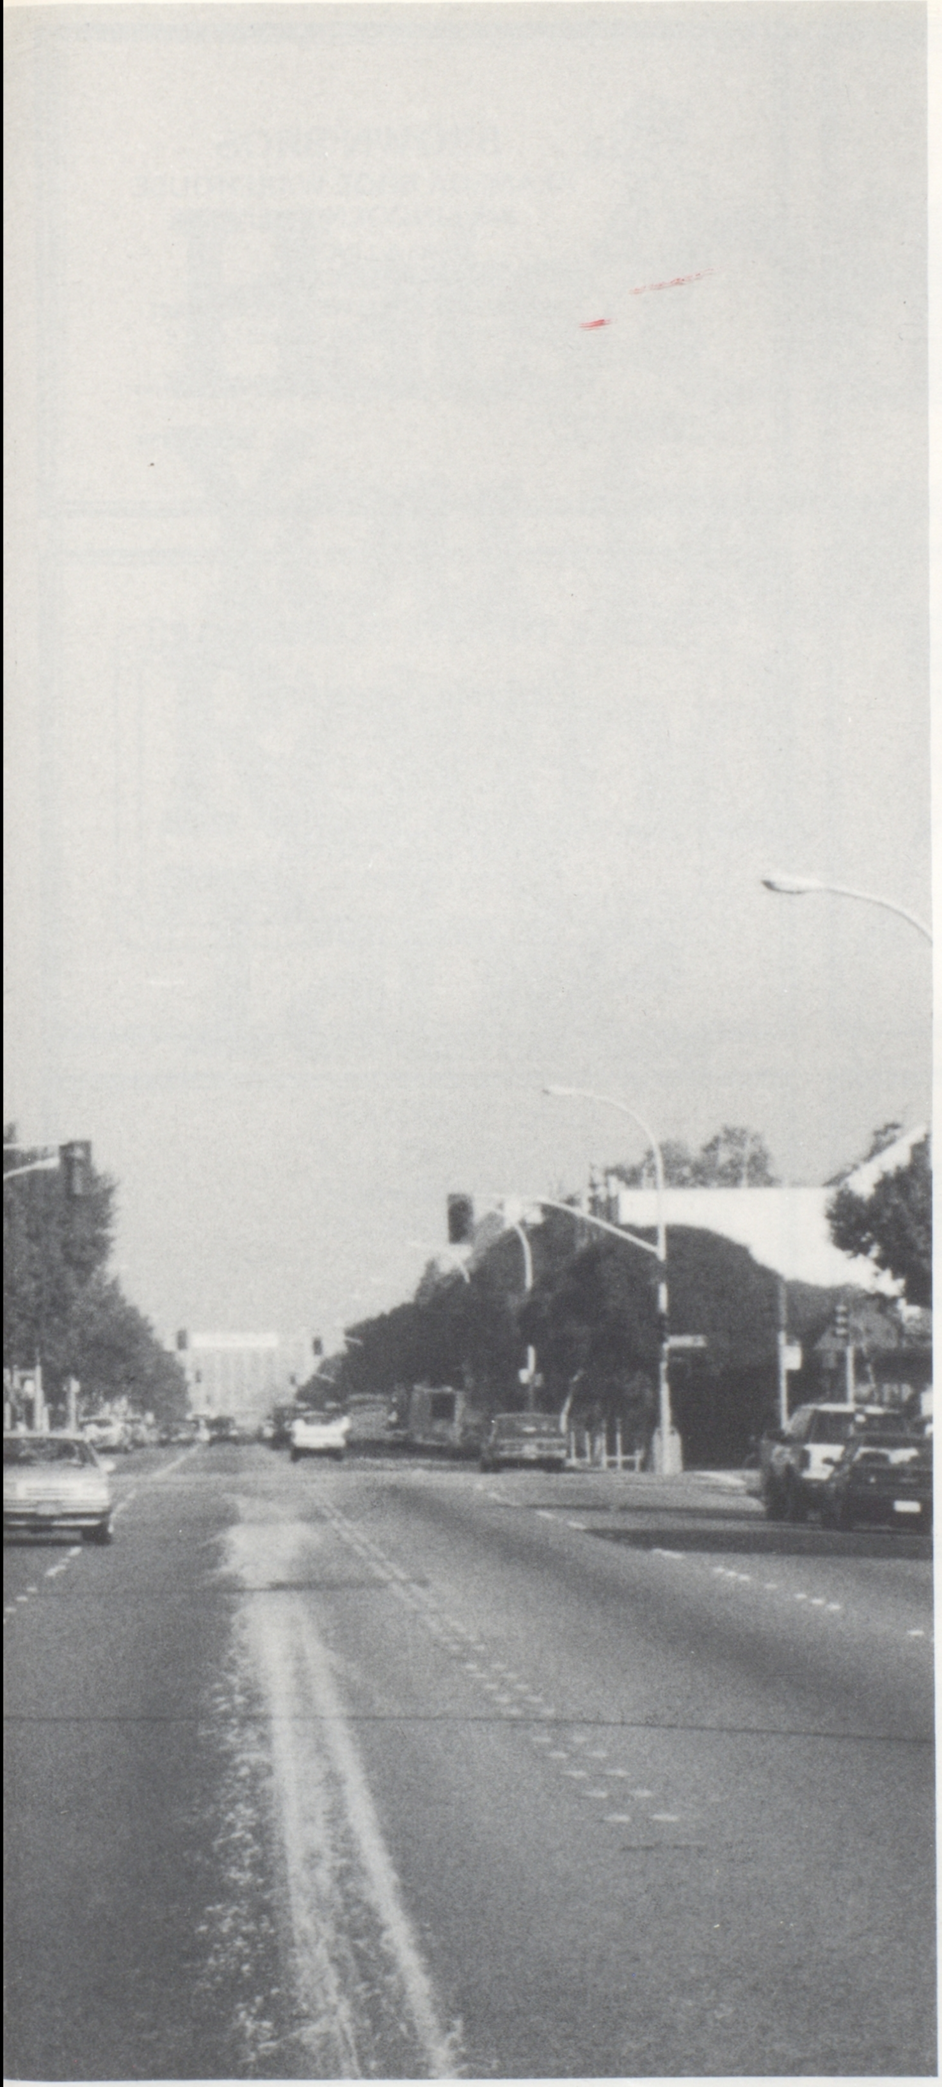
What is a yearbook without a little help? In other words, a yearbook needs financial support to make the final product. The selling of business ads, personal messages, and the actual sale of the yearbook contributes to making the yearbook possible.

Purchasing a yearbook costs only a fraction of the total budget to create one. A good yearbook is a sign of a strong school. A yearbook, however, is worth more than any amount of money. It is a book of treasured memories that last a lifetime.

Messages from family, support of local businesses and student memories fill what is often known as the " back of the book." But it is not the end -- it's endless...

By: Ryan Gong and Tina Ng





Money can buy happiness as Brian Wong is purchasing a satisfying plate of chowmien. During the many food faires Alameda High sponsors, students spend their extra long lunch period browsing and tasting the many variety foods around the world. Ronald Ip bravely gets his face painted by Eugene Choi. The yearbook class set up a face painting booth to raise money for the yearbook's production. Money can also buy yearbooks.

Heading back after a yummy lunch break, students trudge their way back to A.H.S. to their dreaded fifth period classes. Students often buy their lunches off campus at the neighboring stores and restaurants so they can have a bigger lunch menu. Unfortunatly there are only 40 minutes to eat lunch which forces the students back to school.

A look down Park Street. A familiar sight to many Alameda High School students who spend their lunch and after school free time out on Park Street. It is a place where lunches can be bought and friends can be met. Several local businesses in this area play an important part supporting the production of the Alameda High yearbook.

THE ENDLESS YEARBOOK STAFF OF 1994

TO THE STAFF

Being a first year advisor, I will confess that I was incredibly naive concerning the work it takes to put together a quality publication. Fortunately, I had the help of the staff. In particular, the co-editors, Tannie and Linda were incredibly amazing. I would have been really clueless without you gals. This is your book. You have worked very hard with the help of a core group of extremely dedicated staffers. I have been impressed, excited, and encouraged by the ideas, layouts, and fortitude of the staff.

It has not been easy. There were a few glum classes, like the chosing of a theme. But hey, "Endless" was a great choice for our theme since the work never stops....

We have survived.. We made most of our deadlines, and we are still standing (although tired). Best of all, this is truly a student publication-- your ideas, your views, your pictures, your hearts are all exemplified here. Take a bow. I'm proud to have had the opportunity to work with the Seniors that are moving on, and I look forward to the energy of next year's staff. This year's staff was comprised of a unique group of people- thanks for all your effort, dedication, and support!

Tannie's final words

Finally, it's over! Truly this year has been ENDLESS. This class has its problems, but in the end it is all worth it. Thanx to Linda for having the most patience with me when I stopped doing my half of the work. To Ms. Rose-how did you put up with me and Linda for so long? I appreciate those who helped- Kim, Bill, Ronald, Tabitha, Misha,and Dylan. Tina, Ryan, and Favian-You guys did a great job with the ads! Good luck to everyone who is brave enough to take yearbook next year. As you guys can all see, IT'S finally over!

Recognition

Special thanks-To the English Department for their continual support and encouragement. To Jackie Falletti for the endless pile of green sheets, jovial spirit, and financial wizardry. To Jo Winzenread for her help and guidance. To Miss Mann (and her leadership class), Miss Greaney, and Mr. Kaplan for empathy and support. To Betty Ruark for helping with the tough decisions. To the faculty for letting students out of class to finish projects. And, finally, to all the AHS students who helped out in times of need.

An Endless Headache

What is left to say besides "Finish your page, Stan is coming!" Tannie, why did we have to be so picky and letter-perfect? I want to thank Bill for just being able to pick up a page and turn it in on time. I worship you! I want to thank all the division editors because they all experienced how much stress Tannie and I went through at one point or another. Kim, good luck with next year and don't try to reverse the pages again! Ms. Rose, I don't remember the interview saying that I had to stay in over 100 hours!
